BARRERE ALIBI WEAKENED BY KELLY

NATS WIN, 8-6, AND KEEP PACE SET BY MACKS

JOHNSON SHUFFLES WASHINGTON LINE-UP

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Cleveland, July 18.—Winning this afternoon's game, 8 to 6, the Nationals evened the series with the Indians and managed to keep the first-place Mackmen from stretching their three and one-half game lead despite their victory at Chicago. The contest was a thriller throughout, with the Nationals seeing a five-run lead completely erased and then rallying to pack away the verdict.

Adolph Liska, who had not even drawn a relief shift since pounded off the hill by the Browns in Washington on June 29, drew the pitching assignment and was in no serious trouble until the fifth. Then he ran into gobs of it and was excused in Lloyd Brown's favor in the sixth, the southpaw getting credit for the triumph.

Peck Uses Two Pitchers.

Peckinpaugh also used two flingers, Mel Harder, the starter, giving way to Pete Jablonowski in the Nats' eighth. All told the Nationals were credited with but ten hits, as against fifteen by the Indians, but the Washington blows were more timely, while four were doubles and one a triple, with a two-base error by Porter playing a big part. Sammy West, with a double and two singles, led the Nats' attack, with a great back-hand grab by Sam Rice, robbing the Tribe of two runs and standing out as the best play of the current series.

Earl Averill, who was credited with the only extra-base clout for the Tribe, was high gun for the Indians, his efforts netting a double and two one-basers.

The Nationals got away from the barrier so impressively that it looked as though they would win in a walk, for they were leading by four runs and going strongly when the halfway mark was reached. Two runs in the first and three more in the third made them look like sure winners, especially as Liska seemed to be having no particular troubles.

Nats Score Twice.

Singles by West and Cronin and Harris' double gave the Nats their first two markers, while the trio made in the third were coined from Shires' opening double, a walk, sacrifice, Bluege's triple, and Hayes' useful out. Meanwhile, the only run credited to the Indians had come in the third when Liska failed to cover first on a roller to Shires, which

Calvin Coolidge

Says: This world is made up of all kinds of people. Some are good and some are better, while others have made it necessary for the Government to take charge of them. But it is a very hasty and ill considered judgment to conclude that there is more bad than good in any one. We are all a combination of both elements. While we ought not to approve of the evil in ourselves or in others, if we should attempt to have no associations with any but saints we should find ourselves very lonely. The only perfect man ate and drank with publicans and sinners. It did not scandalize him, it was some of those who were not perfect who were scandalized. There is enough good in all of us to support the law of human fellowship. We shall be much more effective for good if we treat men not as they are but as they ought to be.

If we judge ourselves only by our aspirations and everyone else only by their conduct we shall reach a very false conclusion. When we have exhausted the possibilities of criticism on ourselves it will be time enough to apply it to others. The world needs high social standards and we should do our best to maintain them, but they should rest on the broad base of Christian charity.

SENATE HOLDS NIGHT SESSION ON TREATY

FILIBUSTER IS DENIED

(Associated Press.)

Under the lighted dome of the Capitol a restless Senate membership sat waiting last night for the opposition to the London naval treaty to exhaust its debate and permit a vote.

The contest on the naval limitations agreement seemed to have narrowed down to an endurance test with the foes hoping to outtalk the patience of the overwhelming majority favoring the pact.

Senator Johnson (Republican), California, leader of the opposition, gave notice as he began his second speech of the day, just when the electric lights were coming on for the night session, that "you have the power but, by the heavens, you have got to use it to the full before this document can be ratified."

Friends of the treaty have threatened to use the cloture rule which shuts off debate but they have decided to withhold this move to permit an exhaustion of legitimate debate. Several already have charged a filibuster against the treaty but the opposition has vigorously denied this.

Meeting at 11 a. m. yesterday, the Senate left the continuation of debate entirely up to the treaty opponents. They carried on well into the night. The treaty's friends answered every challenge of lack of a quorum, although a call at 7:30 p. m. showed just the necessary 49 members present.

A roll call at 9:30 p. m. was answered by 53 members. Senator Hale (Republican), Maine, chairman of the naval committee, then gained the floor and began reading the 1928 Armistice Day speech of President Coolidge.

"I think it is fitting in the closing hours of this debate," said Mr. Hale, "to read what Mr. Coolidge had to say then."

Few members remained on the floor to listen to the evening's debate, although Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, and Senator Johnson did attract more of an audience.

BROKEN BOW NORRIS IS RULED OFF BALLOT

SENATE INQUIRY IS SET

Lincoln, Nebr., July 18 (A.P.).—Chief Justice Charles A. Goss, of the Nebraska Supreme Court, tonight ruled that the name of George W. Norris, Broken Bow, Nebr., grocer, should not appear on the Republican primary ballot as a candidate for the U. S. senatorial nomination in opposition to Senator George W. Norris, of McCook.

Justice Goss held that Nebraska primary election laws regulating the filing of certificates of nomination were mandatory in defining the time limit in which certificates were to be placed in the hands of the Secretary of State. In the Norris case the filing did not reach Lincoln until July 3, and then too late for delivery that day, the final for legal acceptances.

Supporters of the Broken Bow man tonight were unable to predict whether he might attempt to remain in the race by filing as an independent candidate after the primary election August 12.

The Chief Justice reversed the decision of Secretary of State Frank Marsh, who had accepted a belated filing for the Broken Bow grocer. The Secretary of State was ordered by the court to refrain from including the name of the Broken Bow man on the August 12 primary ballot.

Under the ruling of Marsh, announced yesterday, the name George W. Norris would have appeared twice on the ballot for the Republican senatorial nomination. The Secretary of State ruled that the filing received by mail at his office July 5th, bearing postmarks of July 2, were legal notwithstanding the time limit expired at midnight, July 3d.

Broken Bow, Nebr., July 18 (A.P.). The United States Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures will hold a hearing here tomorrow in connection with the filing of George W. Norris, Broken Bow grocer, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for senator in opposition to Senator George W. Norris, of McCook.

The hearing was announced by Frank Healy, representative of the committee, who said Senator Gerald

HOOVER SEEKS CUT TO OFFSET REVENUE DROP

President Would Trim Outlay, in View of Depression.

FIGURES TO BE KEPT UNDER BUDGET RATE

Situation Discussed at Cabinet Session and Inquiry Starts.

AID TO UNEMPLOYED NOT TO BE AFFECTED

Executive, at Same Time, Rebukes Confusion on Expenditures.

(Associated Press.)

A reduction of governmental expenditures below budget estimates to offset a possible decrease in revenue arising from business depression was sought yesterday by President Hoover.

After discussing the financing situation with members of his Cabinet, the Chief Executive announced they and the heads of independent agencies have undertaken "a searching inquiry into every branch of the Government as to methods by which economies may be brought about for the present fiscal year without interfering in the program of aid to unemployment."

"I am confident," Mr. Hoover said, "that we will find measures for very considerable reductions of actual outlay below the amount appropriated What the amount may be can not be determined until we have completed our investigation."

The budget for the present fiscal year was $4,203,254,457, 5 per cent above that for last year.

This is attributable largely, Mr. Hoover said, to the speeding of buildings, inland waterways and public works generally to assist in relieving unemployment and to the increased relief to veterans.

At the same time, the President said, there had been some "confusion" as to the amount of increased expenditures imposed by Congress.

Mistaken inclusion of authorized programs which extend over many years, such as public buildings, roads, and rivers and harbors, were held by Mr. Hoover to have created the confusion, as well as comparisons which include the postoffice outlays.

Mr. Hoover's Statement.

"It has always been the practice," Mr. Hoover said, "to include only the postoffice deficit. Otherwise, real comparisons would be destroyed by the variations in postoffice appropriations."

The complete statement of the President follows:

"The Cabinet meeting today was largely devoted to a consideration of the financial situation of the Government as the result of the appropriations made by the last Congress. The budget for the present fiscal year beginning July 1 has been increased by about $209,000,000 above the actual expenditures for the last fiscal year.

"The largest increases are for speeding up of buildings, inland waterways and public works generally, in order to assist in unemployment together with the increased relief of veterans.

"There has been some confusion as to the amount of increased expenditures imposed by the last Congress by the mistaken inclusion of authorized programs which extend over many years, such as public buildings, roads and rivers and harbors, and only in a small part fall on each annual budget. Also some comparisons of Federal expenditures include the postoffice outlays. It has always

U. S. Amusement Bill Stirs "Gloomy Dean"

Leeds, England, July 18 (A.P.).—The Very Rev. W. R. Inge, known to all England as "the gloomy dean," of St. Paul's Cathedral, London, in a lecture at the Wesleyan conference here today said that what Americans spent on luxuries in the space of two years would pay off the British war debt.

By his estimates, £2,100,000,000 (about $10,500,000,000) was spent annually in the United States on amusement alone.

"People in this world waste a tremendous amount—the French less than the English, and the English less than the Americans," he said. "The real grievance of the working man is not that he is hardly worked or poorly paid, but that he has to produce luxury goods of no real use, by which he loses his self-respect."

SHAPIRO GIVES BOND ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

HOUSE SALE DESCRIBED

Shortly following the issuance of a warrant charging false pretenses in the sale of a house to a Government employe, Jacob Shapiro, president of the Joseph Shapiro Co., Inc., surrendered to United States Attorney Leo A. Rover yesterday and was released under bond of $10,000.

Shapiro refused to waive immunity when called before a Senate subcommittee Thursday on similar complaints, made by eight witnesses, and was excused from testifying.

The warrrant on which he voluntarily presented himself yesterday was issued at the instance of Walter S. Frisbie, of 1718 Irving street northwest, a section where several of the witnesses at the Senate inquiry are said to live in houses under "hidden" mortgages.

Although none of the eight witnesses had complained to the United States Attorney's Office yesterday, Mr. Rover said that he expected numerous applications for warrants against Shapiro this morning. For this reason he requested United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage to fix bond at $10,000. The commissioner set Shapiro's hearing for August 5.

The warrant charges Shapiro falsely represented to Frisbie that the latter's home on Irving street was clear of all encumbrances except $10,000 at the time it was sold to Frisbie by Shapiro. A second lien against the property in the sum of $4,000 was concealed, it is charged.

Mr. Rover said that certificate of title had never been transferred to Mr. Frisbie, who did not become aware of the "hidden" mortgage of $4,000 until Shapiro had paid off all but $500 of the sum.

Shapiro was accompanied by his attorney, Alvin L. Newmyer, when he surrendered to the United States Attorney yesterday.

CONSUL'S TALE LAUNCHES RAID ON STOCK FIRM

EMPLOYE ARRESTED AND FIVE ARE SOUGHT

ATTORNEYS ADVISE PAIR TO SURRENDER

Locked Safe Confiscated by Officers Expected to Aid Case.

Acting on the complaint of the Brazilian consul at Norfolk, Assistant United States Attorney William A. Gallagher and deputy United States marshals yesterday raided the stock-broking firm of Perry & Co., confiscated a truckload of evidence and arrested Maurice Erdrich on charges of violating the bucketshop laws of the District.

Erdrich, who claimed to be a minor employe, was alone in the company's office on the fifth floor of the Washington Building when his unexpected callers arrived. Five other men named in the warrant are expected to be surrendered to the United States Attorney's office this morning.

Five Others Named.

They are: W. J. Perry, Ivan Fuller, Norman Genero, Frederick Langhorst and a man known only as Allen.

Mr. Langhorst and Mr. Genero have been advised to give themselves up this morning, their counsel, Frank Sprigg Perry and Aubrey B. Fennell, said last night.

The Brazilian consul, P. Nabuco de Abreu, told authorities that Perry had telephoned him in Norfolk last June 9 concerning 40 shares of United Gas Improvement stock, and that each of the defendants named in the warrant had conspired with Perry in making an illegal deal dependent on speculation.

Locked Safe Held.

Erdrich, who said that he had only been in Washington for a few months, and was ignorant of any wrong doing, was held in jail upon his failure to make bond of $5,000, fixed by United States Commissioner Needham Turnage.

Among articles confiscated by officers was a locked safe, which the defendant is said to have refused to open, and which is expected to add strength to the Government's case.

Freighter Is Released From Grip of Iceberg

Montreal, July 18 (A.P.).—A radio message received tonight said the freighter Daly Rand was released shortly before noon from the ledge of an iceberg on which it was stuck fast for many hours. The vessel is proceeding to Montreal.

The freighter, which was carrying coal from Swansea, was not damaged seriously by the collision, the message said. The ship struck the berg last night and the crew of 35 was unable to free her until today. The Cunard liner Athenia stood by all day ready to take off the crew should the necessity arise. The accident occurred in the straits of Belle Isle, 11 miles north of Belle Island.

MURDER SUSPECT ADMITS NEARNESS TO ATTACK SCENE ON FATAL EVENING

Prisoner in Baker Case to Be Faced by Man Who Owned Death Gun in an Effort to Prove It Could Have Been Stolen.

OFFICERS REACH NEW YORK; DUE HERE THIS AFTERNOON

Stay Overnight in Metropolis to Hunt Companion of Accused Man on Night of Slaying as Arlington County Ride Is Recalled; Captive Insists on Innocence.

By DANIEL B. MAHER
(Post Staff Correspondent).

New York, N. Y., July 18.—The admission by Herman H. Barrere that he was in the vicinity of the Church of the Epiphany between 5:30 and 6 o'clock on the night that Mary Baker was murdered has prompted the decision by Lieut. Edward J. Kelly to confront the suspect with Herbert M. Campbell, the owner of the murder gun, in an attempt to prove the accessibility of Barrere to the house when the gun was stolen.

Lieut. Kelly and Commonwealth Attorney William C. Gloth will leave New York with Barrere tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. They will stop over in Philadelphia a few hours, however, to examine the prisoner's personal possessions at the home of his woman companion. The party will probably reach Washington late tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. Gloth said tonight, however, that there would be no special grand jury called to hear the case against Barrere unless more definite evidence is uncovered. Upon his arrival at the Union Station tomorrow, Lieut. Kelly said, Barrere will be taken immediately to the Arlington County jail, where all the witnesses in the case would confront him. Mr. Gloth pays scant importance to the accuracy of any identification which may be made by any of the witnesses of the Ellipse attack. It is his opinion that they obtained only a passing glance of the assailant and could not make a positive identification.

Barrere's admission came early this evening en route from Montreal. Lieut. Kelly and a Post reporter were cross-examining Barrere in a drawing room on the train when Lieut. Kelly trapped the suspect and induced the admission.

In addition to this fact, the suspect admitted to Lieut. Kelly that he had passed in the rear of the White House at about the same time that the slain girl was seen by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh R. Wood and Francis Rice in a semiconscious condition in her automobile.

Alibi Thought Broken Down.

In the mind of Lieut. Kelly, the significance of Barrere's statement is that it breaks the alibi of the suspect, which had heretofore been considered airtight. Barrere's assertion came at 7 o'clock tonight after he had been grilled incessantly since 10 o'clock this morning by Lieut. Kelly, Mr. Gloth, Samuel W. Hardy, of the Department of Justice, and newspaper reporters.

The suspect said that he left the home of Mrs. Harrison W. Smith at East Capitol street, near Second street northeast, at 5:30 o'clock. In his automobile was Miss Edith W. Heiner, of O street, near Twenty-first street northwest.

Barrere said that Miss Heiner left the machine at a restaurant on G street, near Fourteenth street. Miss Baker and Miss Inez Eure and Miss Ora Smith left the Church of the Epiphany at about this time. Barrere denied that he had attempted any flirtations along G street. After leaving Fourteenth and G streets, Barrere told Lieut. Kelly he drove west to Fifteenth street, to Pennsylvania avenue, to East Executive avenue around the White House, and then went to his home in the Flagler Apartments on Twenty-second street, near N northwest. The spot where Miss Baker was seen in her automobile is on the Ellipse, near Seventeenth and B streets.

Barrere and his guard of Washington and Virginia authorities reached New York early tonight. Gloth and Lieut. Kelly decided to remain overnight in New York so that they might confront the newest Mary Baker murder suspect with George Kelly, of Yonkers, N. Y., who found the missing clothes of the Navy Department clerk near Arlington Cemetery. Yonkers police had not located the man late tonight.

Arlington Ride Revealed.

The investigators determined to question Kelly again because of evidence that the Yonkers man and Barrere had picked up two Washington men, George Shaw and Arthur Hammond, on the night of the murder in Arlington County and taken them to the Capital.

Under questioning Barrere late today recalled that there was a man named Kelly with him on the night of the murder. He told Mr. Gloth and Lieut. Kelly that he met Kelly in the George Washington lunch at 7:30 o'clock on the night of the murder. Earlier in the interrogation he had said that the man with him was Private Edwin "Buddy" Barth. This he retracted.

Kelly and he, after their casual meeting, he said, went to Arlington County for drinks. They then went to the lunchroom in Alexandria. Barrere's description of his companion does not tally with that of the finder of girl's clothing in the trap sewer.

"What I would like to know," Barrere said, "is the person who is trying to pin this thing on me. On my word, I do not know Mary Baker, never saw her, and I wouldn't know her if I saw her."

The suspect glibly answered all questions but refused to be definite as to his whereabouts on the day of the murder.

"When I get a lawyer," he said, "I will make positive declarations. All

Injunction Halts Stock Sale Here

Diplomats Said to Complain to New York Official Against Firm.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Wilen W. Stewart, alias W. W. Easterday, former convict and associate of "Nicky" Arnstein, today was temporarily enjoined with nine others from further sale of securities by Supreme Court Justice Humphrey.

Deputy Attorney General Wohl alleged the defendants conducted a so-called securities business with offices in New York and at 1411 New York avenue, Washington. He said stock purchased by customers was in no instance delivered and that more than $40,000 was stolen from the public in two months.

Calling the scheme the boldest stock swindle he had investigated this year, he said complaints from Diplomatic Corps members were among those received. Two of the defendants restrained, Harry Greenhaus and Charles H. Greenhaus, brothers, were arrested at their homes late tonight on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Widespread Drought Grows And Relief Is Not Yet Seen

Score of States Hard Hit by Subnormal Rainfall of Past Eight Months.

(Associated Press.)

Streams fell lower and crops grew drier yesterday while the lands of a score of States parched harder in the grip of the month-long drought, the end of which could not be foreseen last night by the United States Weather Bureau.

Spreading East from the Rocky Mountains, the drought was described by weather experts as gripping its hardest in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, and Virginia. Statistics just compiled showed it the worst ever recorded in these States, having extended in most cases over the past eight months.

Although complete 40-year records were not available for other States, the dry spell was said to be almost

What are one's chances of being murdered in Washington? What time of day does the slayer select for his deed? A special article in The Post tomorrow will answer these questions. It is based on an analysis of police statistics covering a four-year period.

Another article, also based on the efforts of a statistician, will show how young men spend their time, even down to the number of hours and minutes each week the average young man spends in the company of girls.

Who will be chosen commandant of the United States Marine Corps? From Shanghai to Port au Prince, in far-away barracks rooms and right here in the drawing rooms of the National Capital this question is being asked as President Hoover prepares to name his choice. Judging from the gossip "the situation is not well in hand," but why spoil the story which will be published tomorrow.

G.O.P. Chairman's Friends Say He Will Quit When Hoover Demands It.

A report that Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, had sent a letter of resignation to the President was denied at the White House yesterday.

It was explained that Mr. Huston will resign to the committee when the time comes, and not to the President. The President could receive his resignation and transfer it to the committee, but it was pointed out that he might not want to do that. Mr. Huston is out of the city and his office had heard of no such communication.

Washington political observers are still divided on the intentions of Mr. Huston, some contending that he will not quit, and others, that he must do so. Persons very close to Mr. Hus-that you have been showng to me is a lot of circumstantial evidence, almost all hearsay."

Barrere announced that he would talk no further of his alibi until he could employ a lawyer. He was afraid he would get mixed up on the time and dates, he said, and might later be accused of false statements.

"I'm not going to run the risk of getting tangled up on dates and hours so that you can call me a liar," he replied to the insistence of his interrogators that he give them his full alibi so they might check it and clear him if they found it true.

"I am innocent before God, and I'm living in a civilized country, where justice is fair and square and where every citizen has an opportunity to prove his innocence."

Declaring that he intended to get a "good lawyer" who will see that he gets a "square deal," Barrere added: "I want to tell the world one thing. I'm not going to rest until I find out who the dirty crook was who got me messed up in this thing when he knew I was innocent. I want to know why he would do a lousy trick like that. There must be some reason."

Believes Goods "Planted."

Barrere told Lieut. Kelly tonight that he believed that Herbert M. Campbell, Arlington County realty man, "planted" the goods which Campbell said were stloen from his home on April 12, the day before the arrest of the suspect on the larceny charge in Arlington County. Throughout all the examination Barrere maintained that he is innocent of the theft.

Barrere told Lieut. Kelly that there had been ill feeling between him and Campbell for several months. Campbell and Miss Heiner had a dispute over a real estate deal, he said, and the advice which he gave to the woman resulted in a victory for her.

Asked by the lieutenant why he had contracted with Campbell for the painting of his house, Berrere said that he wished to prove to himself whether she was "on the level" and therefore signed the contract.

Mr. Gloth and Lieut. Kelly tried to establish Barrere's familiarity with Model A Ford cars, one of which Miss Baker owned.

Does Not Know Lock Details.

Barrere said he had never driven a Ford automobile. Neither did he know whether a Ford car of that model could be driven without the ignition key in the lock. The objective of the questioning was to determine whether Barrere could have driven the murder car from the road on the Department of Agriculture experimental farm, where the keys were found, to the point of the car's abandonment on Cemetery road near Military road.

Barrere's earlier story of his activities on the day of the crime is substantially the same as that told by his acquaintances and by persons with whom he came in contact.

On the morning of the crime he said he was in court as a result of a traffic accident he had with William F. Farrabee, of New Haven, Conn. He left court about noon with Mrs. Harrison Smith, he says, who had accompanied him at the time of the accident.

Then, he said, he took Mrs. Smith on a shopping tour, ending at Miss Heiners' house, where the latter showed some dresses to Mrs. Smith. They then went to the Smith home. Smith and Miss Heiner say it was after 6 o'clock when he and Miss Heiner left.

Officers Work in Relays.

All today Lieut. Kelly, Mr. Gloth, Mr. Hardy and reporters worked in relays trying to break down the prisoner. Barrere said that the only gun he had seen in eight years was after the murder. This, he said, was owned by Clifton W. Harrell, who lives in a shack in Oak Crest, Va., alongside the spot where Barrere pitched his tent.

Miss Heiner and Mr. and Mrs. Smith insist that they can prove that he was in the latter's home until after 6 o'clock on the night of the murder.

Upon arrival of the officers and the suspect in New York City tonight Barrere was lodged in the Thirtieth Street Police Station. Lieut. Kelly communicated with Yonkers, N. Y., police to have them locate George Kelly, who recovered the murdered girl's apparel near the death scene.

Yonkers Squad Sent Out.

Lieut. Kelly and Mr. Gloth wish to ascertain whether Kelly is the same Kelly who was with Barrere on the night of the murder. Yonkers police, upon the direction of Lieut. Kelly, sent a squad of men to look for the man who was brought to Washington on May 2 or 3 for questioning.

Mrs. Marion Jarrell, Barrere's companion on the trip to Canada, has announced her intention of remaining steadfast to Barrere until he is proven innocent. The 47-year-old widow, who wears a $600 diamond ring and who has real estate holdings in Philadelphia, said that she and Barrere had an understanding to be married in the near future.

Barrere represented himself to her as a single man. Before taking the Canadian trip Barrere told Mrs. Jarrell that he did not want her to pay the expenses so he gave her a promissory note in return for $200.

Claiming to be unaware of the international search being conducted for him during the last few weeks, Barrere said that he had been living under his own name at 45 Paxton street, West Philadelphia, since May 3.

His relatives were ignorant as to his whereabouts, however, as he had no forwarding address when he departed from Washington.

This part of his story was corroborated by Mrs. Marion Jarrel, of the West Philadelphia address, the companion with whom he was arrested in Montreal.

Mrs. Jarrell will not be brought to Washington. She will leave the train at Philadelphia, if she wishes, Lieut. Kelly has made arrangements to have all of Barrere's belongings in the Philadelphia home of Mrs. Jarrell taken by police for examination.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 11 a. m. and recessed at 11 p. m. until 11 a. m. today.

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, attacked the London naval treaty, declaring that the "pitiful thing about this treaty is that so few people know anything about it and that so many people care nothing about it."

Senator Johnson (Republican), California) denounced the treaty provisions which he contended destroyed the 5—3 ratio with Japan, established at the 1922 Washington conference.

Senator Johnson then offered a reservation to permit the United States to build as many 8-inch-gun cruisers as it saw fit without regard to limitations placed on this subcategory in the cruiser provisions.

At a conference early yesterday morning opponents of the pact determined that they would enter no agreement to limit debate, and the leaders of the group in favor of ratification replied that they would keep the Senate in session at night in an attempt to exhaust the discussions.

BIG ESCAPED SNAKE FRIGHTENS VILLAGE

ARMED MEN IN SEARCH

Rochester, N. Y., July 18 (A.P.).—Two hundred residents of the Lakeside community of Sea Breeze, reinforced by police and deputy sheriffs, today were searching for a 20-foot, 200-pound Indian python, which escaped last night from the reptile exhibit of Edward Hayes.

Warned by Hayes that the snake, said to be one of the largest in captivity, though not poisonous, was fully capable of strangling a strong man in its constricting coils, none but those armed with firearms was permitted to join the searching party.

Women and children were warned to stay indoors and business and social life came to an abrupt halt.

Peter "Rattlesnake Pete" Gruber, nationally known reptile expert, was at the head of the searchers when they began their beating of the woods and underbrush along the Lake Shore and nearby Irondequoit Bay.

The python broke out of its packing case during the night.

Hayes' exhibit of reptiles and curiosities is a part of an amusement park at Sea Breeze, a summer colony on the shore of Lake Ontario, seven miles north of here. The python was a recent addition to his collection.

Although lethargic after a heavy feeding, Hayes said the huge snake was very active and a menace when hungry.

Tariff Law Cause Of New Division

(Associated Press.)

The Treasury announced yesterday that the many provisions of the new tariff act had made it necessary to establish a division of appeals and protests in the Customs Bureau.

The new division will be under Charles Stevenson, at present supervising customs agent at Tampa, Fla. It will handle protests from importers regarding rates and from organized labor relative to imported commodities alleged to have been dumped into the United States and sold at an unfair price in competition with American industry and labor. In addition it will handle all matters relating to countervailing duties, bounties and other subjects.

Another subject which will be handled by the division is the administration of provisions of the new tariff act which authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to pass upon appeals and protests by American manufacturers, producers or wholesalers, whether imports are valued too low or assessed at too low a rate of duty.

Farm Relief Plan Scored as Failure

Senator Thomas Declares Officials Have Admitted Scheme's Collapse.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, said in a statement through the Democratic national committee yesterday that the administration's plan of helping the farmer "has ended in failure." The Farm Board, he said, "speaking through Chairman Legge and Secretary Hyde, admits that the law is a failure."

"Not only is this admission made by the officials mentioned, but the administration is represented as having decided to buy no more wheat and further that the Government will hold out no guarantee to the farmer that anything further will be done under the Hoover farm relief plan to help agriculture," he added.

"If these reports are true, then the farmers must conclude that the administration has repealed the farm relief law and substituted in its place the law of supply and demand * * *. Other than the law of supply and demand, the administration has no remedy to offer and none in mind."

Arrest in Pleasing Way Is Candidate's Promise

Tacoma, Wash., July 18 (A.P.).—Tacomans today read the familiar campaign slogan, "If You Want to Be Arrested in a Courteous, Pleasant Manner, Elect Me."

In every election since 1916 it has brought victory to Constable George P. Chapman. He announced today he will seek reelection.

Young Man Breaks Ribs In Automobile Accident

CAPONE SAYS KILLER OF LINGLE IS KNOWN

"LIES," SAYS GANG CHIEF

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—The police know who killed Alfred Lingle, Tribune crime reporter, acoording to Scarface Al Capone, gang chieftain, as quoted by a reporter who interviewed the notorious hoodlum in his home at Miami. Capone also denied imputations that he had broken with Lingle, who, it is generally conceded, was assassinated by some disgruntled gangster.

Lingle was a friend of Capone's for a long time as well as of the chief heads of the Chicago police department who resigned after the reporter was slain on June 9 while passing through a pedestrian subway to the race track train near the public library.

But if the police had the information Capone is quoted as saying they had, they did not reveal it. Neither has any definite action been taken, except for the arrest in Los Angeles and indictment here of Frank Foster, who purchased the pistol found by Lingle's side. Foster is due in Chicago tomorrow, but it has never been charged that he fired the fatal shot. He is to go before a grand jury for questioning.

Reporter Also to Appear.

Before this same body, Harry Brundidge, the reporter who interviewed Capone, is also to appear to tell what he knows of charges he made in his paper, the St. Louis Star, that Lingle was not the only Chicago newspaperman who had alliances with crime and politics.

Brundidge said that when he asked Capone how many newspapermen were on the gang chief's pay roll, the answer was, "Plenty."

Anent the reporter's approaching grand jury hearing, Brundidge quoted Capone: "They'll make a monkey out of you before you get through. No matter what dope you have to give that grand jury, the boys will prove you're a liar and a faker. You'll get a trimming."

New Witness Located.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson today said a new witness to the assassination had been found.

The new witness, a woman, Swanson said, might prove to be the most important in the case. She had been injured in an automobile crash early on the day of the killing and had gone to her physician's office. In the elevator she saw a child's hand crushed by a door, and the sight made her ill. Later, on the way to a train to go home, she was startled by a shot fired almost at her elbow, and saw Lingle fall dead.

So unnerved was the woman by her experiences that she has since been in a state of collapse.

"She does not want her name made public now," the prosecutor explained, "but she says she will tell us all she known in the presence of an attorney. I understand she got a good look at the killer and can positively identify him. Right now she is in a very nervous condition."

Capone Denies Statements.

Miami, Fla., July 18 (A.P.).—Scarface Al Capone, in a statement tonight, described as "deliberate lies" the statements made in a copyrighted story in the St. Louis Star by Harry Brundidge, reporter, today that the Chicago racketeer had "plenty of newspapermen on his payroll," and that he and the Chicago police knew who shot and killed Jake Lingle, Chicago newspaperman.

Capone dictated his statement at his Miami Beach home.

In the course of an interview he offered to face Brundidge "before any grand jury" and deny that statements attributed to him in the story by Brundidge were true.

Capone said definitely he was through with racketeering in Chicago and did not care to be mixed up in it one way or another.

He charged that Brundidge "faked the socalled interview."

"It is the truth when he said I gave Lingle a diamond belt buckle," Capone went on, referring to one part of Brundidge's story. Lingle was a dear friend of mine. The buckle was a Christmas present and I gave it to him as a Christmas present and not for any service he had rendered me as a newspaperman. I appreciated his friendship and I gave him the present just as I give other friends presents on Christmas Day."

Friends Clear Widow In 15 Gunness Murders

Jackson, Miss., July 18 (A.P.).—Suspicion that a Harrison County, Miss., widow was Belle Gunness, accused of murdering some fifteen men on her Indiana matrimonial farm 20 years ago, was exploded today by the woman's life history as related by intimate friends.

If alive, Belle Gunness would now be 71 years old, while the age of the widow, first reported at 70, later was placed at 57 by her close friends. Her intimates said she spent most of her life at Peoria, Ill., and came South about fifteen years ago. They said she was married at the age of 14 and had a son who died at the age of 21. Her husband died in February, 1928, after an illness of four months.

REICHSTAG BALKS AND IS DISSOLVED

Germany Faces Election to Be Held Not Later Than September.

FINANCE PLAN IS SNAG

Berlin, July 18 (A.P.).—Political Germany was rolling up its sleeves tonight in preparation for another national election campaign, after the Reichstag had been dissolved this morning when it attempted to thwart the program of financial reform submitted by the Bruening cabinet.

Until the new elections, which will be held not later than September 14 next, Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and his colleagues will govern the country under the emergency dictatorial powers conferred by article 48 of the German constitution.

Bruening and his finance minister, Dr. Hermann Dietrich, will be free meanwhile to push through the measures they consider necessary for putting Germany's finances in order.

Freedom of Action Limited.

Their freedom of action will be limited, however, by the knowledge that the new Reichstag will be able to revoke any interim decree it deems contrary to public interest. The Reichstag which was sent home this morning because it attempted to revoke the tax decrees promulgated the night before, comprised thirteen political parties.

Just how many parties will make up the new parliament is anybody's guess. The birth of one new one, the German Conservitive party, already has been announced. It will be formed under the leadership of Count Kuna von Westarp, for many years German national floor leader, who bolted with his followers from Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, the intransigent Nationalist leader, today.

The Reichstag which has just been forcibly adjourned was elected in May, 1928. Its dissolution adds one more to the unbroken line of postwar German parliaments which came to a premature end in a similar manner.

The constitution calls for new elections only once in four years. No Reichstag, however, since the founding of the republic, has been able to avoid dissolution before its normal termination.

New Departure for Germany.

Government by decree in times of profound peace is a new thing for republican Germany. While President Von Hindenburg has in a number of cases invoked the extraordinary powers of article 48, his actions were limited to the revocation of emergency measures from an earlier administration whose obsoleteness was obvious.

The only time when the German republic was overned by a system akin to a dictatorship was during the administration of the first president of the republic, the late Friedrich Ebert, in 1923.

At that time the president invested the chief of the army, Gen. Hans Von Seeckt, with extraordinary powers to quell incipient bolshevism. At the same time he authorized the cabinet to issue decrees of an administrative and financial nature which were intended to back up the work of Gen. Von Seeckt.

Once the Communist crisis had passed, President Ebert was quick to reestablish normal conditions.

Chancellor Publishes Appeal.

The Chancellor tonight published a proclamation appealing to the country to decide its own future in the elections, and charging that "The Reichstag has refused to the Reich the means for carrying out its tasks."

"President von Hindenburg's financial reform program was rejected by a small majority, which is divided in itself and incompetent to assume responsibility," the proclamation said.

"An appeal is now made to the nation to decide its future. Do the people wish to withhold from the government what is necessary for regulating finances, maintaining German economic life and safeguarding social obligations? That is the question for September 14."

Child Seriously Hurt When Felled by Taxicab

Helen Suggs, 4 years old, of 507 B street southeast, suffered a possible skull fracture and bruises on her body and legs last night when she was struck, police say, by a taxicab operated by Dewitt N. Littlefield, of 211 Bates street northwest, at Sixth and B streets southeast.

A passing motorist took the girl to Providence Hospital, where she was treated by Dr. J. Rogers Young.

Turfman's Widow Wills Fund to Care for Span

New York, July 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Elizabeth W. Galway's span of chestnut horses, which have been a quaint yet familiar sight among the motor cars of the city for many years, will never know want for the remainder of their days.

Under the terms of her will, filed today, Mrs. Galway, widow of James Galway, former fire commissioner and a veteran turfman, left the horses to the Lawyers Trust Co., with the request that they are "not to be given away, sold or used for commercial or other purposes" and provided that a $12,000 trust be created for their upkeep so long as they live.

Mrs. Galway died at her home here June 28. Her husband, who had been the owner of the world's champion trotting gelding, St. Julian, died April 1, 1910.

WAITRESS ARRESTED IN GIRL'S ESCAPADE

STORY TOLD TO POLICE

Mrs. Etta Padgett, 24-year-old Fairfax waitress, was arrested by Fairfax County, Va., police yesterday and charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor after 14-year-old Louise Gladys Sisson had signed a confession declaring Mrs. Padgett had engineered her escapade Sunday with David Crockett, 35 years old, a married man.

The child's confession was not obtainable until a physical examination by a Fairfax County physician showed that she had been abused, police stated, but eventually she revealed the whole affair, which began, she related, when she and Mrs. Padgett worked several months ago as waitresses at the Groveton Inn, of which Crockett is the proprietor.

"Etta told me," police said the girl related to Sheriff E. T. Kirby and other members of the Fairfax police force, "that my father and mother didn't want me around, but that Dave loved me and I should go with him and leave my home.

"It was Etta who planned the whole thing, and arranged for us to have a room in the house on Blunt road, where she lives with her sister, Mrs. Frinks. When I got in Dave's car after church Sunday, he took me there and we lived there as man and wife until Etta got frightened when the police came to see her. Then she took me home."

The girl told police that Crockett had bought her $90 worth of new clothes, and that the apparel presumably was still at Mrs. Frink's home, where she left it. Police made arrangements to search the premises.

Mrs. Padgett was arrested yesterday afternoon in a lunchroom where she works as waitress at Potomac, Va. She was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Vernon Cockrell and Sergt. Padgett, of the Fairfax County Police Department. Sergt. Padgett is not related to the prisoner. She was taken to the Fairfax County Jail, on a warrant signed by Walter Sisson, father of the girl.

The confession signed by Gladys Louise automatically limits the penalty which may be meted to Crockett upon conviction to 20 years in jail, that being the maximum in such a case when the offense is committed with the consent of the girl.

The child is being held in the Fairfax County Jail, which also houses Crockett and Mrs. Padgett, pending further developments in the case.

Accepts Nomination as Two Others Agree to Run for Congress.

New York, July 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Behind the prison bars of the penitentiary on Welfare Island, in the chapel, stifling hot and with the deadening sound of hundreds of prisoners' feet coming through the two small window openings, William Z. Foster, No. 52850, today was notified of his nomination as the candidate for Governor of New York by the Communist party of the United States.

Foster accepted "the great honor" in a speech lasting for one hour and three minutes. He pledged to campaign to his utmost "under my present restricted situation." His oration, made with the aid of notes scribbled on a prison pad, conjured up all the familiar "red" doctrines and ended with the challenge: "Some day, not so far off, the workers of America will accomplish in the United States what the Soviet Union has done in Russia."

Foster, addressed during the weird notification ceremonies alternately as "comrade" and "governor," is serving an indeterminate sentence of from one day to three years for his leadership of the Red demonstration in Union Square, March 6, in which the police and the Communists turned the demonstration into a riot.

Two others of the jailed Red demonstrators, Robert Minor and Israel Amter, also received the official notification of their party's preferment. Minor and Amter solemnly accepted nomination for seats in Congress. A committee of five from the Communist headquarters on Union Square brought the tidings and word that on August 1 the police will have another Red demonstration on their hands. On that day No. 52350 intends to commence his campaign.

Just before today's ceremonies in the prison chapel commenced, at which Warden Joseph H. McCann, Deputy Warden Daniel Sheehan and five reporters formed the audience, Foster received the conditional assurance of at least 1,109 votes. Welfare Island's prison population. A fellow prisoner, known as a "slicker," was the messenger. Warden McCann told the story.

"The 'slicker' told Foster he would deliver the entire prison vote to him next fall on two conditions," McCann said. "The conditions were that the Communists pay $4.50 per head for the votes and that after Gov. Foster's election he free all his friends on the island."

After the meeting, in which the fiery speeches failed to receive the customary wild applause, Foster, Minor and Amter admitted that the day was the most pleasant of their prison experience.

ANTHRACITE GROUPS SIGN FOR FIVE YEARS

APPROVAL IS FORESEEN

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—A new wage and working agreement between the United Mine Workers of America and the anthracite coal operators was reached today. Peace, which has prevailed in the district among the two groups for more than four years, will continue for five more.

The new agreement, which will be ratified by the operators, the largest of which were represented at the conference, and the miners themselves, will go into effect September 1, superseding the old agreement which was signed February 17, 1926, ending the great coal strike of that winter. It is to run until April 1, 1936.

The miners have been called into convention August 4, at Scranton, Pa. Their approval of the pact is expected.

Pay Not to Be Decreased.

The agreement provides for no decrease in salary, a modified form of the checkoff, or collection of union dues by the operators, payments of miners by check, and the establishment of a permanent committee of twelve men to "consider and discuss all questions arising under this contract relating to cooperation and efficiency and performance of the contract by the parties and the relations of the parties which either party may present for consideration and discussion."

A joint statement was issued by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers, and W. W. Inglis, president of the Glen Alden Coal Co., of Scranton, the heads of the two delegations praising the agreement as a "remarkable contribution to the stability of American industry and American prosperity."

The statement said:

"We are gratified to confirm the negotiations of a new agreement that will spell industrial peace in the anthracite region after the expiration of the present contract for a further period of 5½ years. This will mean an unbroken era of peace in this great industry for approximately ten years, and, in our estimation, will be a remarkable contribution to the stability of our American industry and American prosperity.

Plan of Cooperation Provided.

"The agreement is predicated on a continuation of the present wages and will speak for itself. It also provides in a comprehensive fashion the working out of a concrete program of cooperation and efficiency between the operators and the mine workers. It provides for mutual accommodation to each other in working to carry on a great industry.

"The arrangement for the collection of dues is a practical arrangement. It will reduce operating expenses in the mine workers organization. In consideration for this accommodation and convenience, the agreement provides for practical cooperation of the mine workers with the operators in promoting efficiency without decreasing the miners' earnings.

"The arrangement set forth in the contract for meetings from time to time by representatives of the negotiating parties, will, in our estimation, prove to be a vehicle for the extension of the good will now existing in the industry and the promotion of its well being. We feel that not alone the operators and mine workers, but the citizens of the anthracite communities and the Nation as well are to be congratulated on the successful outcome of this conference."

How Agreement Came.

Arrival at the agreement came after a two-hour meeting of the miners' scale committee, which approved the tentative agreement reached the day before, and a further three-hour session of the two subcommittees. It was their twelfth session.

After the statement was given out, Mr. Lewis and the other members of the subcommittee then went to the Hotel Pennsylvania, where the full scale committee was waiting for them.

The contract was read and unanimously approved, cheers greeting the announcement of the vote. Coatless, in the heat of early evening, the committee members gathered around Mr. Lewis, Thomas Kennedy, Secretary-treasurer; Philip Murray, vice president, and the three district presidents who completed the subcommittee, John Boylan, Michael Hartneady and Mart Brennan, and shook their hands in congratulation. A standing vote of thanks previously had been given them.

Yielded on One Point.

The miners yielded on only one important point, that of equalization of work during slack times among the various mines or individual companies and the final clause of the agreement might be interpreted as covering that point, at least providing for its later consideration by the permanent committee.

The deliberations have been free from rancor and apparently free of any outstanding differences. One factor contributing to this condition was that the operators were not seeking a reduction in wages at this time, always the main issue in other conferences.

Tariff Commission May Meet Delay

Hoover Doubts Nominations Will Reach Senate at This Session.

(Associated Press.)

Doubt was expressed yesterday by President Hoover that nominations for the reconstructed tariff commission would be sent to the Senate for confirmation at this session.

Pointing out that the six members of the commission are to represent both parties; that they must represent different regions of the country and fill other requirements, the President said he would need more than two or three weeks in which to form the commission.

The membership of the newly created power commission also may be held up until the December session of Congress. Mr. Hoover said he had been unable to complete the group and that if necessary the three members of the Cabinet who now compose the power commission could carry on until December.

WHALEN QUESTIONED ON RED DOCUMENTS

Purported Data From Files of Trading Company Are Given House Group.

PLAN SECRET SESSION

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—The special House Communist investigating committee today received from former Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen photostatic copies of documents alleged to show that Soviet Russia, through the Amtorg Trading Co., a commercial agency handling Russian business in the United States, was attempting to foment industrial revolution in this country.

He said he could demonstrate the authenticity of the documents, which Amtorg representatives have branded forgeries. The Amtorg side of the case is to be heard next week.

At Mr. Whalen's request the committee agreed to hear at a secret session testimony of undercover men on the authenticity of the literature, which, he said, had been in the files of the Amtorg Co. In order to protect the undercover men and their families from harm by the Communists, Mr. Whalen said, the hearing must be secret.

Whalen Two Hours Late.

Mr. Whalen kept the committee waiting nearly two hours. Sheduled to appear at 10 a. m. he arrived at 11:50 after the committee had issued a subpena for him. He apologized, explaining he was under a misapprehension as to the time for him to testify.

Launching into his testimony, Mr. Whalen asserted that many of the Communist leaders had criminal records. Their avowed purpose, he said, was to overthrow the Government by violence.

He recommended rigid deportation laws, registration and fingerprinting of all aliens, a Federal agency to handle all propaganda and compulsory teaching of American history in all schools. If legislation could be enacted to deport about 500 of the Communist leaders, he said, he believed it would be the end of the movement here.

Discussing the copies of Communist documents he claimed were taken from the Amtorg files, he said the originals had been sent back to Moscow.

Bachmann Quizzes Witness.

"It is your idea that the Amtorg is aiding the Communist agitation in this country?" asked Representative Bachmann, of West Virginia.

"I have no knowledge other than is contained in these documents," Mr. Whalen replied.

"You have no opinion you care to express?"

"None whatsoever except one based on the documents."

While the committee was waiting for Mr. Whalen to arrive, S. Stanwood Menken, president and chairman of the board of the National Security League, urged that deportation laws be enacted to oust Communists, and appealed for an educational campaign among school children to counteract the Moscow influence.

He said he would make an American Communist "a man without a country."

Fairfax's Master To Fight Charges

Capt. Archie Brooks Will Make Vigorous Defense in U. S. Hearing.

Baltimore, Md., July 18 (A.P.).—Capt. Archie Brooks, of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Co. steamship Fairfax, has engaged counsel and will conduct a vigorous defense against charges preferred against him in the collision of his ship and the tanker Pinthis, off Massachusetts, June 10, with the loss of 49 lives.

Brooks would make no statement today. His attorney, T. B. Swank, declared that the captain would call witnesses in his defense at the hearing before Federal steamboat inspectors, two of whom filed the charges against him after a preliminary investigation.

Brooks is charged with operating the vessel at excessive speed in the fog, failing properly to maneuver his ship when the tanker was sighted, and with neglecting to have sufficient search made for survivors.

Borah Today Will Visit Johns Hopkins Hospital

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, chairman of the foreign relations committee, will go to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, today, it was announced at his office yesterday. The senator visited the hospital Thursday for an examination and his visit today is for a consultation as to the results of his previous visit.

Exhaustion from the prolonged session over the London naval treaty and the possibility of a minor operation were indicated as the reasons for his visits.

HUNDREDS BELIEVED KILLED IN TYPHOON

GALE BRINGS LANDSLIDE

Tokyo, July 18 (A.P.).—Swirling out of the western Pacific, a wind and rain storm of cyclonic proportions slashed its way today across the Loochoo and Kiushiu Islands in southern Japan and swept unabated northwestward across Korea, leaving widespread death and damage in its wake.

Ships were smashed and sunk, houses collapsed and landslides were caused by the gale and downpour that ripped across the Korea Strait at 100 miles an hour.

One report said a village of 300 on Kiushiu Island was buried in a landslide loosened by rain. The governor of Nagasaki Prefecture said many ships in Nagasaki Harbor capsized with an undetermined number of casualties. Several bodies were recovered.

A Rengo dispatch from Fusan, important Korean seaport, said the storm struck at noon, crushing buildings and causing a panic. It continued inland undiminished.

Even tonight, hours after the peak of the typhoon, only fragmentary reports were available, due to disrupted communications and confusion, but authorities pieced these reports together and estimated the dead would run into hundreds in southern Japan and Korea.

No definite estimate of damage was possible, but it was considered the worst typhoon in 40 years.

Electric light plants on Kiushiu Island were put out of commission and people were without lights and newspapers tonight.

Aside from Korean towns, whence reports were lacking, it was believed the cities of Nagasaki, Kagoshima, Fukuoka, Kokura, Umamoto, Omuta and Moji bore the brunt of the storm.

REPLY OF ENGLAND ROCKS BRIAND PLAN

PRESS URGES REVISION

Paris, July 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The British reply to the memorandum of Foreign Minister Aristide Briand suggesting formation of a federal union of European states, made public yesterday, has dealt such a severe blow to the project that in some quarters here it is now believed doomed, at least in the form originally conceived by the veteran French statesman.

London's criticisms of Briand's plan are regarded as sound and justified by many French political observers and commentators in the press.

"Eyes have been opened to the probable consequences of too ambitious a scheme," says Le Journal des Debats, referring by implication to the fact that both Germany and Italy made use of Briand's memorandum to hint at revision of the treaty of Versailles. "The wisest thing is not to insist further, but to reduce the project to modest proportions.

"Some of the replies received show a good way of arranging everything without wounding anybody. Sweden suggests a mere convocation of European states during regular meetings of the League of Nations with a view to general debate, whenever that might be thought desirable.

"England proposes eventual formation of European committees of the assembly, council and technical sections of the league. She also would like Briand's project to be discussed at the next assembly of the League of Nations.

"These ideas are worth examining. Their adoption would remove evident objections to the original scheme."

The Quai d'Orsay is editorially urged not to consider its honor pledged in pursuit of the enterprise. The opinion is voiced in several quarters that reasonable adaptation of the scheme to provide some kind of a European Union could then be made possible.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

WHAT appeared in many quarters to be a definite break between the President and Senator George H. Moses developed yesterday in the latter's attack on the naval treaty.

It was not because the senator voiced opposition to the treaty. He is one of the Senate irreconcilables. It was the language he used which can hardly be interpreted in other way than an attack upon the President and his Secretary of State.

Senator Borah, known the country over as the President's outstanding opponent in the Senate, is always studiously careful not to make any stinging references to the President. He apparently tries to avoid mentioning his name.

It is not infrequent at all that administration senators find it necessary to vote against the President on particular matters. Some of the staunchest ones, Senator Hale, for example, are against him on this naval treaty. But in these instances they do not go out of their way to incur the permanent disfavor of the White House.

• • • •

IT is hard to see, indeed, that Henry Clay spoke any stronger against Andrew Jackson and his speech is carried everywhere in history under the heading "Clay's Attack on Jackson." It is pointed out that Senator Moses' remarks could have been paraphrased to take out much of the sting if not all of it and yet preserve his thought. Had he said the President had "affronted the Senate" it would not have been as bad as saying he affronted the people of the country which in effect, he did say.

As a matter of fact, observers were inclined to think that the senator's attack was a calculated revolt against the whole present order of things which there is reason to believe is not to his liking at all.

• • • •

FOR one thing, the senator is openly arrayed against two of the President's advisers, Postmaster General Brown and James Francis Burke, who are out after the scalp of Chairman Huston, of the Republican national committee.

It has never been authoritatively stated just what is the President's attitude toward the Huston case, although there have been a lot of representations and misrepresentations about it. But a fair conclusion would seem to be that Mr. Brown and Mr. Burke would hardly have continued their activity against Mr. Huston if it was distasteful to the President. Moses is standing solidly behind Huston and solidly against the selection of Senator Fess as chairman in the event Huston is displaced.

• • • •

FOLLOWING his remarks yesterday the usual ripple ran through the ranks of the Young Turks that Moses should be displaced as chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee. The Young Turks are always talking of something like this, though, without doing anything, and it is doubtful if they could.

One serious grievance they have against the senator just now, probably more poignant than his attack yesterday, is his part in prolonging the treaty session. As chairman of the campaign committee, the Young Turks say, Moses should be the first one to let them go home and campaign.

At any rate, the New Hampshire senator seems more and more to be drawing off to himself, a lone wolf, so to speak, but ready to spring, incidentally, to the right side when political things become settled again.

SENATE IN NIGHT SESSION TO FINISH DEBATE ON TREATY

as they directed remarks against the treaty and the treaty makers.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, who held the floor for two hours at dinner time, read almost all of his speech—much of the time in a voice barely audible to any one in the chamber.

Taunts Treaty Proponents.

Senator Johnson began his second speech by taunting the treaty's friends to join the debate, but they sat silent biding their time for a vote.

The treaty foes made no effort to break the quorum. Their united attendance alone yielded the needed 49 at the late evening roll call.

In his night address, Senator Johnson was obviously fatigued by the long contest. His usual rapid-fire delivery was gone and he was forced to read his speech.

Crowds gathered as the night wore on and the galleries were well filled for the first night session. Leaders intend to resume today at 10 a. m. and work through again until night.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, who has been counted among the supporters of the treaty, spoke for more than an hour during the night. He complained that the treaty called for $1,000,000,000 more in ship construction.

Senator Reed Replies.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, one of the delegates to London, was drawn into the debate for the first time during the day by this remark. He said the treaty did require that construction to reach parity with Great Britain, but he said the cost of parity would be much greater if the treaty were not ratified.

Senator Johnson introduced the following additional reservation last night:

"Nothing contained in this treaty shall be so construed as to require the United States of America to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon, interfering with or entangling itself in the political question of policy or internal administration of any foreign State; nor shall anything contained in the said treaty be construed to imply the relinquishment by the United States of America of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions.

Admiral to Quit After Pact Fight

Japanese Navy Minister May Be Forced Out Sooner, Is Report.

New York, July 19 (Saturday) (A. P.).—A Tokyo dispatch to the New York Times today said that the correspondent of that paper had learned that Admiral Takarabe, minister of the navy, intended to resign his post when the London naval treaty has been acted upon finally.

The Times correspondent thought it possible he might be forced out of office before then. The minister was represented as feeling that his post had become untenable as a consequence of the controversy which has been waged in naval circles over the London treaty.

Admiral Takarabe was said to believe the treaty a great asset to Japan and to desire from patriotic motives to exert every effort to bring about its ratification irrespective of the consequences to himself. Admiral Abo is mentioned as the most likely successor to Admiral Takarabe.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 18 (A.P.). Burt Barton, whose lung was punctured by a fragment of glass during an automobile accident, hiccoughed for four days and could not swallow liquid.

Then Dr. R. M. Alexander, county physician, forced the patient to breathe carbon dioxide gas, commonly used in in charging carbonated drinks. The hiccoughs stopped and Barton is recovering.

Lawson Will Accept Water Commission Post

Mexico City, July 18 (A.P.).—L. M. Lawson, American member of the International Boundary Commission, said today he would accept an appointment as special commissioner on the International Waters Commission offered him by the State Department. As soon as he has completed his present work with the Boundary Commission he will begin studying the data assembled by the Waters Commission.

The boundary commissioners will receive on Monday the joint engineers' report on the proposed straightening of the Rio Grande River in the region of El Paso. After that they will spend from a week to ten days in making their recommendations to serve as a basis for a treaty.

Police Seek Auto Which Hit Another

Two Occupants Are Hurt as Sedan Sideswipes Light Vehicle.

Police of all precincts were on the lookout last night for a large sedan that was reported to have struck a smaller automobile near Soldiers' Home at 7:30 o'clock, causing injuries to the two occupants of the latter machine.

Those injured were George W. Grant, 17 years old, of 638 Park road northwest, and Margaret Petrola, 16 years old, of 662 Park road. Grant received severe body bruises and a fracture of the right ankle, while the girl sustained bruises of the arm and leg. They were treated by Dr. P. Litvin at Soldiers' Home Hospital.

The accident occurred on the road between the dairy and the hospital at Soldiers' Home when the large car tried to pass the machine operated by Grant. The youth told police that he made way for the car, but that the latter machine sideswiped his own car, causing it to turn over. Grant said the latter car was traveling at a high rate of speed.

Americans Debate On Kellogg Pact

Views Laid Before Session of Interparliamentary Union in London.

London, July 18 (A.P.).—Three American members of Congress today took a prominent part in discussions of the Kellogg pact at the fifth session of the interparliamentary union conference.

Representatives Morton D. Hull, of Chicago, Fiorella H. La Guardia, of New York, and Burton L. French, of Idaho, put their views before the delegates expressing the opinions of widely separated American constituencies.

The Chicagoan opened with the statement that reexamination of the treaty was needed with a view to securing international cooperation to prevent war. Representative La Guardia told the parliamentarians that peace work could not be left to professional diplomats but must be undertaken by each citizen of every country.

FLORIAN LAMPERT DIES FROM HURTS

Wisconsin Member of House Was Active on District Committee.

CAUGHT IN AUTO WRECK

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Florian Lampert, representative in Congress from the Sixth Wisconsin District, died today from injuries received in an automobile accident ten days ago as he was motoring to his home from Washington. He was 67 years old.

Mr. Lampert died in a Chicago Heights hospital. He had suffered numerous fractures and internal injuries when his automobile skidded into a ditch after colliding with a truck. He was accompanied by Charles F. Nolan, a student at Georgetown University in Washington, who was not hurt.

Mr. Lampert, a Republican, had served in the House of Representatives since 1916.

Representative Florian Lampert was one of the most active members of the District of Columbia committee of the House. He attended nearly all meetings—a rare virtue where members and the District are concerned—and fought vigorously for or against several pieces of legislation.

In the last session he was particularly interested in two bills—the Capper-Zihlman bill to raise the pay of the policemen and firemen, and the Bowman bill to authorize small loans here at a monthly interest rate of 3½ per cent.

Representative Lampert worked hard to get the pay bill through, and just as hard to block action on the small loans bill. The latter measure, he charged, would legitimatize loan sharks in the District.

A resolution expressing regret over the death of Representative Lampert was adopted by the Senate last night upon the proposal of Senator La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin. Six senators were named to attend the funeral. They are Blaine, Wisconsin; Frazier and Nye, North Dakota; and McMaster, South Dakota, all Republicans; and Steck (Democrat), of Iowa; and Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota.

Denver, Colo., July 18 (A.P.).—Gov. Adams tonight refused a last-minute reprieve for Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier, expected to hang tonight for the murder of four men killed in connection with the holdup, in 1928, of the First National Bank of Lamar, Colo.

The request to spare the lives of the two men was made by representatives of the Colorado Bankers Association, Chief of Police Hugh Harper, of Colorado Springs, and Ralph L. Carr, United States district attorney for Colorado.

SERIOUSLY ILL

REPRESENTATIVE J. J. DOUGLASS.

Member of House Taken to Hospital

John Douglass, Democrat, Massachusetts, Ill With Hemorrhages.

Boston, July 18 (A.P.).—Representative John J. Douglass, Democratic representative of the Tenth Massachusetts District, was removed from his home in East Boston to the City Hospital this morning in what, physicians there said, was a serious condition.

The representative was stricken with pulmonary hemorrhages early in the morning and the family physician ordered his immediate removal to the hospital. Eight years ago Mr. Douglass suffered a similar attack of pulmonary trouble, which nearly cost his life.

The representative is 57 years old and is serving his third term as a member of the House from the Tenth District.

been the practice to include only the postoffice deficit. Otherwise, real comparisons would be destroyed by the variations in postoffice operations.

"Including the estimated postal deficit the total budget estimates of expenditures for the present fiscal year are $4,203,254,457, as compared with actual expenditures for the last fiscal year of $3,994,152,487, or an increase of $209,101,970, being an increase of 5 per cent.

"The discussion today was directed to measures for reduction of expenditures below these estimates with a view to meeting possible reduction of revenue arising from slack times.

The Cabinet members and heads of independent agencies have undertaken a searching inquiry into every branch of the Government as to methods by which economies may be brought about for the present fiscal year without interfering in the program of aid to unemployment.

"I am confident that we will find measures for very considerable reductions of outlay below the amounts appropriated. What the amount may be can not be determined until we have completed our investigation."

Trusty Who Wed Clerk Flees Jail in Kentucky

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 18 (A.P.).—Edgar Doss, 21, who as a trusty won the heart of Miss Ruth Stephens, deputy county clerk, and married her while serving a term for housebreaking, escaped from the county jail today. His term would have expired August 2. Doss, a student in the University of Illinois, tired of college life, he said, and last winter joined a traveling show. He was stranded here, became drunk, robbed a house and was sentenced to six months.

While on leave as a trusty recently he eloped with Miss Stephens. He returned to jail and she went to Seattle, Wash., where he planned to join her later.

Graf Rides Storm Returning to Port

Zeppelin Is Compelled to Cruise Over Lake Waiting Lull in Winds.

Friedrichshafen, Germany, July 18 (A.P.).—The Graf Zeppelin, returning from a smooth 60-hour flight over Norway, Iceland, France and Switzerland, reached her home port tonight in a violent storm that delayed her landing and caused some anxiety for her safety among watchers on the ground.

The Graf was compelled to cruise over Lake Constance for about 20 minutes before there came a lull in the storm. Then she made a smooth landing at 7:52 p. m. (1:52 p. m., E. S. T.) and 25 minutes later was safe in her hangar.

All the passengers were enthusiastic about the flight which, under command of Capt. Ernest Lehmann, included a wide circuit over northern regions. Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the Italian dirigible Italia, wrecked in the Arctic two years ago, was the first passenger to step out of the gondola. He appeared very cheerful and he expressed the highest admiration for the Graf. A group of Americans was among the 22 passengers.

Lunch Club Atop New York Puts Bars Against Women

Mere Male Finds Refuge 66 Stories Up in Chrysler Building Where Fine Views Are Free But Cigars Cost Two Dollars.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—The mere male at last has found a retreat where the merry modern woman can not plant her pretty heels—but he had to go up 66 stories to do it.

The Cloud Club, one of the most expensive and exclusive luncheon clubs in the world, has opened its doors on the three top floors of the 68-story Chrysler Building—and no wife, mother or sweetheart is going to put her foot in there.

Only one woman is allowed within its portals. She is Miss Josephine Riley, the petite brunette telephone operator, whose first and foremost business is to see that the primary rule of the club is obeyed.

The membership of the organization includes the names of Vanderbilt, Firestone, Whitney and Chrysler; its view embraces two rivers, a harbor and distant mountain peaks, and its food, furnishings and knick-knacks are the most unobtrusively expensive that can be found. Even a cigar costs $2.

There's a barber chair on the 67th floor that commands a striking view, a Roman bath lined with mosaic tiles, a library and a taproom designed in the likeness of an old English tavern—with a soft drink bar.

Nine private dining rooms, varying in decoration from the old-fashioned mahogany type to the modernistic setting of a machine age room and an airplane room, are equipped for private parties. The club doors are open only during the luncheon hours.

The cost of membership?—that's a secret.

EGYPTIAN MINISTER HITS INTERFERENCE

Sees No Need for Warships and Objects to Tenor of British Note.

ORDER HELD RESTORED

Alexandria, Egypt, July 18 (A.P.).—Prime Minister Ismail Sidky Pasha of Egypt, in an official note tonight accused the British government of having intervened in Egypt's sovereign affairs in connection with Tuesday's serious rioting here.

He objected to the tenor of a communication, announced in the House of Commons Wednesday by Prime Minister MacDonald, from Sir Percy Loraine, British high commissioner in Egypt, in which Sidky Pasha was informed that Great Britain "must hold him responsible for the protection of foreign lives and property in Egypt."

Commenting on the arrival today of two British warships, he said that the reestablishment of order and tranquility made their presence unnecessary.

British Warships Arrive.

The warships, the Princess Elizabeth and the Ramillies, arrived here today.

Sidky Pasha responded to the assertion by Mr. MacDonald that "his majesty's government did not intend to be used as an instrument for an attack on the Egyptian constitution," by declaring:

"This declaration would have been justified had the Egyptian government solicited the aid of the British government in that direction.

"But in the absence of such a request—which, moreover, will not be made because of Egypt's position as an independent state—the declaration can not be interpreted as other than intervention, in a determined way, in which Great Britain in previous declarations has recognized as Egypt's sovereign prerogative."

As to the riots, in which 14 persons were killed and 56 seriously injured, including 8 Europeans, Sidky Pasha asserted that the local authorities had quickly gained control of the situation and calm had soon been restored.

Intends to Protect Foreigners.

"The safety of lives and the security of the interests of foreigners in Egypt," he said, "received the attention of the ministry at the outset. foreigners living in Egypt are aware of this and evidence of their confidence is not lacking

"Knowing my duty to protect them, and persuaded that the means at my disposal permit me amply to fulfill the obligations of my ministry, I do not evade for an instant the responsibilities alluded to in the British government's communication, through the communication is not of a nature to facilitate the task which I am resolved to accomplish.

"Order and tranquillity have been restored, the presence of the British warships in Egyptian waters is no longer required for the proposed object of safeguard."

In conclusion, the Egyptian premier said the British government's communication could be interpreted as calling in question the Egyptian government's exclusive authority.

Fight on Robinson Draws Party Fire

Little Rock, Ark., July 18 (A.P.).—A resolution condemning the alleged activities of J. A. Comer, Little Rock Republican leader and former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Arkansas, in behalf of Tom W. Campbell in the latter's race against Senator Joe T. Robinson, was adopted by the Pulaski County (Little Rock) Democratic central committee today.

The resolution charged that Comer was seeking to discredit Senator Robinson before the Nation and thereby prevent his possible nomination for the Presidency by the Democrats in 1932.

The former klan chieftain was accused in the resolution of conducting a "whispering" campaign and had become a "disturbing factor" in the Democratic party. The resolution said the committee was not sponsoring the candidacy of either Robinson or Campbell, but resented what were termed "unfair" activities of Comer in Campbell's behalf.

Disabled Civil Service Workers Given Leave

(Associated Press.)

Disabled World War veterans who are employed under the civil service yesterday were permitted in an Executive order issued by President Hoover to take unlimited leave without pay to obtain medical treatment.

Under present regulations Government employes are allowed one month sick leave and are subject to discharge for further absence. The order also permits them to take treatment for their war injuries without penalty in efficiency rating.

Legion Post Picks Five To Attend Convention

Five delegates and five alternates were named yesterday by the James E. Walker Post of the American Legion to attend the convention of that organization to be held in August in the auditorium of the Western High School. They included West. A. Hamilton, Dr. T. Edward Jones, Louis A. Russell, Harry O. Atwood, J. Franklin Wilson, Charles S. Lomax, John F. Porter, Charles H. Coates, Alfred Valentine and W. R. Fauntroy.

The post appointed Hamilton, Wilson and Jones as a committee to take up with police authorities the promiscuous use of firearms by members of the police force.

DROUGHT INCREASES; NO RELIEF IS SEEN

HEAT GRIPS MIDWEST

as severe through Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas, while parts of Missouri, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Texas, and Oklahoma grew drier hourly with no relief in sight.

J. B. Kincer chief of the Weather Bureau's division of agricultural meteorology, calculated yesterday that in one State—Ohio—the shortage of rainfall on the basis of normal precipitation has actually amounted to 140,000,000 tons of water a day for the past 137 days.

If this deleted moisture had to be carried into the State for use by farmers, municipal water plants and water power companies, Kincer said, it would mean 25,000 trains of 100 cars each would be needed every day. Each car of every train, he said, would have to carry 50 tons of water.

During the period from March 1 to July 17, Dr. Kincer continued, only 64 per cent of normal rainfall had been experienced throughout the Buckeye State while other drought-clutched States have been in an even worse plight.

Fifty Per Cent in Kentucky.

In Kentucky, from March 1 to June 1, he said, there has been only 50 per cent of normal rainfall, while over a seven-month period, starting with December, Virginia has had only 65 per cent, and West Virginia only 66 per cent.

Warning already has been issued in parts of Maryland that unless rain falls inhabitants will be forced to curtail their water consumption by half. C. L. Mitchell, Weather Bureau forecaster, was at a loss yesterday concerning the actual cause of the long continued drought. Heavy rains, he said, are caused by "disturbances" in the upper air currents, which, in the United States, move almost without exception from southwest to northeast, and there has been "very, very few 'disturbances.'"

"The phenomenon is a complicated mechanism which we do not altogether understand," Mitchell said. "Research has not yet discovered their cause or the reason for their frequency or infrequency."

The forecaster said although local thundershowers may be expected over parts of the wide area gripped by the drought, there was nothing on the weather map now that could be expected to develop the heavy precipitation needed to break the dry spell.

Rain fell recently over North and South, Carolina and Georgia, giving relief from the drought, he said, while the Northeastern States and certain of the Northern Lake States have had nearer a normal rainfall.

Heat Still Holds Midwest.

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Heat held the Middle West in its torrid grasp today with the mercury ascending to record-breaking heights at several points. A number of sunstroke victims were reported in Chicago.

The Government thermometer at Omaha, Nebr., was read at 106 degrees, breaking all July records in the Nebraska metropolis.

In the same State the town Beatrice sweltered under a blanket of heat, which sent the mercury soaring to 110 degrees. At Lincoln, Nebr., the mercury rose to 107, the hottest July 18 since 1911.

The record for July 18 in Chicago was broken when 99 was registered. Even Lake Michigan was warm, registering 68 degrees, the highest of the year. Thousands found relief by splashing in its waters, nevertheless.

At Canton, Ill., the temperature mounted to 102. In that vicinity it was reported the corn crop was suffering badly, not only from the heat, but also from drought.

St. Louis, Mo., reported a temperature of 101, 5 degrees less than the season's record. It was 104 at Des Moines.

Roland Hayes Concert Nets Association $205

As a benefit from the Roland Hayes concert held in April at the Belasco Theater, Mrs. Milton A. Francis yesterday turned over to the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, through Archibald S. Pinkett, secretary, a check for $205. Proceeds from the concert were $2,496.50, and the benefit to the association represents the balance after deduction of expenses.

Mrs. Francis acted for the ladies' service group of the association, which annually sponsors a benefit for it.

NORRIS OPPONENT RULED OUT OF RACE

SENATOR HEARS RESULT

P. Nye, chairman, would preside over the investigation.

The filing of the Broken Bow grocer, whose name is identical with that of Nebraska's senior senator, has created an unusual situation in Nebraska politics. Senator Norris' friends said it was a scheme to confuse the voters and argued that the filing of "Norris No. 2" was received after the time limit set by law.

The secretary of State held, however, that the grocer's filing was in the mails before the time had expired, and was therefore legal. He said the two could be designated by their home towns, but the senator's friends yesterday filed an appeal with the State supreme court. Meanwhile, Senator Norris' friends say he is considering withdrawing from the Republican race and running as an Independent.

Candidate Out of Town.

Healy, the Senate committee's investigator, interviewed several Broken Bow citizens today and said a United States marshal was serving subpenas for tomorrow's hearing. Newspaper men were unable to locate the Broken Bow Norris and his friends indicated he was not in the city.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, last night accepted the ruling of the Supreme Court, barring from the Republican senatorial primary ballot the second George W. Norris, as final and abandoned plans for running as an independent.

The decision of the Supreme Court of Nebraska was communicated to the senator late last night. He made no statement but said he accepted it as final.

While Senator Norris had made no declaration that he would run as an independent his friends were prepared to announce his withdrawal from the Republican ticket should the second George W. Norris be allowed to run on the same ticket.

Senator Norris said he would go to Nebraska as soon as the treaty fight is over in the Senate to wage his campaign for renomination in the Republican primary next month.

HEALING SERVICES COMMON IN CAPITAL

Many Denominations Have Regular Periods Set for Special Rites.

RELIC AT ST. ALOYSIUS

"A service for intercessory prayer and healing will be held every Thursday at 8 p. m. Those in need of spiritual and physical adjustment are invited."

So runs a little notice sent to The Post by the Rev. Walter M. Michael, pastor of Brightwood Park Methodist Church.

This is one of the most significant trends in the modern church—its turning back to Apostolic customs and practices. The power of healing was given to the church, for the Apostles at Pentecost exercised it and in their later ministry they healed every manner of disease, even raising the dead.

The church still holds to the faith that this power is lodged in her, and, more and more, many of the denominations are trying to call this power into use—some by prayer, some by laying on of hands, and some by relics and prayers.

Health Clinics Held.

In some of the Protestant denominations so-called health clinics are being held at which the mentally and physically ill are being treated. The Rev. Moses R. Lovell, minister of the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, has the most notable of these clinics in Washington. He is assisted by several experts, medical men and others, and his clinic is reputed to be having rather unusual success.

At the Full Gospel Tabernacle the Rev. Harry L. Collier, the minister, conducts a regular healing service every week, to which people come from all over the city.

The Catholics do not believe in the so-called health clinic, yet in many of their churches they do practice healing, particularly with relics of saints. It is probably not generally known that at St. Aloysius Church, at I and North Capitol streets, a healing service is held every Saturday night, which is attended by five or six hundred people from all parts of Washington.

Services at St. Aloysius.

The Rev. M. P. Fitzpatrick, pastor of St. Aloysius, told The Post yesterday that this service has been going on for a number of years, without intermission.

"We are fortunate," said he, "in having a piece of bone from the right arm of St. Francis Xavier, the great Jesuit missionary, who died in India. This relic, we believe, has the virtue of healing; and it is because we have this supernatural agent that we are enabled to hold our Saturday night novenas with such splendid success. A novena is a nine-day prayer, and our service is a prayer service. We ask St. Francis to intercede with God for us in granting our petitions, provided they are for the glory of God or for the good of our souls."

Father Fitzpatrick has arranged a special ritual for this service, and he always presides in the pulpit and makes the intercessory prayers to St. Francis himself. This ritual is made up of hymns, prayers, responses by the congregation, a discourse and a benediction.

Nature of Relic Cited.

The piece of bone that is used at St. Aloysius was taken, Father Fitzpatrick said, from the right arm of St. Francis Xavier, "an arm that baptized and blessed thousands in India." It was severed from his body after his burial in the church at Goa, and is now in the possession of the general of the society at Rome. Very few Jesuit churches have such a relic.

In explaining the virtue of relics in healing, Father Fitzpatrick said that Catholics do not think there is any inherent virtue in the relic itself, but that it has a supernatural potency like the shadow of St. Peter, which wrought miracles.

There are seven Catholic churches in Washington that during the week of March 4 to 12 hold what is known as the Great Novena. March 12 is the anniversary of the canonization of St. Francis.

Christian Science churches all practice healing and have regular healers who devote all their time to that work.

REV. WOODING PLANS TO STAY IN CAPITAL

Presbyterian Pastor in Eckington Decides Not to Answer Call.

MANY CHANGES NOTED.

Eckington Presbyterian Church will not lose its pastor, the Rev. Henry B. Wooding, who has recently received a call to Central Presbyterian Church in Chambersburg, Pa. Mr. Wooding will make the official announcement of his staying from his pulpit tomorrow morning.

In the four years that Mr. Wooding has been pastor of this old church he has made a strong place for himself in the loving hearts of his people. Their loyalty, it seems, does not end there, for they have a peculiar attachment to their church.

The tides of population have changed around the neighborhood of Eckington Church, and now it is inhabited largely by a foreign element. With this change many of the members of the church moved their residence to other sections of the city, and the manse was also moved to a distant community. Yet the people have continued to flock to their old church, and their minister has faithfully served them with a ministry of love and self-sacrifice.

The big feature of Eckington Church is its young people's work. This year this congregation sent the largest delegation of any of the churches of Washington or Baltimore to the young people's conference at Hood College, Frederick, Md.

Mr. Wooding is a native of Ottawa, Canada, and received his collegiate education in that country and his theology at McCormick Seminary, Chicago. He took his postgraduate work at United Free College in Glasgow, Scotland, where he became dyed the deepst Presbyterian blue in the whole theological prism. This, however, hasn't injured his preaching or his attractiveness as a man.

His first pastorate was in Illinois, and nine years ago he came to Washington to supply Eckington pulpit during the vacation of the pastor, Dr. Henry E. Brundage, and when the latter resigned four years ago was called to the vacant pulpit.

A wife and three children the Lord has blessed him with. His son will be a minister and his eldest daughter a missionary. This is what you might call the apostolic succession—in John Knox's church, at least. For if the manse and the home of the Christian elder did not furnish the seminaries with their young men where would the preachers come from?

A dramatized program will be presented by Mrs. Pollard at the devotional meeting of Bethany Union No. 1 tomorrow night. The Young People's Unions of Bethany will have charge of the Sunday evening church service on July 27.

Arlene Conderman and group No. 5 will present the program at First Baptist Church Union tomorrow night. Margaret Stough and group No. 3 will lead the Bible quiz, and Jean Vassar, captain of group No. 1, will have charge of the social hour at 6:15 o'clock.

At tonight's joint meeting of the Intermediate and Senior Unions of the National Baptist Memorial Church, the intermediates will present the program.

Princeton Clergyman To Be Guest Preacher

The guest minister at the Church of the Covenant (Presbyterian) tomorrow morning will be the Rev. W. Sherman Skinner, of Princeton Theological Seminary. Mr. Skinner is the fourth of the interesting group of ministers who are serving the Covenant this summer during the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Albert Joseph McCartnye, who is in California on vacation.

Mr. Skinner's father, the Rev. William F. Skinner, has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Gouveneur, N. Y., for 40 years.

Sentence Sermons

By THE REV. HENRY B. WOODING

WORRY.

Worry robs the eye of light, the mind of quietness, the soul of hope, the home pleasure and life of cheer. No one seeks the company of worrying hearts. Worry has never been known to convey good, achieve success or give health. It is parasitical. Worrying is the antithesis of trusting. The Christian's worries become his trespasses.

We worry over things as though peace of mind came from possessions. As we vacation in field and forest, let us remember the illustrations of the Great Teacher concerning the lily, sparrow and raven, together with His comment, "Your Heavenly Father feedeth them." Will He do less for His children?

We worry over the years. The older we grow the less we should worry.

Victor Hugo once said that he would rather be 50 than 40. "Forty," he said, "is the age of youth. Fifty is the youth of age." Harriet Beecher Stowe wrote on her eighty-third birthday, "The longer I drink of the cup of life the sweeter it tastes. The sugar is all at the bottom." Life's funny paradox is, the mind oftentimes frets and fears when it has nothing to worry over.

"I joined the new don't worry club
And now I hold my breath.
For fear that I will worry
I'm worried most to death."

Worry and laughter are incompatible. Let us laugh.

The lasting cure for worry is in the Pharmacopoeia of God. Listen to the Hebrew poet: "The Lord is my shepherd." "Thou shalt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Jehovah." Ponder the apostle's statement: "I have learned in whatsoever state, I am, therewith to be content."

In the plans for a bigger and better Washington, how would this do for a slogan, "The City of Contented Hearts!" but then, how can this come true if you, dear reader, still persist in worrying?

Jesus calls us; o'er the tumult
Of our life's wild, restless sea,
Day by day His sweet voice soundeth,

Girl Invalid Founds Christ Child Society

Miss Mary Herrick, Hurt by Fall From Tree, Plans Life Work.

By DAVID RANKIN BARBEE.

An apple tree brought woe to the human race, and an apple tree has brought joy to mankind. In the first instance a woman plucked of the fruit and gave it to the man, and that first disobedience brought sin into the world. In the second instance a beautiful and lovely young girl fell from the tree, suffered injuries that have made her an invalid for life, and this accident turned her thoughts into humanitarian channels which have led to the establishment of a national organization that is unique in many ways.

As you pass down Indiana avenue near the District Court Building you can not help but notice a large sign that reads:

CHRIST CHILD HOUSE
HEADQUARTERS
CHRIST CHILD SOCIETY.

Maybe the very name will arrest your attention. Maybe you will turn over in your thoughts, as this writer has often done as he journeyed to and from the Library of Congress and the Capitol, what the "Christ Child Society" is, and what goes on in the "Christ Child House."

It is an interesting story of an amazing work done by a physically helpless woman, but it is an evidence of faith and an assurance of what will power properly directed can do.

In this wise the "Christ Child Society" came into being. Miss Mary Virginia Merrick, the founder, was spending the summer at her father's estate at Ellicott City, Md., in the year 1890. She was the idol of that home of brilliant men and women, and at 16 gave promise of a womanhood of exquisite charm and quality.

Fell While Climbing Tree.

While climbing in an apple tree, whether for sport or for fruit this annalist knows not, she missed her footing and fell to the ground. From that moment to this she has never walked; for years she lay helpless on her bed. Her limbs might not move and carry her, but her brain did, and her brain and her heart worked out the idea of this society, and have carried it along since 1891, with labors abundant and ever increasing.

Judge Richard T. Merrick, her father, who was one of the foremost men at the District bar, had no intentions of letting his daughter's education stop because of her invalidism. He worked out a program that seemed to suit the case admirably, and with the help of a French governess and his own kindly interest and encouragement, Miss Merrick became something of a scholar, attaining such proficiency in the French language that she was abled to make two notable translations of notable books, both happily related to her life work.

As the first Christmas of her illness approached her thoughts turned to the poor who would have no Santa Claus if kind hearts did not furnish him. And then she thought of the poor mothers with new-born babes who would have no pretty clothes in which to swaddle their infants when they made their appearance in this sin-cursed world.

Worked on Layettes.

With her to think was to act, and commandeering the services of her governess and a few friends, they set to work on layettes for the babes. She cut out the garments, and the two of them sewed them together and embroidered them and did other strange things to them which women love to clutter up an infant's clothes with.

Did you ever peep inside a layette? It is a revelation. Such dainty things, contrived of such rich material, and adorned with such pretty laces and flounces. There are stitches that go into baby clothes that no woman could make into any other garment. They seem to write a language all their own, and that language is often spoken in the baby talk which is the strangest dialect of human tongue and the only one that is universal. Even animals, the household cats and dogs, the parrot that swears like a drunken sailor and the canary that sings like an angel, know it, and give ear to it when mother or father, grandmother or nurse, gives it tongue.

It was with a baby, then, that this nationally known charity began, just as it was with a baby in a manger that the religion which Miss Merrick believes in began. Thus was initiated the first public charity in Washington of this nature.

From layettes to garments for growing children was but a necessary evolution and Miss Merrick's infant society enlarged its scope by making garments or making over garments for poor children from nonage up to 14. And almost immediately the Christmas idea for the poor children was evolved and adopted.

Others Invited to Join.

Such an institution could not be confined within one family circle, and the invalid girl invited other to join her and this was how the Christ Child Society came into being. Christianity is largely service and the larger part of the great commission is to "feed my sheep" and "clothe my lambs," which indeed is a gospel as much as that which the priest or minister preaches from the pulpit.

With characteristic energy Miss Merrick made her first report in 1891, and every year since there has been an annual report, showing how the work of the society is done, how it is growing, and what its needs are. In 1901 the society was given a formal organization, with a corps of volunteer workers, who did everything that is needed to be done to promote its endeavor. Two years later a constitution was adopted and a charter secured, and the latter reads: "The business and object of this society shall be to improve by useful instruction and charitable relief the condition of the poor children of the District of Columbia."

The idea of the Christ Child Society has spread to other cities and now it is to be found in 32 of them. Here in Washington the society has a membership of 1,400, and its national membership is 10,000. These figures do not mean a great deal, for they by no means tell the story of the results accomplished in bettering the condition of the poor.

Each society, while adhering strictly to the original idea that motivated the first society, marks out its own program of activity, but how comprehensive this is can be seen from the lines of work that Washington society is following.

Has Fresh Air Farm.

It maintains near Rockville a fresh air farm for children, and a convalescent home for the sick. It was the pioneer here in that charity, beginning it in 1891. Well-known pediatricians will give their services to this clinic. In 1901 it opened settlement work in several parts of the city where schools were conducted, and the children of aliens and others given the rudiments of an education and a knowledge of the Bible and its truths. Some of these had to be closed during the World War because their quarters were needed for war work.

A dental clinic is held regularly at its headquarters on Indiana avenue, and Scout Troop 92 meets there, and also the only cub troop in the city. In conjunction with them is a fine boys' club, which used the well-ordered gymnasium set up for their benefit. At headquarters is a library of books for boys and girls, brought together by a well-trained librarian, and here the poor children are to be seen reading under wise instruction books that will stimulate their untutored minds for knowledge.

As one of the Catholic Charities, this society is now a member of the Community Chest, and gets its sustentation funds largely from that source. But it has other means of replenishing its larder and its wardrobe. One of these is its continuing rummage sale, which is not always what its name means, for out of that rummage the discarded clothing of well-to-do people and other things they do not want, come many garments that will clothe poor boys and girls, and other useful articles that the poor are more than glad to get.

As a member of the Community Chest it has to have paid employes and an organization approved by that body. But outside of this small coterie it has a large number of volunteer workers who do every manner of service.

Work of Children Cited.

"Very small children collect pennies to buy shoes for the poor," says one document before me. "Young girls dress dolls to give away at Christmas. A blind woman knits infants' bonnets. A professional nurse donates her free hours, taking to the dispensary ailing children whose mothers are too busy or perhaps too ill to take them. For a period of three years a professional masseuse treated gratis a crippled child and members of the society gave her instruction in her books so that when she could walk she entered classes of children her own age."

It is the Christmas gifts to the poor that give so much pleasure, almost as much as the layettes, which still occupy first place in the affections and in the activities of the society and its founder.

"Long before Christmas members of the visiting committee go about their work, and wherever they find a home in which no hope of the coming of Christmas cheer abides, they tell the children of the Christ Child and promise them that He will not pass them by. The children are encouraged to write letters to the Christ Child and tell Him what they most want. These letters, indorsed by the visiting member, are then distributed among the whole membership of the society and thus every member has the joy of being able, in the name of the Christ Child, directly to respond to the expressed want of some poor child."

Old Evans Home Obtained.

There are a thousand stories of the visitations of Providence in moments of need connected with the life of this society. It seems that whenever the thing most needed is not to be had some one comes in with it, whether it be a "pink" sweater, a blue nightgown, or a pair of old rose-colored hose. And always the article is the right size.

For many years the society was housed on Pennsylvania avenue, but in recent years it has acquired the famous old home of "Fighting Bob" Evans, an admiral whose name is a household word. Every corner of it is used for the children. The walnut book cases in the sunny library are filled with all sorts of tiny garments for new-born babies, waiting to be boxed and sent to poor mothers. Every box contains 26 pieces. Each one is fit for a king. Recently one poor mother, when she saw how generous her layette was, exclaimed: "Why, I haven't got twins!"

Every day and almost every waking hour in the day, Miss Merrick is in close touch with the Christ Child Society. It is her baby, and she loves it, it is said, with a holy love. She has seen it grow and develop and widen and increase in stature until it is a rather large baby for one frail woman to carry around, but she is fully equal to the task.

BISHOP TO PREACH AT CAPITAL SERVICE

DR. LAMBETH PLANS REST

The Rev. W. A. Lambeth, pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church South, is regarded as one of the leading ministers in his denomination and one of the foremost preachers in the Washington pulpit. For eleven months in the year he gives his large and growing congregation every shot he has in the locker. And then comes August, when he takes his vacation.

Having an assistant, it would ordinarily be the regular course to move him up from the basement, where he preaches to the children, to the main auditorium, where the pastor's audience is seated. But Dr. Lambeth has worked out a better plan.

The genius of Methodism is its itinerancy with the "itinerant and general superintendent," or bishop, at its head. John Wesley never intended that his church should have any bishops, but an ocean separated him from his "Dear Frankie" Asbury, and so the first American itinerant general superintendent called himself a bishop and a bishop he was, despite the protest of Mr. Wesley.

Bishops to Be Heard.

For a century and a half the office has filled a great place in the economy of the church, North and South, and some very great men have filled the office. Even a very small man in the episcopacy—and there have been one or two, it is said—has an added dignity from the mere robes of his office.

Knowing how the Methodist people love their bishops, Dr. Lambeth has invited three of them to supply his pulpit while he is on his vacation. Those who are coming are Bishop Collins Denny, of Richmond, on August 3; Bishop Horace M. Dubose, of Winston-Salem, N. C., on August 10, and Bishop Warren A. Candler, of Atlanta, Ga., on August 17. These are three of the oldest members of the college in age, and Bishops Candler and Denny the oldest in point of service.

The Mount Vernon congregation has heard Bishops Denny and Candler many times in former years; indeed, they preached in that pulpit last summer while Dr. Lambeth was on his vacation. They are probably without peers in their own church as scholars, theologians and preachers, and both have been college professors.

Bishop Dubose Editor.

Bishop Dubose is a poet and editor of long years' service, and has had also many years in the pastorate in the South and in the West.

He has written a number of biographies of great Methodists and in recent years has taken a lively interest in archeology, having raised the means, from Duke University, to aid Prof. Ernest Sellin, the famous German scholar and archeologist, with his explorations in the Holy Land, which Bishop Dubose participated in.

It isn't every pulpit in the country that can have three such supplies in one month, and not every bishop in the world would want to take a long train trip in August, even to preach to such an intelligent congregation.

Lutheran Church Enjoying Growth

Dr. Rassmussen Comments on Fruits of His Ministry Here.

Luther Place Memorial Church has had a remarkable membership growth since Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen came here as its minister. Altogether he has had added 111 new members in the few weeks of his ministry.

Dr. Rasmussen announced yesterday that plans are going forward for the reception of new members a week from tomorrow.

"The experiences of the past few months abundantly demonstrate to me," said he, "that Washington has many thousands of people who have not been active in the work of the church, but who are glad to enlist in the army of the Lord for active duty, even in the summer time. Everywhere I go to invite such enlistment upon the part of those who visit our church I find people evincing great joy in accepting an invitation to share in the program that is going forward at Luther Place. I have a profound faith that Washington is one of the finest religious communities in the world."

MISSIONARY SESSION ENDS AT FREDERICK

PAGEANT IS PRESENTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Frederick, Md., July 18.—The annual summer missionary conference of the Reformed Church, embracing Maryland, the District of Columbia, southern Pennsylvania and portions of Virginia and West Virginia, in session at Hood College since July 12, concluded today with a pageant entitled "The Appearing Cross."

The Rev. Jesse B. Yeakey, a returned missionary from China, and Dr. Charles B. Schaeffer, of Philadelphia, president of the general synod of the Reformed Church, and general secretary of the board of home mission, were the final speakers. Dr. Schaeffer took for his theme "The American Church and Her Young People."

In a forceful defense of modern youth, Dr. Schaeffer said, in part: "Both the church and her young people are grossly misunderstood. They have been viewed superficially, not sympathetically. The elders call the young willful, insubordiante, lazy, egotistic, shiftless and thriftless. The young seem to be obsessed by jazz and a merry round of dances, movies and autos, and their dress and their deportment are called into question.

Criticism of Church.

"The church is likewise criticized, especialy by the young. They are out of step with its type of religion. They think this is cold, creedal, antiquated. Preachers are old fogies, mossbacks, put on pious airs and attitudes and have no vital or modern message.

"The first thing we need, then, is to come to close grips with both of these factors—the church and the young peoples. Modern youth has outdistanced every former generation. They are better physically, mentally and morally than were their fathers. They are not less religious, but they express their religion in another way. They stand supremely for the essentials of the Christian religion. They have a passion for reality. They hate sham and hypocrisy. They are more frank than were their forebears. They believe profoundly in the facts of science and in the finding of the new psychology. They have the courage of their convictions. They have little regard for anything that can not stand the mental and moral test of today. Consequently they are often in revolt against ancient orders and doctrines.

Break With Tradition.

"They do not hesitate to break with tradition and they renounce authority which is of an ipsi dixit character. The youth of today have a creative spirit. They blaze new trails and have the spirit of adventure in their blood.

"We must always remember that the young never asked to be born into this age. We older folks are responsible for that and if they seek to improve the present we should bid them God speed. They have so many more opportunities than the old folks had. The universe is changed, the discoveries and inventions of science have released forces which are at their disposal and through which they can either make or mar civilization.

"The future leadership of the church must be from the ranks of the young. But if they are true to themselves they will lead out new ventures and fresh fields of endeavor. The youth movements in every country today are a most hopeful sign. These young folks have high ideals and lofty principles, but they ask to express their religion along lines that are true to their own spirit and life."

Policies to Be Studied By Lutheran Believers

Arthur P. Black, executive secretary of the Laymen's Movement of the United Lutheran Church in America, who is a member of the Luther Place congregation, is planning a program for the local church through which all administrative and evangelistic policies of the Laymen's Movement will be put into effect there, and the congregation will be made a demonstration center where results can be studied by church leaders all over the country.

Mr. Black expects, in cooperation with Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, the pastor, to establish a school for the training of church workers for the every member canvass in the fall and for the upbuilding of a sentiment for support of the larger interests of the United Lutheran Church.

Pastors to Exchange Pulpits.

The Rev. T. E. Boorde, pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, will exchange pulpits tomorrow morning with the pastor of the Hyattsville Baptist Church. This means that both congregations will get some good preaching.

STEEL MERGER DATE VITAL ISSUE IN SUIT

Question in Relation to Pay of Eugene Grace Causes Court to Adjourn.

SCHWAB LETTER IS READ

Youngstown, Ohio, July 18 (A.P.).—The effective date of the contract for a merger between Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. and Bethlehem Steel Corporation became a vital issue in the suit to enjoin the deal today and caused Judge David G. Jenkins to adjourn court early to give it consideration over the week-end. The point as to when the merger would become effective was raised by the defense as attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests sought to have Eugene G. Grace reveal his 1929 earnings as president of Bethlehem, Eaton, a Cleveland capitalist, is chief foe of the merger.

Yesterday the court ruled that Grace could not be questioned about his salary and bonus prior to April 30, 1930, when, under the apparent terms of the contract, the merger would have been completed had the injunction suit not been filed.

Today, however, Attorney P. H. Wood, of defense counsel, informed the court that by mutual agreement the date for the merger had been extended to July 31, pending outcome of the suit.

Importance of Date.

Having ruled that Youngstown stockholders were not entitled to know how much compensation Grace received prior to the time they would have become stockholders of the Bethlehem Corporation, Judge Jenkins now must decide that date.

When he adjourned court, Judge Jenkins said:

"The court is of the opinion we have reached such an important and critical and, I may say, determining point in this case, that I desire sufficient time to deliberate and to permit counsel to throw any additional light on the subject. That causes me to adjourn this court."

Grace's salary and bonus figure in the suit because of the Eaton contention that concealment of his compensation from the Youngstown stockholders constituted fraud.

The Bethlehem president yesterday testified he received a salary of $12,000 and a bonus amounting to 1½ per cent of some factor unknown to himself. In an attempt to fix his compensation, Eaton attorneys today introduced a letter from Charles M. Schwab, Bethlehem chairman, detailing the corporation's bonus system.

Sliding Scale in Use.

The letter was written in 1917 and attached to minutes of a directors' meeting. It showed the bonus is paid by a sliding scale beginning at 4.73 per cent for net earnings of $2,000,000 less fixed charges and before depreciation. The percentage increases with every $2,000,000 until 6.58 per cent is paid at $12,000,000. The increase then goes in $4,000,000 jumps and 7.373 per cent is paid at $36,000,000. Over that a limit of 8 per cent applies.

In 1929 Bethlehem earned approximately $49,000,000 and it is estimated that at 8 per cent the bonus paid to its officers would amount to $3,700,000.

Boston, July 18 (A.P.).—A wireless dispatch received by the Associated Press today from Commander Donald B. MacMillan, reported his safe arrival at Reykjavik, Iceland, aboard the schooner Bowdoin, on which he sailed for the Arctic from Wiscasset, Me., June 21.

The trip, which is Commander MacMillan's eighth voyage to the Northland, was made for the purpose of checking previous scientific observations in Labrador and for further exploration in Greenland and Iceland.

In addition to his crew of five veterans of the Arctic, the commander has with him eight Chicago boys, among them 10-year-old William Thomas, jr., son of Dr. W. A. Thomas. Young Thomas is acting as cabin boy.

Zaro Agha of Turkey, 156, Arrives to See Young U. S.

ZARO AGHA, who arrived yesterday from Turkey. The 156-year-old patriarch seeks scientists who are willing to pay for the privilege of examining him. He is the father of 36 children.

Teetotaler to Let Savants See Man Who Grew Teeth at 105.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Zaro Agha, whose passport indicates he is 156 years old, settled himself luxuriously in a Park avenue hotel tonight and prepared to enjoy the advantages, esthetic, scientific and economic, of this young western world.

Agha landed today in Providence, R. I., from Turkey and announced he was here to see and be seen—by any American scientists who might care to pay for the privilege of observing a man who says he never tasted alcohol in his life, outlived eleven wives, became a father for the thirty-sixth time at the age of 96, and grew a third set of teeth when he was 105. (That's his story and he's sticking to it.)

There was some slight difficulty about his being admitted to this youthful republic, whose birth, he claims, took place after his. Agha, it developed, could not pass the literacy test. Although he speaks three languages, he could neither read nor write in any of them.

But Agha explained to immigration inspectors at Providence that he is really a Kurd, and the Kurds, he said, have no written language. So after he had repeated in Kurdish some Mohammedan prayers, had conversed in Turkish with a Government interpreter, and had indicated that he also understood French, they let him in.

One of Agha's chief claims to distinction, apart from his years and his marital career; is that set of teeth which he says he produced at the age of 105. But they're all gone now, having lasted only fifteen years, he says, and so while he is here and not occupied with letting the doctors pay him instead of himself paying the doctors, he thinks he may buy himself a set of false teeth.

Agha came accompanied by his great-great-grandson, a handsome young man named Ahmet Mussa, and his patron, Assim Redvan, who imports American automobiles to Istanbul and is "angel" for the trip.

He told about fighting against Napoleon in Egypt and of other wars in Greece, in Serbia, and in the Crimea. He participated in his last war—a war against the Russians—as a volunteer, at the age of 103, he said, served in the artillery, and carried cannons on his shoulders.

He talked about his wives, too, and denied that he had divorced No. 11 to marry No. 12, a young woman of 64, who now waits for him in Istanbul.

L. P. Shidy Ending 57 Years' Service

Chief of Tidal Division at Geodetic Survey Is Felicitated.

Leland Perry Shidy will retire as chief of the tidal division of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey after 57 years of service on July 31. He left his office for his final vacation on Wednesday, when he was presented with a huge basket of flowers by his office associates and a pad and pencil set by Capt. Paul C. Whitney, chief of the division of tides and currents.

Mr. Shidy was born on July 27, 1851, and entered the service on May 20, 1873. Since that time, records show, he has been absent because of illness for only three days. He was instrumental in developing various methods and appliances in connection with the tidal work of the Coast and Geodetic Survery, and in extending the tide tables to cover the whole world.

No announcement has been made yet regarding appointment of Mr. Shidy's successor.

Dean Pound Urged For Hague Court

Second American Nominated; Japanese Seems Certain for Elevation.

Geneva, July 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Roscoe Pound, dean of the law school of Harvard University, is the second American to be nominated for a judgeship on the bench of the permanent Hague Court for International Justice. His name has been bracketed with those of Osten Unden, former foreign minister of Sweden; Dr. Walther Simons, former chief justice of the German supreme court, and of Phyia Debvidur by the Siamese nominating group. The first American candidate, James Brown Scott, was recently nominated by Cuba.

Twenty-six candidates have thus far been put forward officially by the twelve countries which have sent nominations to the League of Nations. Mineitchiro Adachi, of Japan, has been named by eight of these twelve contries, and since Korozu Omda, the present Japanese judge, is retiring, Adachi's elevation to the bench seems certain.

The elections will be held when the assembly and council of the league meet simultaneously in September.

BETTER TIMES.

Statements issued last Thursday by Alfred Reeves, general manager of the Automobile Chamber of Commerce; David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation; A. G. Baumhogger, first vice president of Montgomery Ward & Co., and Lammot du Pont, president of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Co., indicate that business generally has begun to see its way out of depression. Mr. Reeves states that the depression has reached its limit and that the automobile industry at present is in an exceptionally healthy condition. Mr. Sarnoff finds conditions considerably improved; Mr. Baumhogger says that "all signs indicate that the low point of depression has been passed," and Mr. du Pont observes that the foundation of prosperity is now secure.

These are spokesmen for four important industries, each giving employment to thousands directly and to additional thousands indirectly, each an important consumer of basic raw materials, and each sensitized through an elaborate sales organization to the condition of the public pulse. When they say that business is on the upgrade there can be very little reason to question the soundness of their opinion. What is more important, when these four industries determine that times are improving and adjust their production machines for increased output, they put into motion a force that itself contributes materially to increased prosperity. The automobile industry, for example, is basic. When it is depressed, the effect is felt over a wide territory. When automobile manufacturers anticipate expanded buying and swing into large production schedules, they provide extra work for steel mills, rubber factories and a score of additional industries.

Those who have kept close track of the course of depression have witnessed slow but steady improvement in almost all lines since early spring. That the country has thrown off despondency so quickly testifies to its inherent soundness.

COMPETING WITH ITSELF.

At the suggestion of President Hoover the Departments of Agriculture, War and Navy have formed a joint committee to study a little problem of the Government competing with itself. Cattlemen of California have complained that Hawaiian beef is being dumped on the Pacific Coast market, while the Government feeds its soldiers and sailors in Hawaii and the Philippines on meats from Australia and New Zealand. It is reported that the Army and Navy buy enough meat from foreign producers to feed a city of 100,000. On one hand the Government is doing its utmost to relieve agriculture, and on the other it is patronizing British cattlemen.

This discrepancy in policy arises from the fact that the Government has become such a gigantic machine that no one official can watch its manifold operations at one time. The Army and Navy have no desire to discriminate against American products, but they are compelled by law to buy on a competitive basis. American products may be favored only when their price and quality are equal to those of similar foreign commodities. Apparently the incompatibility of this law with the Federal policy for relief of agriculture has not before come to the attention of the President and his Cabinet.

The Government can not consistently buy foreign foodstuffs because they are cheaper, and at the same time spend millions to increase returns to American farmers. Obviously the law should be changed. The American market should be reserved for domestic products, whether or not they are used beyond the national boundaries. That is the principle on which the administration has just established its new tariff law. It ought to extend to purchases of the Army and Navy.

REICHSTAG DISSOLVED.

Dissolution of the German Reichstag, ordered yesterday by President Hindenburg, brings to a temporary close the fight between the executive and legislature over the financial situation. Chancellor Bruening will remain in office until the middle of October, and in the meantime an election will be held. The legislative authority has been temporarily suspended, but the arrangement can not properly be called a dictatorship. The German constitution makes provision for such emergencies. As soon as the will of the people can be ascertained the government is expected to settle back to its routine.

Germany is a political patchwork. Its numerous blocs and factions make government by one party impossible for any length of time. Most cabinets are coalitions of several parties. Under such conditions situations frequently arise in which the government would cease to function were it not for the unusual powers conferred upon the executive by the constitution. Article 48 authorizes the president to take any necessary measures to restore public safety and order whenever the commonwealth is in danger. If armed force becomes necessary, he may use it.

Taking advantage of this article, President Hindenburg proclaimed his financial measures in force in spite of an adverse vote in the Reichstag. When the representatives of the people were still defiant, and again voted to revoke the cabinet's measures, the Reichstag was dissolved. Apparently the administration believes the people will support its program, but in any event it is considered necessary to meet the financial crisis that faces the country.

The German government has been living beyond its means. It piled up a large deficit in the 1930 budget, and drastic readjustments will be necessary to balance expenditures with income in 1931. The administrative program increases taxation and cuts down expenditures. The bachelor tax is especially unpopular, and the Reichstag positively refused to accept it. The crisis appears sufficiently grave to justify the president in taking these drastic measures.

M. BRIAND'S FUTILE SCHEME.

Aristide Briand's scheme for a United States of Europe, proposed through diplomatic notes addressed to the governments of 27 European nations, has drawn responses from all except two. M. Briand considers the mere fact that so many nations have replied as encouraging. But between replies to a diplomatic note and the actual organization of a political or economic agency such as M. Briand envisages stands a wide gulf. Generally speaking, the replies have been favorable, but even this fact does not mean that the union is about to be called into being.

Briand advanced the idea of economic union as calculated to preserve and perpetuate peace; to raise the standard of living; to make easier commercial intercourse and, in general, to make it possible for Europe to develop its resources. A union, he said, in effect, will bring great and everlasting benefits to each of the participating nations. Naturally, the European governments are interested in a proposal of this nature. They wish to improve their standards of living, to increase their commerce with other nations, and to live at peace. The British reply, for example, says: "His Majesty's government earnestly hopes that the initiative of the French government may bring about a better understanding by the European peoples of the common interests which they share and may thus lead both to greater mutual confidence and trust among their governments and to a diminution of the obstacles to international trade and economic cooperation which now exist. * * * It is primarily in respect of economic relations that closer cooperation between the nations of Europe is urgently to be desired."

But would Britain be willing to make concessions and accept compromises in order to effect closer economic cooperation among the nations of Europe? The tenor of its reply does not so indicate. Are any of the nations that have responded to the Briand note willing to make concessions to any of the others? The replies have shown two divergent conceptions as to what the union should be and how it should be constituted. The French idea, and that, generally speaking, of the nations that are satisfied with what they received under terms of the peace treaty, is that the economic situation in Europe should be improved without alteration of the existing political status. Germany, however, suggests that the existing political status must be altered. Italy throws a firebrand into the discussion by proposing that Russia and Turkey be included in any economic union that may be formed. The small states that were amputated at Versailles hasten to demand revision of the famous treaty.

So M. Briand's proposal opens the door to discussion of subjects that must be taboo if Europe is to have peace and quiet. Instead of cooperating for mutual economic advantage, some of France's rivals have seized upon the Briand scheme as a means of promoting political aims highly distasteful to France.

Probably the death-knell of the plan is sounded by Great Britain when it suggests that the creation of a new international organization would run afoul of the League of Nations. Europe is enmeshed in the Geneva net, and since that is a political and military organization, economic welfare must be subordinated to political aims.

PAN-AMERICAN COOPERATION.

A century ago the idea of cooperation among the nations of the Western Hemisphere for their mutual advancement was just beginning to take shape. The idea was taken up at the Congress of Panama in 1826, but it was not until 1830 that the first important gathering of American nations was held. That significant event will be commemorated next month with the gathering in Washington of delegates to the first inter-American conference on agriculture, forestry and animal industry.

Common interests have established bonds of affinity between the countries of North, South and Central America that can not be broken. The early interest of the United States in its southern neighbors was manifest in the Monroe Doctrine, under which an end was made of European aggression in the Americas. The establishment of one republican government after another in South America strengthened the ties of friendship that ultimately resulted in a permanent organization of American states at the Pan-American conference of 1890.

The development of common economic interests was much slower. Trade relations between the two continents did not begin to develop on a large scale until about two decades ago. At that time Europe drew most of the Latin-American commerce across the Atlantic, and furnished much of the capital for the development of those countries. But since 1913 trade between the United States and the other American republics has increased about 120 per cent, compared with 26 per cent for Great Britain. More than one-fifth of this country's foreign commerce is with Latin America, bringing the total to more than $2,000,000,000 annually.

Turning to the investment of capital, the record is still more impressive. During the last 17 years while the investments of Britain in that field have increased by 18 per cent, investments by the United States have been swelled by 350 per cent. More than $5,000,000,000 in American money is now being used in the development of South and Central American enterprises.

The forthcoming conference is an attempt to solve various agricultural problems that American countries have in common. Plant disease, cooperative associations, transportation and many other problems will receive the attention of experts. The different states will no doubt find ways in which they can be mutually helpful in this field.

SHIPBUILDING PROGRESS.

Progress toward the reconstruction of the American merchant marine is reflected in the quarterly construction report of Lloyds' register of shipping. At the end of June, 1929, Great Britain and Ireland had 1,454,000 gross tons of shipping under way; the United States had 119,098 tons, and the other maritime countries combined had 1,265,000 tons, making the world total at that time 2,838,000 tons. During the last year, however, the United States doubled its volume of shipbuilding, while that of Great Britain and Ireland declined in the face of a gain by other maritime nations. The present production of the United States is still greatly below that of Great Britain and Ireland, but the gap has been narrowed to the extent of almost 200,000 gross tons. At this time last year Great Britain and Ireland were building more than the United States and all other countries combined, the proportion being 51.2 per cent; but their share at present is but 45.5 per cent, whereas the American output has grown from 4.2 per cent to 7.8 per cent, and that of all other countries from 44.6 to 46.7 per cent.

Great Britain and Ireland build ships for the world, as do Germany and some other nations. But the United States, largely because of high labor costs, is not in a position to compete with foreign shipyards, nor could Americans afford to build ships if it were not for the aid the Government renders through the merchant marine act. Under the terms of this legislation, ship operators may borrow up to 75 per cent of the cost of a vessel, at low rates of interest, with repayment spread over a long period. Vessels constructed with Government assistance must be built in American yards. Lloyds' construction report reflects the growing activity in American shipyards.

America has only begun to build ships. Several weeks ago the United States Lines announced the prospective keel-laying of the first of two new 30,000-ton liners that are to be built with Government assistance. These ships are to be put in commission early in 1932. They will cost $21,000,000, and their construction is the first step in a $90,000,000 building program calculated to give the American merchant fleet a rightful share of the North Atlantic trade.

Maybe the Army buys its beef abroad in the interest of cow conservation.

Fifteen thousand Americans are sailing for Europe this week. Wouldn't this be a pretty good time for European nations to start the tariff reprisals?

"NOVELS OF ALL TIME"

From the New York Herald Tribune.

A list of the "sixty great novels of all time" compiled 50 years ago would be even more interesting than one made today. Probably half the titles on the list would be all but forgotten today, and the same may well be true of the list which Prof. William H. F. Lamont, of Rutgers College, has boldly given to the newspapers, if 50 years hence it should be dug out of yellowed newspaper files.

Already some of the titles on his list are fading; one suspects that respect for the judgments of the past generation dictated a few of his choices. Will Reade still be read a century hence? Was "The Cloister and the Hearth" really written for "all time?" George Eliot is another name that has lost something of its pristine luster; and one wonders why Manzoni's "The Betrothed" is kept upon the list.

Twenty English and ten American novels are on Mr. Lamont's list; no continental would give half the roster to one language. It is striking that the least questionable titles of all are surely the six Russian titles—two each of Tolstoy, Turgeniev and Dostoievsky—and, perhaps, Hamsun's "Growth of the Soil." Frenchmen would quarrel seriously with this selection of Hugo, Balzac, Dumas, Flaubert and Zola, culminating in Anatole France's "Sylvestre Bonnard," surely one of the most sentimental and least permanent of his works; Rolland's essentially English-Protestant "Jean Christophe" and Proust's "Swann's Way."

"The Last of the Mohicans" appears here, but nothing of Washington Irving's. Does that represent the judgment of a century? Hawthorne and Melville, of course, are here; Henry James with "The American," Mark Twain with Huck Finn, and Howells, another fading figure, with "The Rise of Silas Lapham." Of living American writers—Mr. Lamont recklessly carries his list into current production, concluding with Zweig's "Sergeant Grischa" (1928)—we find the names of Edith Wharton, Theodore Dreiser, James Cabell and Ellen Glasgow. Some of us would wager that Willa Cather's "My Antonia" will be read when "Jurgen" has been forgotten.

The name of H. G. Wells, which would have been on any such list a decade or two decades ago, does not appear today, and most of us would agree. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," which attracted little attention when it came out, in Mr. Well's heyday, fifteen years ago, already seems sure of its permanent niche, but for some reason Mr. Lamont omits Samuel Butler's "The Way of All Flesh," which had a similar history of belated fame. Perhaps the lists of 1980 will include works of our own day of which our present-day great public is still quite unaware, or some of those acutely individual books which suddenly rise out of the dark, like Evelyn Scott's "The Narrow House," Sylvia Warner's "Lolly Willowes," Thornton Wilder's "Bridge of San Luis Rey" or Richard Hughes' "The Innocent Voyage." All that such lists can ever prove is the impermanent character of literary taste and judgment.

JUST FOLKS

LIFE'S METHOD.

Life passes along with an armful of things,
Which, all helter-skelter, to mortals she flings,
And some of her tokens are pleasant to gain,
While others are heavily freighted with pain;
But hoping for pleasures, some gather up woes,
For the richest and poorest must take what she throws.

Some of us fancy that life should be kind,
And toss us his joys we are eager to find,
She has them in plenty on men to bestow,
For others got blessings we're eager to know;
But life doesn't ask what we wish as she goes,
Be it pleasure or grief, we must take what she throws.

With sorrow and pleasure, with hopes and with fears,
With comfort and pain, and with smiles and with tears,
Life passes along, and she scatters them all,
Nor heeds just on whom or just where they may fall;
And rich man and poor man, and subjects and kings,
Must take as their portion whatever she flings.

So wise is the man who builds strength for his care,
And faith for the sorrows all mortals must bear,
Who looks not to life for her pleasures alone,
But knows that with joys many heartaches are thrown;
Fools are ready for laughter, but down through the years,
Only strong men and wise men are ready for tears.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

You have developed the habit, common to us all, of using your own yardstick to measure the world.

That is natural and inevitable, for your own eyes are the only ones you can see with and your own taste the only one by which you can judge.

But before accepting this yardstick of yours as the one trustworthy standard of measurement, I think you should try a little experiment in logic to discover whether it really is as dependable as you want a yardstick to be.

Some time ago a stranger came to our village—a man very sure of himself, who talked much and well, moved at a rapid pace, made casual mention of important men he knew, and used long words seldom heard in these parts.

You didn't approve of him.

And our corner grocer didn't approve of him.

If your yardstick and the corner grocer's yardstick are dependable, the stranger was correctly measured and found wanting and therefore deserved nobody's approval.

But you must remember that your yardstick is yourself; and when you say the stranger did not measure up to your yardstick, what you mean to say is that he wasn't like you.

Because he differed from you, he was condemned as an imperfect specimen.

And because he differed from the corner grocer he was found unworthy of a proper man's approval.

Are you quite sure that was enough to condemn him?

In order to be like you he would have to quit being a much-traveled stranger and become a seventeen-year-old girl in a village.

And in order to be like the corner grocer, he would have to rid himself of much learning and much experience and be content to sell sardines to the rustic.

In other words, if your yardstick is right, then everybody should rid himself of the qualities that make him as he is, and become in all ways like a village girl in her teens.

And if the corner grocer is right, then everybody from the highest to the lowest should foresake his present way and hereafter live and act and think as the corner grocer does.

Are you sure the world would be perfect if all of its people were like you—or the grocer?

Are you quite sure you and the grocer can qualify as flawless standards for the world to copy?

Of course you aren't, nor do you pretend any such thing.

I'm just showing you how absurd a personal yardstick appears when you examine it.

All of us approve those who are like us and condemn the man who isn't like us; but it isn't a wise plan, for the very fact that a man who differs from us may be the best proof of his excellence.

When you are tempted to disapprove anybody, it's a good idea to ask yourself: "Am I agin him because he is imperfect, or simply because he differs from the grand little yardstick called Louise?"

Love, DAD.

THE NEEDIEST CASES FRESH AIR FUND.

Response to this department's Fresh Air Fund for Neediest Cases has been most gratifying. President Hoover, Rear Admiral Byrd and Bobby Jones were given to you as the first three cases of persons needing to be taken away from it all, the case of Mr. Byrd being cited as especially urgent. More than $100 has come in, together with the following letters:

Dear Sir: Your Fresh Air Fund for persons really needing rest fills a long felt need. The hardships under which Mr. Hoover has been at Washington are well known, and I regard it as urgent that he be sent far away from the Senate, Claudius Huston and the Farm Relief Board. I am enclosing $1.50 in the hope it will help to take Mr. Hoover away out into daisy fields where for at least a whole month he won't see a Democratic editorial or even hear of Hi Johnson. When Mr. Hoover took the Presidency he was a big, fine, strong and happy man. Now look at him! WIDOW'S MITE.

* * * *

Sir: I am lgad to contribute $2 to the case of Rear Admiral Byrd, who should be rescued from all those reception and banquet committees at once before it is too late. The way the country has treated the admiral since his return has been outrageous. Here is a great explorer who risked his life in performing one of the greatest feats of all time, and how do we treat him? As if he had swum a channel!

I understand the poor fellow's body is a mass of medal bruises and that his digestion, due to testimonial dinners, is all but ruined. He must be rescued and sent away to a quiet place, far from all reception committees, bands, motorcycle cops and microphones at once.

What wouldn't Rear Admiral Byrd give this minute for a spot where he could get into some old clothes, lie in the hay and not even be reached by telephone or telegram?

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

Gentlemen: My little sister and I are sending you 40 cents, the proceeds of a cake sale, to the fund to give Bobby Jones a vacation. It must be awful to have to go through life playing perfect golf. We hope this will help send him to a place in the mountains where the game is never mentioned. ALICE AND JANE.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Rockefellers, Father and Son, Said to Lead the World in Philanthropic Contributions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There have been many notable humanitarians and philanthropists since that day in the long-ago time when man laid aside his club and began the custom of shaking hands as proof that he held no weapon in his hand or ill will in his heart. Yet, among all the thousands who have extended the helping hand to mankind in general are two foremost, the Rockefellers, father and son. No one knows within $10,000,000 or more just how much money those two benefactors have contributed in organized efforts to promote health, education, scientific research and international good will. The general estimate is $750,000,000. That estimate, however, is largely based upon known contributions.

Men like Ford, Whitney, Ryan, Cudahy, Cochran, Austin, Gary, Eastman, Baker, Couzens, Stillman, Curtis, Duke, Stokes, Warburg, Albes, Firestone, Frick, Gage, Harkness, Rhodes, Mackay, Rosenwald, Heckscher, Baron de Hirsch, the Rothschilds and Guggenheims having built up substantial fortunes, turned their thoughts from further great monetary gain to the playing of humanitarian roles. Other names, and concrete examples, could be given—for instance, it being of record that Mrs. Stephen Harkness gave over $40,000,000 "for the welfare of mankind," and Andrew Carnegie $350,000,000 for 8,000 church organs, 3,000 libraries, 500 universities, &c. But none of these, it is believed, has so wisely and unstintedly distributed his wealth for the good of humanity as have John D. Rockefeller and his son, who have caused present-day benevolence in the form of philanthropy to be no longer content with the cure of human ills after they arise, but rather ever to strive to prevent them. They seek as their final goal, through constructive effort, the positive achievement of health and happiness throughout the world.

The Rockefellers, however, do not by any means stand alone in the field. Counting their contributions, there have been donated annually for the past six years by individual Americans of wealth for philanthropic uses considerably more than $2,000,000,000. S. E. P.

Additional Producers Not Needed When Present Population Overproduces.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following comment is in reply to Mr. Quillen's article on the editorial page of July 16.

More immigrants are what we need, so Mr. Quillen says; more immigrants to live here and buy the surplus of goods which are being produced. Did Mr. Quillen ever stop to think that if the immigrants are any good they are going to be producers, too? And that they can not buy goods unless they do produce and so secure an income.

Which means that they will produce and so add to the present overproduction, or else be unable to find work and so be an addition to the present army of unemployed.

If 130,000,000 people can produce more than is needed, 200,000,000 will also produce more than is needed.

If we who are already here can make more automobiles than we can buy, why then, an additional 50,000,000 people, using the same methods which we are using, could also make more automobiles than they could buy, to say nothing about not being able to buy any of those already being made. PHILLIP R. WHEELER.

Newspapers Should Print Lists of Congress Absentees.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please add my little note of appreciation to the many you will get, commending you on the splendid editorial concerning attendance of senators in special session.

There is a splendid remedy for the many vacant seats in the Senate which has been suggested many times before and which I pass on in the hope that some day it will be tested out.

County or district newspapers should publish a list of absentees at the close of each session. I venture the assertion that if this list was read by voters of each district, the habitual absentees, at least, would know more about what our Government is doing. When Congress is in session, that time is decidedly not their own. It belongs to the voters who sent them there.

R. DEANE SHURE.

WHY THE MAILS ARE SAFE.

A review by the chief postoffice inspector of five years of activity against theft, robbery and fraudulent use of the mails makes an impressive showing, says the Kansas City Times. It reveals a high percentage of arrests and convictions of persons charged with this form of lawlessness. But it reveals that, whereas crime supposedly has been on the increase, there has been no recent growth of these forms of offenses, but in some instances a decline. There continue to be mail robberies, holdups and other similar crimes. Yet in comparison with the volume of money or other valuables handled in the mails, the losses are almost negligible. It is said, for example, that in the war period nearly $50,000,000,000 in Liberty bonds was carried through the mails without the loss of a single dollar.

The condition is not an accident. The criminal lets the mails alone because he knows that the chances of getting by with robbery, holdup or theft are extremely slight. He not only is pretty certain to be run down and arrested but convicted and punished. Law enforcement in this particular affords an excellent example. It may be too much to expect such efficiency in all other cases. But a vast improvement in most other instances can be expected.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Retired Navy Officer Notes 50th Jubilee

Golden Wedding Marked by Capt. and Mrs. E. J. Dorn.

SAILING an ocean or two, with the Panama Canal thrown in for good measure, cruising the Golden Gate straight into the Golden West, Capt. Edward J. Dorn, U. S. N., retired, and Mrs. Dorn, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on the Pacific Coast on July 7 shortly after their arrival in Los Angeles, where they are guests of their sisters, Miss Dorn and Miss Olga Dorn.

Capt. and Mrs. Dorn left Washington several weeks ago. Whether they embarked upon their voyage to pass the eventful day in California sunshine, thus depriving Washington friends of the privilege of joining in the celebration, or whether they forgot that 50 years had passed since their wedding day in 1880 and merely set out upon another sea of adventure, the jolly captain failed to state in his account of the reception held to mark the anniversary.

Among old friends at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gottschalk and Mr. Winston Gottschalk, of Washington; Mrs. William Curlett, Mr. and Mrs. Alec Curlett, Mrs. Herbert McGaffey, of Albuquerque; Mr. Warren Halpin, Mrs. Theodore Aisen, Miss Ada Aisen, Miss Alice Aisen, Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Jost and Ralph Dorn.

The outward voyage held its link with Washington and old friends as Capt. and Mrs. Dorn found a charming acquaintance who proved to be the daughter of Admiral Mahan with whom the captain sailed the China seas.

Through the half century their path of romance has led Capt. and Mrs. Dorn into distant places, the captain having given distinguished service over a long period of years in various parts of the world. And the West holds its lure, admits the captain who, for some time, was Governor of Guam. And with the early years of retirement came additional duties to the officer whose years of service gave experience which placed him in charge of the Navy Relief Society during the World War.

And now he is "loafing," he says, enjoying the Golden West but steadfastly refusing to "fall in line" to swell the census record of Los Angeles, whose eastern limits are the Place de la Concorde in Paris, according to the amusing tale of the American doughboy who declares he discovered a marker to that effect on his excursion to the American Legion convention in the French capital a year or two ago.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER XXXV.

Janet, too amazed to speak, stared helplessly as Hugh's vise-like hand twisted the young woman's wrist back, forcing the automatic from her grasp and precipitating it to the floor with a dull thud.

Miss Sears' face was crimson, her eyes small and sharp, the corners of her mouth drawn in, her nostrils dilating with every breath. "You—you little fool!" she spat at Henry between her teeth. "You killed Belter and now you'd lie to get me into trouble . . .!"

Henry's face was a study in complete perplexity. "Good lord!" he cried; "I don't understand what it's all about. I thought they knew you'd shot that bird in there. . . . What's the idea in denying it? I'd have shot him if I'd been in your place. . . ."

Hugh, having kicked the automatic well out of reach, instructed Janet to pick it up. Then he released Miss Sears and moved a step back, taking the weapon from Janet. . . . "Any more of these little trinkets on you, Miss Sears?" he asked coldly.

"Hugh . . .!" Miss Sears' countenance softened perceptibly. "You aren't turning against me, too . . .?"

Hugh said quietly: "Why did you attempt to shoot him?" He jerked his head in Henry's direction.

Once more Miss Sears' eyes were small and hard. "Because I know him," she said. "He shot Belter in cold blood and I knew he'd get me, too, if I gave him a chance. . . . I've carried that thing—" indicating the weapon in Hugh's hand—"ever since he got out of jail."

"But why," asked Hugh casually, "should Henry shoot you, or attempt to get you into trouble?"

Miss Sears turned her eyes on Henry for an instant. Then: "Because I befriended Belter when they were fighting over . . . her." She nodded at Janet, accusingly. "She's been the cause of all the trouble we've had here for weeks."

Janet caught her breath sharply; but Hugh checked her when she opened her lips to speak.

"If that were true, Miss Sears, it would nevertheless be aside from the point. . . . Henry says he saw you shoot the poor devil in there. . . . Did you?"

"Of course I didn't," Miss Sears shot at him. "The man shot himself. I tell you he's lieing to get back at me. Why should I have shot him? . . . Besides, isn't his own revolver still in his hand?"

Henry said suddenly: "Gosh, I'm just beginning to come to. Now I know who shot the second time. . . . I thought at the time that second shot was a lot louder than the first."

Hugh asked: "What are you talking about, Henry. . . . Did she shoot twice?"

"Sure she did," Henry declared. "She shot him the first time just as he closed the window and turned around. Then she ran out. . . . I was pretty scared and I didn't know whether to run around to the door or not. It was easier just to stay where I was, I guess, and I stayed. . . . Then she came back. . . ."

"Yes," said Hugh, "and then what . . .?"

"Well, she must have killed him the first shot, but I figured she thought she hadn't. Anyhow, she stooped over him. I couldn't see what she was doing, but the next second there was another shot; and then I saw her stooping over him again. . . . Did you ever see a man shot, Mr. Temple? . . . It's sure a mean feeling. I felt like I wanted to get home as fast as I could, but . . . well, it's no sin to be scared, I guess; I was shaking so bad I could hardly walk."

Miss Sears asked contemptuously: "Did you ever hear a more impossible story? . . . I must say, Frenda, you're a cool liar. You murder Belter and talk yourself out of jail. For all I know you killed this man . . . but you've got the inconceivable gall to say that I did. . . ."

"Wait a minute," Hugh interrupted. "We're not dealing with a single crime here. In my estimation there has been one force behind all the trouble, including the two previous murders. Now suppose Henry killed Belter and"—with a gesture toward the open door—"this man; we have still to explain how Crell was killed. . . . Henry couldn't have done it, Miss Sears. He was in jail at the time."

Miss Sears asked placidly: "Has it occurred to you, Mr. Temple, that the only person known to have been present when Crell was killed was Frenda's mother . . .?"

Henry took a step forward, scowling; but Hugh pushed him back.

"It's no use, Miss Sears," Hugh said quietly. "I hadn't counted on this additional crime, of course, but if we had gone to the theater in Hartford tonight, you'd have been arrested the moment we . . . k to your room. . . . No doubt the police are waiting there now."

Miss Sears made an abrupt motion as if to leap upon the tall, quiet figure before her; then, facing the menacing muzzle of the automatic, she settled back in her chair again. . . . "So," she hissed, "while you've pretended to be desperately in love with me you've been double-crossing me. . . . That's your kind, is it?"

"Yes, Miss Sears, that's my kind," Hugh said, smiling stiffly. "I've pretended to be in love with you so that I could know where you were, in the hope of preventing any further tragedies. . . . But I understand now so efficient was your organization that its plans were made weeks ahead and needed no other prodding from the Black Flapper . . ."

"What!" Miss Sears screamed at him. Then . . . "You—you devil! You double-crossing devil!" . . . Suddenly she pushed her chair back and leaped to her feet. "Yes, I'm the Black Flapper," she cried at him. "The Black Flapper who has had more brains than all of you put together. What are you going to do about it . . .!"

"Unless you sit down in that chair," Hugh said quietly, "I'm going to put an end to the Black Flapper's career with her own gun . . ."

The woman stared at him, arrogant, daring. . . . Then, seeing in his eyes the determination to carry out his threat, she sank back into her chair and buried her face in her hands.

No one moved. No one spoke. Janet and Henry, stunned by this amazing revelation, stared at the young woman incredulously.

"Janet," Hugh said presently, "call the medical examiner and the police and give them the news. Tell the police I'll hold Miss Sears here until they arrive."

Janet hesitated a moment, then went to the switchboard.

Miss Sears looked up at Hugh, her eyes aflame with hatred and contempt. "And I suppose you think," she flung at him, "that your treachery is justified. There's plenty of double-crossing in the underworld, but it never gets down to your level. You're so low, Temple that I even feel decent in your presence. . . . Incidentially," she added, "you might be interested to know that I intend to deny every allegation."

"A lot of good it'll do you," Hugh replied; "aside from the fact that Henry was an eye-witness to your shooting tonight, I've enough evidence to hang you already. . . . Do you really enjoy murder, Miss Sears? You might have spared this last man, you know."

"He was a squealer!" Miss Sears flashed at him. "He was your type, Temple—a dirty little squealer. I saw him hovering there in the darkness by the back window when you were looking for him, and I knew what to expect. He'd come to me to hide him; and if I'd hidden him and you had found him, he'd have spilled the beans. He was that sort. So I killed him."

"Seems to me," Hugh told her, "he stood by pretty loyally. He might have given himself up and squealed long ago. Couldn't you have misjudged him?"

Miss Sears sneered. "Hardly," she said; "a woman doesn't misjudge a man she's been married to for five years."

• • • •

But despite her threats to deny her leadership of the air bandits and the three murders incidental to that leadership, Miss Sears, the notorious Black Flapper who had terrorized Boston for months, confessed to everything. There was nothing else she could do. Fingerprints and photographs from the Boston police added to the amazing amount of evidence gathered by Hugh Temple, unknown to the others at the field, persuaded her that she was hopelessly trapped.

Days later Janet saw a copy of the confession the young woman had signed, and even then she found it difficult to believe that behind the tragedies of the last several weeks was the cool, efficient young woman with whom she had worked in the administration building of the Great Eastern.

Portions of that confession, which ran into more than twenty typewritten sheets, suffice to explain the more perplexing mysteries. Of Belter she said:

"Belter was not a member of our Boston gang. He was office manager when I got the job with Tolbert. But he was easy and I soon lined him up. He was careless. I warned him several times. After he had entrusted a book to Henry Frenda in which he had written in code the dates of scheduled money shipments I told him he was a fool. Frenda lost the book. I told Belter to get it back. He lost his temper and threatened to squeal. Then I discovered he was to take dinner with young Tolbert and I knew he meant to double-cross me. Some time before I'd found a new revolver in Dick Tolbert's desk. That afternoon I went to Terryville and bought a box of cartridges to fit it, 32's. My automatic is a .22 calibre.

"To throw Frenda off the trail, I left the office that night while he and Belter were talking. They both saw me. Then I climbed in one of Tolbert's windows and waited until I heard Frenda go out. When I was sure he was out of hearing, I stepped out into the main office and told Belter if he moved toward the door I'd drop him. He wouldn't listen to reason when I tried to argue with him, and finally he went in Tolbert's office and shut the door behind him. I went to the switchboard and jerked the outside plug out. Then I got Dick Tolbert's revolver, loaded it, and opened Tolbert's door. Belter was sitting at Tolbert's desk. When he looked up and saw me I fired.

"I went out and got in my car. I left by the Plymouth road. But by the time I'd reached Thomaston I'd realized that Belter might have prepared a written confession for Dick Tolbert and I turned around and drove back. The office was empty. I left my car on the opposite side of the building where it couldn't be seen and went in the window again. I started to search Belter's pockets in the dark, but I couldn't make much headway, so I went to the door and turned on the lights. Then I heard voices outside.

"I shut the door, locked it quickly, and ran into Dick Tolbert's office. I'd already put the revolver back in the desk, thinking it might help to throw suspicion on somebody else. Then I crawled out of a window, left it partly open, and went to my car. A few minutes later I went in and found Dick Tolbert and Janet Decker looking at Belter."

Crell's murder, according to her confession, was a different affair. Crell had refused to tell her where he had hidden the money taken from Hugh Temple at Curtiss Field. She went to Mrs. Frenda's and saw Crell and Mrs. Frenda reading in the living room. She then got into the cellar and with the aid of a flashlight looked for the money. But she couldn't find it. In a fit of anger she picked up an old meat cleaver from under the cellar stairs and crept up to the first floor. The door between the kitchen and dining room was closed, but her flashlight fell on the fuse box on the wall and she conceived the idea of throwing the house in darkness. But first she opened the door to the dining room and made sure of her passage to the door that would let her into the living room.

After which she unscrewed a fuse and made her way quickly to the living room.

"Crell was cursing. By the time he had got out of his chair I was standing only a few feet from him. He couldn't see me, of course. I took the cleaver in my right hand and the flashlight in my left. He was groping his way toward the dining room door. When he got wthin a foot of me, I threw the light on his face and swung with the cleaver. He didn't utter a sound. I saw that he was finished and I turned back up to the Frenda woman. She must have seen what happened when the light was on his face, because she had fainted. I finally found a rope in the wood box and tied her up.

"It was then that somebody knocked on the door. They knocked two or three times and finally came in. I slipped around and closed the door and then turned on my flash. It was Janet Decker. I didn't want to kill her, but there wasn't anything else I could do. I started toward her holding my flash on her. Then she kicked the light out of my hand and broke it. It was absolutely black in that room. I couldn't see her. I felt all around, but I couldn't find her. Then I took a chance. I started swinging the cleaver in wide circles, figuring I'd probably hit her sooner or later. But I didn't, and at last I thought of the dining room. The door was still open and I thought she'd slipped in there. I felt my way inand started swinging again. . . . Then I heard a car coming and I ran out into the kitchen and on out into the yard by the back steps."

Even in her confession, a document that was ultimately to send her to prison for life despite the testimony of alienists that she was insane, she could not suppress her immeasurable hatred for Hugh Temple.

"Temple did everything but ask me to marry him," she told the police. "I trusted him and determined if ever this mess blew over I'd go straight for his sake. I know now that when he took me out those last few nights he did it so the police could search my room. But if I'd found it out then there'd be just one more notch in my automatic . . .

But this bold statement of Miss Sears' atrocious crimes Janet had not seen that night as she sat in the main office of the administration building with Hugh and Henry and she could not bring herself to believe that the young woman was guilty of the charges Hugh had calmly made against her an hour before.

At Hugh's suggestion, the police had lost no time in getting Miss Sears safely in jail, but the place was still alive with detectives and uniformed policemen. The medical examiner had come and gone. The coroner was still in Dick's office.

"I thought I'd seen tragedy," Janet said suddenly, "but I'll never get over this night as long as I live."

Hugh patted her hand gently. "We get over anything, Janet," he told her. "If I'd known what you were coming into that day I first talked to you all this would have been nothing more than newspaper headlines to you. . . . But you'll get out of it now, for good, and after a month or two of quiet and rest——"

But Janet was not listening. "Hugh," she asked, "how did you find out Miss Sears was the Black Flapper, and how did you know she'd killed Belter and Crell . . .

Hugh shrugged his broad shoulders. "I didn't know anything, Janet," he confessed. "Dick was the first one to suggest it. We were in his room one night and he happened to ask if I knew what had become of the Black Flapper after her conviction in Boston. . . . I didn't know, but I made it my business to find out next day. I wired the Boston police and they wired back she'd been pardoned on good behavior after eighteen months in prison. Then I began to put two and two together. She was the first one to show up here after you and Dick found Belter. I asked Tolbert casually one day if she was here the night he let you out at Mrs. Frenda's. He said she wasn't, but that her car was in the parking space outside. I began a hot courtship then, and twice when I was out with her, the police went through her room to see if they could find anything. They couldn't, and if Henry hadn't wittnessed the shooting tonight, all my troubles would have been for nothing. . . ."

Janet asked perplexed: "But you told her you had enough evidence to hang her, didn't you? And you said she was to have been arrested when you brought her back from Hartford tonight . . . ?"

"It was a long shot, Janet, but I had to take it. . . . Plain bluff; and she fell for it." Hugh got up and spoke to one of the detectives.

Henry Frenda asked quickly: "Whatever became of that book, Janet? Did you lose it?"

Janet shook her head sadly. No, Henry. It's at home. Do you want it?"

"I think I'd like to keep it, If you don't want it, Janet. Just to remember all this by. . . ."

"You're welcome to it. I don't need anything to remeind me, Henry. . . . And when you come for the book I've something else that belongs to you. Remember the money you lent me to buy clothes with?"

Henry was about to protest the suggestion that he couldn't possibly find any use for the money when Hugh came back.

"They won't need us any more tonight, Janet. Tell the old place goodbye; you're leaving it for the last time. . . ."

"But——" Janet's voice was barely above a whisper. . . . "What about Mr. Tolbert and Dick . . .?"

Hugh put his arms about her shoulders and led her toward the door. And Janet understood at last that he had known the truth all along.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

ONE by one the gifted young people who received their initial impetus in the general direction of fame as members of the old "Crandall Saturday Nighters"—put on the air for 47 consecutive weeks through Station WRC by this writer during an allied, but not identical, affiliation—are crashing the big time and making good.

The first to step up was Kate Smith, who staggered Broadway by her booming performance in Eddie Dowling's "Honeymoon Lane," wowed them on both Keith and Loew time and now is scoring a smashing hit with Bert Lahr in George White's production of "Flying High," at the Apollo Theater in New York. Hazel Arth, shortly after, won first place in the Atwater Kent radio auditions together with all of the honors and perquisites that go with that distinguished achievement. And now comes Bob Clabaugh, talented son of Earl Clabaugh, well known Washington barytone.

When Bob walked into the office a morning or two ago there was something vaguely familiar about the clean-cut, handsome young fellow who confronted me, but only vaguely. When we first put Bob on the air, encouraged from the sidelines by his dad and accompanied by his mother, he was nothing more than a promising kid who did remarkably well for one of his years on either the ukulele or the xylophone. It was as gratifying as it was surprising to one who doesn't quite realize the flight of time to learn how Bob has progressed.

He is now a full-fledged master of ceremonies presiding over Loew traveling stage units, in which he also does a specialty involving not only the uke and the kindling-wood solos, but banjo, drums, etc., etc., in addition. Furthermore, he acts also in the capacity of business manager of the units he takes out. I was interested in the newspaper clippings he showed me, especially the ones that referred to the "Saturday Nighters" as a sort of training school for budding talent.

Just now Bob is home on a brief vacation trip with contract offers from both Publix and Loew to worry about.

A dandy boy—affable, unaffected and able. I hope he continues to knock them into the aisles for years to come.

And speaking of knocking them out of the pews, you will have a very tough time in this hot weather resisting the dynamic personality and vibrant voice of Frank Richardson, Fox Movietone star, who yesterday inaugurated a week of personal appearances at the Fox.

While Mr. Richardson may prove to be not quite so tall as you had thought, his stature as an entertainer is enormous. His ebullience and his voice are about as they have seemed from the screen, but the cameras and microphones have fallen a little short of doing complete justice to his showmanship and ability as a "salesman." He fairly bubbled with enthusiasm, over both Washington and his work, at the first performance yesterday afternoon. The house was packed and this enthusiasm—particularly to be remarked since Mr. Richardson was little more than an hour out of the airplane from Detroit—soon communicated itself to the whole 3,400 cash customers and all of us dead-heads. He sang, chattered, strutted and clowned, and we ate it up, just the way you will when you hear him. If you want to know WHAT he sang and chattered, you will have to read the review in tomorrow's POST.

Once or twice I have remarked here that after all the fuss that had been made about his coming, Frank had better be good.

You can ask anyone if he isn't.

The bombardment is still on. Just to give you an idea of what the battle is like, here are a couple of typical shots that hit this desk from opposite sides yesterday:

"I read the things you said about Rudy Vallee in Saturday's paper. You had many things said about you for saying things about him because he is recognized as the world's most adored and popular crooner of songs."

However, I am comforted by the statement a little further along in that one that a lasting friendship awaits me any time I see fit to say nice things in the column about Lehigh's little brother, Rudy. Well, here goes: They tell me he's great to his mother!

"Thanks for your articles re Will Osborne and his band. I, for one, find them hard to beat and I never fail to tune in when I know they are on the air. Mr. Osborne's voice is full of expression, especially to one who has only memories. You will believe me when I tell you that I have been to the Earle more since he has been appearing there than to all other houses in Washington combined."

Just a line from one more:

"Won't you in your good column give Rudy Vallee some of the praise he deserves?"

It was that "good column" you put in there that did it, lady!

If you must know, what's at the bottom of this whole business is just this: Will Osborne has given me a swell autographed photo of himself to add to a collection of which I am pretty proud and Rudy never has.

So there!

Nice Indian summer we're having, don't you think?

Fifth Avenue Fashion

Plaits are in again! The one-piece model sketched is quite the smartest thing to freshen your midsummer wardrobe. It is lengthened by a box-plaited flounce with interesting pointed treatment at the front.

The cape collar is novel. It affects cape sleeves at the front and repeats the box-plaits in ruffle trim. An applied band at the left side ends in a bow, while the opposite side is left free. A bow is caught in with the right shoulder seam.

The belt is adjustable and may be worn at the higher or normal waistline, as best suits the wearer.

Style No. 685 may be had in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

HIDE IN THE DARK

by FRANCES NOYES HART

Author of "The Bellamy Trial"

THIRTEEN . . . an ominous number . . . yet that was the number of guests at Lindy Marsden's happy party at Lady Court on Halloween. Thirteen gay revelers who laughed and sang and danced and "bobbed for apples," and then turned out the lights for the traditional game of "hide-in-the-dark" . . . at midnight!

While the lights were out, one of the thirteen was murdered and, as developments proved, most of the guests had ample motive for the crime. To protect their reputations, the remaining members of the party, without notifying the police, held trial to find the guilty one.

Frances Noyes Hart, who wrote "The Bellamy Trial," has woven into this absorbing mystery threads of sparkling wit and tender romance that add keen interest to the breath-taking plot of the story . . . a story that will baffle the most experienced reader of mystery yarns.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THERE will be something doing if the Federal Radio Commission makes public results of the classification of radio stations as shown by the survey now being made to ascertain the merits of each station from the standpoint of listeners. One observer expressing skepticism with regard to the survey remarked that radio supervisors, in endeavoring to appraise a station, would perhaps encounter as many opinions as persons talked with.

Yet, almost any child on the street in any of the cities could tell the relative standing of the radio stations. Even in cities like New York and Chicago it would not be difficult to secure a fairly accurate estimate as to which stations were the most popular.

Nevertheless, when Uncle Sam attempts to evaluate the stations officially, he will surely be treading upon dangerous ground. It is an undertaking which may very easily bring upon the heads of the Federal Radio Commissioners the wrath of those stations which fail to make a good showing, especially so since most of the stations sell advertising time, the rate being based upon their local prestige.

Depending on what time the baseball game starts tomorrow afternoon, but very likely somewhere around 3 o'clock, Station WOL will give the score by innings.

Last week was the first time the station broadcast the scores on Sunday and it reports that 1,500 letters were received asking that this Sunday feature be continued while the Washington Club is out of town.

A comedian on the air the other night told the old story about the bar which was so long that the bartender had to ride up and down on horseback to wait on the customers. "Since prohibition has come in," he added, "the bartender has had to use a motorcycle."

EVEN if the custom is observed which does not permit an announcer to introduce a member of the royal family when the voice of King Haakon VII of Norway comes booming across the Atlantic July 30, our people ought to be able to tell who is doing the talking if the king speaks in Norwegian.

And if it doesn't happen to be the king, most of us won't be able to understand him anyway, so it won't make much difference. However, like King Alphonso, when he talked to President Coolidge over the radio-telephone, King Haakon might surprise us by speaking English.

The indignation of Senator Overman, of North Carolina, 76 years old, when they tried to hold him down to five minutes, surely justified his exploding over the radio.

Our idea of an optimist is any one who believes any senator might conclude a speech in five minutes.

Reports from Baltimore are that WBC is heard very indifferently there.

BUFFALO police recently made a motion picture record of the beginning of an incendiary fire and caught the incendiaries in the act. This suggests that the detective of the future may carry with him a televisor and sound transmitter and that the desk sergeant in the station house may become a witness by seeing and hearing everything taking place in connection with the arrest.

Now that the chirp of the ordinary little black cricket has been recorded on the edge of a movie tone film, we may next expect to hear it broadcast. Or maybe the croaking of frogs in lonesome country ponds these summer nights.

"Does the company have a house organ?" a visitor to one of the large broadcasting studios in New York inquired.

"No," was the reply, "but we keep sixteen pianos."

Probably unknown to many Washingtonians, Miss Hazel Arth, contralto, has been singing in the National Catholic hour and will be heard again tomorrow afternoon (WRC 5 p. m.).

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

PINEAPPLE CUSTARD.
(Department of Agriculture.)

1 quart milk.
4 or 5 eggs.
½ cup sugar.
⅛ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
2 cups pineapple, cut in small pieces.

Heat the milk, sugar and salt in a double boiler. Beat the eggs lightly and pour slowly into them some of the heated milk. Pour back into the double boiler and stir constantly until the custard coats the spoon. Remove at once, and stir in the two cups of pineapple, cut into small pieces. Place the custard in a pan of cold water, and stir until cool. Add the vanilla.

Paris, July 18.

MADE in Japan, bought in China, called Chinese pajama suits, worn by lovely ladies who like their comfort and attractive colors, never worn in all history by either a Japanese or a Chinese woman • • • thus the three-piece pajama lounging suit I have sketched for you today!

Who cares, when they are as cute as they are, and can be? Not I, for one, who am just waiting the chance to get back to San Francisco to buy dozens of them • • • 'cause they make such a hit here in Paris! Or maybe they have them in New York's Chinatown, do you think?

You haven't really lived until you've adopted the lounging pajama idea. Don't tell me that you never have time to wear one, because I once thought that, too. You always have an hour or so between the office and dressing for dinner, or informal entertaining at night, or Sundays, or mornings. Trick yourself out in a colorful pajama suit one of these mornings for serving hubby's and the kiddies' breakfast, and see what happens • • • to their morale, I mean. Cost? Nothing at all, no more than that house dress which you think is the height of practicability. It's for the maid. 'N if you are your own maid, you don't have to dress the part!

In fact, I am thinking of putting my French-maid-who-is-Spanish into house pajamas, just to have more color around this studio. Tell you about it s'mother day!

• • • •

June having passed with all of her sunshine and sudden rains, I am taking a few breaths after all of the "elegance competitions" that took place at every smart social gathering, at every fete, charity ball, fashionable watering place. Even though they did furnish agreeable diversions, they were wearing on one Dah-ray, who was more or less in demand to either start, finish or manage them.

They differed greatly from the first competitions of four years ago, in being true pictures of every day elegance, instead of "stage" elegance. Likewise they served to remind me of the standard of elegance that one must live up to or be left hopelessly behind by a heartless public.

• • • •

Speaking of elegance, how about sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet that will tell you how to make a three-piece Chinese pajama suit like the one I sketched for you today? It's so simple to make, and so attractive when made • • • better change your mind about not being the house pajama type and make a set • • • for a gift if not for yourself. The leaflets will be ready Monday.

• • • •

Petite Adorable is having the time of her young life these days at Le Tourquet. Alana is there most of the time with her, and I and the Spanish-French maid drive down every week-end. Do you bet she's the best dressed kid on the sands? You win! And don't forget that we made all of her things at home • • • oh, well, what's the use of having a fashyun-cricket for an adopted mamma if you can't be the smartest youngster in sight!

• • • •

I can't seem to sign off today, can I? Maybe I'm still worrying about what kind of somethings you would like me to make a leaflet of • • • how about sticking in your suggestion in your next envelope you send me? Thanks!

• • • •

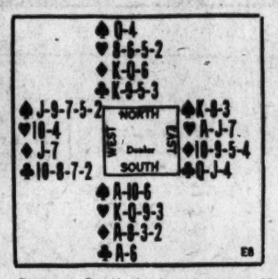
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)

When playing a No Trump contract, Declarer should postpone as long as possible the opening of a suit in which he has four cards in one hand and three in the other, and in which he has Ace-King-Queen but not the Jack, regardless of how the honors are distributed. With such a suit the winning of four tricks seems probable; and inexperienced players are apt to rush at it the moment they obtain the lead. Take my advice: Do not lead that suit until your adversaries have established a suit which they will run when they next obtain the lead and with which they will save game, or until you are in a position in which you have no other sound lead or until you feel satisfied that the adversaries have weakened themselves by discarding your suit and that your honors will exhaust them.

To illustrate, we take last Saturday's hand given then to discuss another topic:



Suppose South to be playing a No Trump contract and the first lead to be the Five of Spades. Dummy (North) should play small, as was explained last week. When East plays the King of Spades, South should hold up the Ace so as to be in a position to win the third round of the adverse suit; thus taking the second and third Spade tricks instead of the first and second. Then dummy wins the second trick with the Queen of Spades and Declarer still has the suit stopped; consequently he can postpone the Diamond lead until later. South's fourth Diamond, if good now, always will be good; but if not good now may become so by virtue of an adverse discard.

To trick 3 Declarer should lead a Heart from dummy, and if closed hand win the first Heart trick dummy should be put in with the King of Clubs to lead a second Heart. Played in this way, an adverse Diamond discard may be forced by a Heart lead, and in that way South's last Diamond may be made into a winning "thirteener."

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Azalea. I have it by the porch, where it lives but does not flower. Does it require much sun and moisture? I transplanted it into better soil this spring, but still it had no flowers. MRS. J. H. G.

Transplanting it this spring no doubt checked the plant's growth. This would mean no flowers until next year. Better keep it well watered, also keep a mulch of pine needles or peat moss about its roots and see that it is in the sun. If you have it planted in the shade, it will never bloom profusely.

Please tell me if you consider dish water of any value for general garden use. MRS. H. R. B.

No, I do not. It is sure to cause a deposit of grease on anything it touches and this in turn is sure to entice ants or other insects.

Please tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a leaf, also the care required to keep it in a state of health. JOAN S.

Your plant is a dracena terminalis, a plant demanding a warm, moist atmosphere and a great deal of fresh air. Better keep it outdoors in summer on your porch, where it will have morning sun. Spray it once a week with cold, soapy water.

I have a wisteria vine about the corner of my porch, which has not bloomed for several years. It is slow in developing leaves and never has a sign of a bud on it. Please tell me how to produce blooms.

MRS. M. E. D.

Root pruning may cause a wisteria to set buds. As it is a deep rooter, let me suggest that you have a skilled horticulturist do this work for you. If you do not care to attempt this, try giving the vine liberal applications of bonemeal or liquid manure. Also keep it well watered this summer. Flowers depend largely on previous care.

Please tell me when to prune old-fashioned roses. Is fat meat good for plants and, if so, how do you apply it?

MRS. A. EDWARD R.

It all depends on the kind of old-fashioned roses you have in your garden. All climbing roses should be pruned immediately after they have finished flowering. Tender varieties should be pruned in early April after growth has started. Fat meat is of no value as plant food and only attracts ants or other insects.

Please tell me how to make an aspidistra grow. Mine never puts forth even one new leaf. Please tell me how to care for a pandanus. Also tell me the name of the plant of which I am inclosing a few leaves.

ANDREW N. W.

An aspidistra requires a rich, well-drained soil and sun at least five hours a day. It should also be watered every day, its foliage sprayed once each week and the surface soil in the pot kept quite loose. A pandanus requires water every day, if kept on the porch in summer, and water only three times a week if indoors. It demands a great deal of sun at all times. Once in ten days spray its foliage with cold, soapy water. I am sorry, but I do not know the plant of which you inclosed a few leaves.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF JULY 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 a. m. to 7 a. m. and 8 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Fortune smiles upon you on this date, and only good influences are operating, and most everything will inure to your good. Efforts will be relaxed, worries discarded, and you will be friends with all the world.

The child born on this July 19 will develop very rapidly, and will be thought "old for its age." It will enjoy the companionship of its elders more than children of its own age. It will also seek the companionship of books, and will be a real bookworm. It will have a thoughtful and philosophical mind.

You do not sit down and wait for the world to discover who you are and what you can do. You try, openly and diligently to woo and win her. You endeavor to make yourself an efficient being, so that the world is willing to buy. You know what you want and you study the road maps and guide posts leading to your goal. Nature gave you courage, a strong backbone, and a good head, so that you are not frightened at any condition in which you may find the roads to any of your desired destinations. If necessary, you are ingenuous enough to supply your own bridges. You never let the demon of self-doubt stop you at any time. You may at times be overconfident, but you try and try again.

The hardest days of your life will be your happiest days. You love the battle between brawn and wit—versus circumstances and conditions. If you ever retire from an active business or career you must be prepared to slip into some enthusiastic hobby. A busy life for mind and body are essential to your health and happiness. You must cultivate many interests in life and not keep all your intellectual eggs in one basket. You should marry some one who can share your ambitions, and who will be your mental equal and companion. You can forgive anybody anything but stupidity. You are almost too self-contained and somewhat self-centered, and these traits do not make you yourself the best of companions. Travel is shown in your life.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Marriage and the Woman.

DEAR Miss McDonald: Your advice is ordinarily wise, but my sense of justice rebels at one statement made in answering "Johnnie's" letter, namely, that "marriage is just what the wife makes it." I have been married for several years and up until the past few months it has been hell. When I fired the guns, so to speak, and informed by husband that our contract had ended, he was—as all selfish, mean, impossible men are—astounded. Not all men are under the foregoing category, but many are, unfortunately.

I have suffered untold agonies and have gone through all that a wife could go through. My nerves have gone through the breaking point, but for the sake of my precious babies I had to carry on, hating, loathing, then being indifferent, until I felt that the children were old enough to be cared for without seriously injuring them while I supported them.

I washed, ironed and worried while other girls were entertained by my husband, and that is not all against him. To enlighten you concerning myself, I am considered beautiful and full of personality (which I never appreciated, I regret to say). Wherever I go, even now men are still attracted. I play bridge, I dance and keep up to date. There has been no reason for my husband's seeking outside amusement. I blame it all on his home life before marriage, but I'm through suffering.

Briefly, since my firm stand for divorce awhile ago, my husband has come to his senses. He realizes what it will mean. Social prestige, &c., gone if I go, for he has no social standing of his own. I am a queen now in his eyes. His latent characteristics are developing, but I observe this without enthusiasm or any personal interest now. For my children's sake have I remained. I do want to bring them up myself if possible and not turn over to or to some one else.

A close friend has gone through Hades, too, with a friend of a man who is making life desperately miserable. She is now getting a divorce, but her husband is lying and trying to libel her and ruin her character just to get even.

Oh, no, it isn't what the wife makes it. Marriage is like everything else where partnership is concerned. Partners must play fair. Digression is probable, but continued impossible situations can head only one way. We women will take blame where blame is due, but I for one refuse to shoulder all blame for disrupted marriages. Marriage is what both make it.

JUST ANOTHER WIFE.

We might say that baking powder makes cake "rise" and then find a cake that failed to "rise." So with wives and marriages.

But reading over your own letter and its story, do you feel that it refutes or proves my argument that "marriage is what the wife makes it?" The moment you did the thing you should have done at the start your husband began to respect you and to conduct himself as a husband should. What does that prove, if not that it is up to the woman?

Every time this column states the uncontroverted fact that men in their emotional lives and in their dealings with women are like children, there is an avalanche of vitriolic comment in the next day's mail. The men write in sarcastically, calling me Minerva and expounding on the subject of man's mental superiority. Women write in and accuse me of cloaking man's villainy with baby clothes. As to man's mentality: In the main man is, in my opinion, mentally superior to woman. By that I mean that he does more with what brain he has than woman does. Emotionally he is puerile. In business and among men he may be a giant, but in a woman's hands he is a child. And like a child he is cunning and shrewd. He knows the tone that means business. He will go just as far as he knows he may, with safety. But never far enough to incur the loss of his ice cream.

If any one can blame a man for doing as he pleases when he discovers that he can safely do so—I can not. It may be unchivalrous, but it is certainly human. If a man finds that he can treat his wife as if she were a hired caretaker for the house, one can hardly blame him for so treating her.

Wives by the dozen write to this column declaring that their husbands eat dinner, push back the chair, get dressed, take the car and go off for the night, returning at 3 a. m. Yeah? Oh, children, what a homecoming that ought to be! But it isn't. And the man continues to live as a bachelor with the comforts of marriage. That marriage is a failure—and if it is not the fault of the wife—whose fault is it? One rousing good declaration of rights would have put John in his place with his hands behind his back—and that goes for the whole army of them. The very best of them try to beat the rules. Sometimes it is a good idea to let them. The effect of small success in such adventure sometimes is all to the advantage of the wife.

But the man who proceeds on the assumption that the wife is a negligible quantity needs a swift and lasting lesson.

Until convinced otherwise I must go on believing that marriage is what the woman makes it—just as children are what the mother makes them.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

THE HEALTHY PERIOD.

WE are now in the early reaches of the healthiest period of the year. This period of good health can be expected to continue until just before Thanksgiving. This condition applies to practically all of North America and all of western Europe. It applies to people of all ages. Some recent studies of infants made in Illinois show that the baby death rate is now low in the summer months. This applies even to babies under 3 months of age. This has come about only in recent years, and much of the change is due to man's effort to make life safe in hot weather.

Not so many years ago summer and autumn typhoid was a great scourger. Now, water supplies are protected, people will not drink water that they are not certain about, and typhoid has become a rare disease. Fifty years ago, particularly, every man could expect to have typhoid at some time in his progress through Shakespeare's seven ages of man. Now, more than 99 per cent of the population can expect to escape typhoid.

Malaria was once a deadly and disabling disease. In most regions, malaria is now negligible. In the old days July and August exacted an awful toll from the babies. Almost every baby had diarrhea at some time or other during hot weather. The baby death rate has now much less than half of its former importance and the diarrheas have decreased even more than these figures indicate. The winter-spring, with its pneumonias, colds, and communicable diseases, is replacing the diarrheas as the outstanding menace to baby life.

The reasons for this improvement in the baby diarrheal situation are not difficult to find. Cow's milk as it comes to the nursery, is cleaner, colder and freer from infection. In the towns and cities almost all of it is pasteurized. There are effective means of home pasteurization for those who need it. The mothers know how to feed their babies or, at least, most of them do. More important than knowing how, they carry out what they know.

Little is left of the fly nuisance. There are not many flies within houses and those that are there do not have much chance to infect food. Hot weather dress, for both adults and children, is more sensible now.

TUMORS AND OPERATIONS.

M. C. D. writes: Is a tumor operation serious? What causes tumor? How can one tell when there is a tumor?

REPLY.

There are many kinds of tumors ranging from cancer to simple fatty tumor of the scalp. Tumors may be in any location.

The symptoms of a tumor depend on the location. Aside from symptoms due to location tumors are silent This is almost true of cancer and it is altogether true of benign tumor.

The seriousness of an operation for tumor depends principally on its location and partly on its nature.

What we do not know about the cause of tumors would fill an almanac.

NATS MATCH MACKS' VICTORY, BEATING TRIBE, 8-6

ALLISON'S BRILLIANT PLAY GIVES AMERICA LEAD AGAINST ITALY

Rallies to Win First Singles Match in 5-Set Thriller.

By SMITH F. REAVIS.

AUTEUIL, France, July 18 (A.P.).—America won the opening match from Italy in the interzone Davis Cup tennis final today and took two out of three sets of the second before it was called on account of darkness.

It was close work, however, that gave Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., a five-set victory over Georgio de Stefani, the ambidextrous Italian, and enabled the United States to take a one-up lead in this battle for the right to meet France in the challenge round.

The scores were 4—6, 7—9, 6—4, 8—6, 10—8, and the Texas giant-killer, conqueror of Henri Cochet at Wimbledon, was at least twice on the verge of defeat at the hands of Italy's No. 2 singles player. To take the final set and win Allison had to come up from 1—5 in an amazing rally.

George Lott, of Chicago, lost his first set to Baron Humbert de Morpurgo, veteran of many Davis Cup contests, 3—6, and had to play his best tennis to take the next two, 9—7 and 10—8.

At the end of the third set it was 8:30 p. m. and darkness was falling. Players and spectators had had enough and the officials called it a day. The entire program had been held up more than an hour by rain and wet courts and the Allison-De Stefani match had lasted fully three hours.

De Morpurgo and Lott will resume their match at 2 p. m. tomorrow and the doubles teams will clash in the third battle of the series.

Doubles Victory Conceded U. S.

Italy, electing to play Placido Gaslini and Alberto del Bono, has particularly conceded that match to Allison and John Van Ryn, and tomorrow's main interest for fans here lies in what the doughty Italian veteran can do to overcome the lead against him.

If Lott can follow up his advantage and win and if the strong American doubles team comes through according to schedule, the United States will be able to clinch the series before nightfall with the necessary three victories.

Although the Lott-de Morpurgo battle probably served up better tennis, it was the fight between the man who beat Cochet and the colorful De Stefani that took hold of the imagination of the crowd of 3,000 and kept it alternating between bursts of applause and occasional rumbles of disapprobation.

The first set started tamely enough, both players cautiously feeling their ground and neither taking any great chances. De Stefani's soft stroking seemed to puzzle Allison a bit. The American took the lead at 4—3, but the Italian broke through Allison's service in the next game and added two more for the set, his opponent playing somewhat listlessly at this stage.

Second Set Is Repetition.

It was much the same story in the second set except that Allison, breaking through early, rolled up an even bigger lead of 5—1. At this juncture De Stefani, with another burst of the puzzling form he showed in the earlier frame, took the next four games to make it 5—all. Allison won the eleventh and thirteenth but De Stefani held the upper hand and won at 9—7.

The Texan's service was rarely very effective and even his fast first ones met with well-directed returns from the Italian's racquet.

It was in the third set that Allison first struck his winning stride. He took the lead in the fourth game and kept it throughout. From then on his service improved. He found holes for placements and he won spectacular points repeatedly with his overhead smashing.

In the fourth and fifth sets the two battlers threw caution aside and slapped the ball back and forth in a series of the prettiest rallies of the day. Again De Stefani seemed the sure thing man, but, although he led 5—2 in the fourth and 5—1 in the fifth, he never reached match point, and Allison with a series of desperate smashes and line drives edged off defeat and won after all. When it was all over Allison appeared tired out.

Giants Score 5 in 9th To Conquer Cards, 8-7

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—A sensational five-run rally in the ninth inning today gave the Giants an 8-to-7 victory over St. Louis and kept their home slate against the Cardinals clean.

"Wild Bill" Hallahan held the New Yorkers in check until the final frame while Frankie Frisch's two home runs had given the Cards an early lead as they brought in five tallies. In the ninth Hallahan blew up and he yielded three hits and a walk before he was relieved.

Al Foreman Winner As Zivic Is Disqualified

Toronto, Ontario, July 18 (A.P.).—The ten-round bout between Al Foreman, of Montreal, and Pete Zivic, Pittsburgh veteran lightweight, was halted in the third round tonight by Referee Lou Marsh, who disqualified Zivic for not trying, and awarded the decision to Foreman. Zivic previously had been warned for his holding tactics and for his apparent disinclination to fight.

Browns End Slump, Routing Yanks, 14-6

St. Louis, Mo., July 18 (A.P.).—After seven straight defeats the Browns came very much to life today and assaulted four New York pitchers, to score a 14-to-6 triumph Sam Gray went the full game for St. Louis, while Manager Shawkey called on Sherid, Johnson, Gomez and Holloway in a vain effort to check the Browns' 18-hit attack.

The Yankees had the benefit of Babe Ruth's thirty-third home run and Lou Gehrig's twenty-fifth along with 11 other blows, but they never were in the running, as St. Louis started with four runs in the opening inning and did not stop scoring until the eighth. Melillo and Goslin clouted home runs for St. Louis. Ruth, returning after a rest of several days, hit a home run, a triple, and a double in five times up.

Blake Holds Dodgers to 5 Hits as Cubs Triumph, 6-2.

EBBETS FIELD, Brooklyn, N. Y., July 18 (A.P.).—The Cubs scored an easy 6-to-2 victory over the Dodgers here today, and, as a result of their triumph, they moved within one game of the league leaders. Fred Blake held the Dodgers to five hits, one of which was a home run by Del Bissonette, which saved the home team from being shut out.

The Cubs gained a two-run lead in the second inning off Jim Elliott, and increased their advantage as the game progressed. Elliott lasted only three innings, and he was followed to the mound by Moss and Thurston. Wilson, English and Beck knocked out home runs for the alert Bruins. The attendance was about 15,000.

Shamrock V Insured By Lloyds for $90,000

London, July 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V, challenger for the America's Cup, which sails from Portsmouth at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning for New York, has been insured with Lloyd's for roughly $90,000 at a premium of about $9,000, it became known here today.

The policy covers all risks from sea perils, fire, partial damage in collision as well as covering workmen's compensation risks for the crew, war, riots, civil commotion and many special covers from the time she is launched and fitted out until the time she returns to England again after the cup races.

Sir Thomas' new steam yacht, the Erin, which is convoying the Shamrock to America, has been insured for roughly $150,000, at a cost of $3,000, under equally comprehensive coverage.

The Shamrock's rig has been completely changed for the Atlantic voyage. The huge 150-foot mast has been halved and a little mizzenmast fitted. The decks have been made safer for the crew by the fittings of special life rails.

Pacific Coast League Rejects Universal Draft

San Francisco, July 18 (A.P.).—The Pacific Coast League today voted to reject the universal draft, new baseball agreement demanded by the National and American Leagues of the five big minor circuits.

By an overwhelming vote club directors or their representatives decided to oppose the majors which recently delivered an ultimatum they will have no more dealings with the five minor leagues until they accept a universal draft.

The universal draft would permit major league clubs to claim any player from the minors.

GRANT GAINS FINALS.

Rockhill Tennis Court, Kansas City, July 18 (A.P.).—Bryan Grant, jr., Atlanta, Ga., advanced to the finals of the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament today, defeating Bruce Barnes, Austin, Tex., 3—6, 6—3, 6—2, 2—6, 6—0.

Mandell, Puzzled at Defeat, Glad to Be Rid of His Title

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, July 18 (A.P.).—Sammy Mandel, hit the trail for the West tonight, a tired, saddened youungster bereft of his lightweight championship and rather glad of it. He is going back to Rockford, Ill., to rest and forget the nightmare in the Yankee Stadium last night, where a hobgoblin named Al Singer jumped upon him in less than a round and battered him to the floor. Mandell today still was trying to puzzle out the happenings in the ring.

"I'm sure making the weight didn't hurt me," he said, as he sat in Madison Square Garden and groped for reasons for the surprising defeat.

"But I felt dead. I had no pep or life and I couldn't seem to arouse myself. I was strong physically, though.

"I don't know what happened in the first round. I never saw the first left hook that knocked me down and never felt any of the punches. I don't remember being on the floor at all.

Mandell to Rest Before Trying Again.

"I'm going to rest and fight some at 138 pounds and decide whether I'll try the welterweight division. Anyway, I'm glad I'm rid of the title. I'll get along better fighting good young fellows wherever and whenever I want to without worrying about championships and weight."

Sammy, a handsome youngster of 26, bore two distinct mementos of the Singer punches that knocked him down four times and out. His lower lip was gashed and two upper teeth were loosened by the first knockdown

MACKS SLAM BRAXTON TO WIN, 15-1

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 18.—George Earnshaw held the White Sox in the hollow of his hand this afternon while his teammates turned to the maximum advantage the fifteen hits, including four home runs which their potent bats pounded out, to give the Athletics their third straight victory over the Comiskey men by a score of 15 to 1.

With hitting such as reinforced his pitching performance, Earnshaw could have had a bad day and still have come through to victory. He turned in a needlessly excellent day's work, however, holding the White Sox to seven hits scattered over five innings, of which Mulleavy's double in the sixth was the longest.

Foxx Features At Bat.

Jimmy Foxx was successful enough at the plate to have won the game, getting two home runs, a double and a base on balls on five trips to the rubber, all four of which resulted in his scoring. The first of Foxx's home runs, off Braxton, in the third inning, was the longest ever hit in left field at Comiskey Park, clearing the double decker left field stand entirely and landing in the street outside.

The blow proved the beginning of the end for Braxton, who had held the Macks to a single hit in the first two innings, for when Miller followed Foxx to the plate and drew a base on balls, Dutch Henry was sent out to do the left-handed hurling for the White Sox.

He finished the inning without permitting the Athletics to add to the cluster of five runs which four hits had given them off Braxton. His downfall was not long in arriving in the fourth, however. Boley opened the inning with a home run into the left field stands, and Foxx bringing in three runs ahead of him when he hit his second home run, this time to right field, later in the same session.

Henry Gives Way To Walsh.

With Miller and Dykes singling after Foxx, Henry yielded the hill to Young Ed Walsh, and, although another run came across on Boley's single, to give the Macks a total of six for the inning, Walsh was fairly successful for the rest of the route. Two runs scored on two hits in the sixth, and two more on two hits in the eighth. The first of the barrage of Athletics home runs was Mickey Cochrane's blast to the right field stand off Braxton in the third inning.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

CLEVELAND, July 18.—As a result of Jack Hayes' insertion in the line-up in place of Buddie Myer, who appears to have burned himself out and needs a short respite, Manager Johnson gave his batting order a new shuffle today.

The Nats were credited with four hits in the first—two mighty scratchy ones by West and Cronin, Harris' real wallop and Hayes' technical one. The latter's roller hit Bluege when the latter slowed up going to second so as to hide the ball from Hodapp. Under the rules, the batter of a ball which hits a runner is credited with a safety even though an automatic out is charged at the time.

Rice, whose poor peg helped the Indians to victory yesterday, made up for it in the first round this afternoon. He raced over toward center to make a great back-handed stab of Hodapp's drive, ticketed at least a double, with Indians on third and second. One was out at the time and, as Porter, on the middle sack, had no idea that the catch could be made, he was doubled up to end the inning. The two runs which would have scored but for this catch would have tied the score and left Hodapp on second still with one out.

Hayes went over toward first to rob Morgan of a hit in the first.

Morgan made a brilliant one-hand catch of Harder's throw on Harris' sacrifice in the Nats' third. He grabbed the wild heave just as it was about to hit the runner.

Had Liska been on the job and

Tigers Beat Sox, 7-6; Triple Play Features

Detroit, Mich., July 18 (A.P.).—Fine baseball by Mark Koenig featured Detroit's 7-to-6 victory over the Boston Red Sox today.

In the eighth inning, with Detroit holding a one-run lead, and Boston runners on first and second, Koenig leaped high to take Sweeney's liner, then snapped the ball to Gehringer to catch Durst off second. Gehringer relayed to Alexander, catching Miller off first and completing a triple play.

ARMY SEEKS TO END NAVY'S TENNIS REIGN TODAY

Leech Trophy At Stake in Match

Chevy Chase Is Scene of Play; Army Reputed Stronger.

THE Army and the Navy, two familiar foes, will again clash for supremacy this afternoon, this time on a local battleground, when selected tennis players from those branches of the service meet in the seventh annual Leech Cup matches on the Chevy Chase Club courts. Action is slated to get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

Not since 1925, the second year that A. Y. Leech, jr., donor of the cup, originated the matches, has the Army team been victorious, the Navy team having a record of four straight triumphs to its credit. Army's netmen won the cup in the first year of competition, but coupled with its victory of the second year of play, is two behind the Navy—the score at present standing 4 to 2.

Army Strengthened In Doubles.

While practically the same teams that battled last year to an ultimate 6-to-1 decision for the Navy are again opposed, followers of the teams are looking forward to a much closer match this afternoon. Army's doubles teams are a trifle stronger than they were in 1929, while supporters of the khaki are looking for Maj. R. C. Van Vliet to avenge his unexpected defeat at the hands of Lieut. R. M. Watt, of the Navy, last year. Expected to defeat Watt, Van Vliet was forced to bow to the Middie star in the upset of the match. He will meet Watt in the No. 1 singles.

Van Vliet will also team with Maj. Thomas D. Finley, who is not playing in the singles this year, in the No. 1 doubles encounter, against the Navy's No. 1 team, Commander C. C. Gill and Lieut. G. W. Smith. In addition to these two matches, Army will depend upon Lieuts. D. D. Hedekin and S. K. Robinson in two singles and a doubles match, and upon Majs. Robertson, Hills and Hobbs for the remaining matches. Robertson will play No. 4 singles, while Hill and Hobbs will team as the No. 3 doubles.

Farrin and Howard Navy Hopes.

However, Navy is not without its hopes, inasmuch as those two crack young ensigns, Jimmy Farrin and Bill Howard, are apt to be very much in the limelight. Each will assume responsibility for a singles victory, while they will pair together against Hedekin and Robinson in doubles.

The line-ups:

SINGLES—Maj. R. C. Van Vliet (Army) vs. Lieut. R. M. Watt (Navy). Lieut. D. D. Hedekin (Army) vs. Lieut. G. W. Smith (Navy). Lieut. S. K. Robinson (Army) vs. Ensign J. A. Farrin (Navy). Maj. W. R. Robertson (Army) vs. Ensign W. E. Howard (Navy).

DOUBLES—Majs. Van Vliet-Finley vs. Commander Gill-Lieut. Smith. Lieuts. Hedekin-Robinson vs. Ensigns Howard-Farrin, Majs. Hills-Hobbs vs. Lieuts. Watt-Dole.

LeDroit Tigers Play Richmond Club Here

The LeDroit Tigers and the Richmond Brownies will lock horns tomorrow at Griffith Stadium at 3:30 o'clock. The Brownies are famed as one of the fastest aggregations in the South. In the Tiger line-up will be former stars of the Washington Black Sox, including Monroe, Fauntroy, Ford, Lefty Smith, Greenfield, Mace Jefferson, Kemmer, Bailey, Morton and Grant.

A concert will be given by the Community Center Band before the game.

PICK ME UP, slightly outpaced to the stretch turn, slowly improved position, closed fast in stretch, wore down MASKED BALL to win in final twenty yards. MASKED BALL had fine speed for half a mile, headed ALFAYE B. entering stretch, but tired and could not withstand winner. ADINE began fast, but was off stride and could not find racing legs until stretch. BANAL GIRL raced well. TAVY gained gradually. ALFAYE B. had early speed, but quit badly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE OKAH, $26.84, $12.78, $8.90; MISS ROSEDALE, $14.90, 110.42; BRAMSTAR, $10.18.

THE OKAH had best of start, took command to save ground all the way and, showing most speed, kept MISS ROSEDALE safe and was not threatened at end. MISS ROSEDALE, away good, attempted forcing the pace, challenged the winner, but was held safe at end. BRAMSTAR, on outside, was gaining fast at end. GOLD MINT, on rail, closed some ground. BLACK FLYER and CROFTON had no excuse. SCARLET BRIGADE, BLACK BEETLE, HYPNOTISM and FIALA were shuffled bad at start.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—B'AR Hunter, $5.64, $4.92, $3.42; FIRST VOTE, $4.26, $3.52; SUN DOT, $3.66.

B'AR HUNTER began fast and was in closest pursuit of SUN DOT to the stretch forcing pace, began to wear leader down at last furlong, and disposed of SUN DOT and outfinished FIRST VOTE in driving finish. FIRST VOTE was always close up, closed fast in last furlong, challenged B'AR HUNTER, but failed in the drive. SUN DOT displayed high speed, set very fast pace to the final furlong, but weakened when challenged. JOHN MILL could never get up. SKIPPY had no excuse.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800; allowances. The Bouquet. For 3-year-olds and upward, fillies, mares. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:50. Off at 3:54. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LADY BROADCAST, $6.02, $3.94, $2.54; CONCLAVE, $3.56, $2.66; BEAMING OVER, $3.54.

LADY BROADCAST began fast, was outrun briefly by CONCLAVE, but soon overhauled latter nearing the far turn and, opening up a safe lead thereafter, set a very fast pace and won as if much the best. CONCLAVE had speed from start, but could not stay with LADY BROADCAST, followed in its closest pursuit and made strong bid to overhaul in stretch, but was not good enough. BEAMING OVER was ridden all over the track, closed a gap in last quarter, finishing gamely on her own courage. MISS BESS could never get to the two leaders and tired after three-quarters. CROSSCO showed brief early speed, but was badly outrun last half.

FIFTH RACE—One mile (Hertz course). Purse, $1,500. The Minneapolis. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:20½. Off at 4:22. Winner, J. Cogley's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SEARINGTON, $32.52, $12.72, $6.88; BROTHER RANK, $7.18, $4.58; MODERATION, $3.76.

SEARINGTON, restrained on the pace, went up fast entering stretch, closed big gap to win going away. BROTHER RANK gained gradually, made his move entering stretch, quickly took lead, began drawing out, but tired reaching last eighth and could not withstand winner. MODERATION, also saved to stretch, closed big gap, but weakened in final test. JACK CRAIN had to race in close quarters, but went wide. LIEUT. RUSSELL tired after setting early pace. CALOME had no excuse. SILVER SCEPTRE quit.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:51. Winner, Rosedale Stable's ch. g. (6), by Fair Play—Royal Tracing. Trained by W. A. Carter. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:48, 1:13 2-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:53 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROYAL PLAY, $6.68, $3.96, $3.10; GREY GULL, $4.12, $3.12; JOHN T. D., $4.88.

ROYAL PLAY, racing under strong restraint first half mile, began gaining rapidly when called on leaving back stretch and, closing the gap, made a fast move to head GREY GULL an eighth out and outgamed latter in final drive. GREY GULL, a forward factor all the way, made a strong bid on entering stretch, taking the lead from RACKETEER, when joined by the winner, could not keep up though holding on well. JOHN T. D. closed some ground and gained in final drive and bested remainder. BOYISH BOB closed with a belated rush. RACKETEER showed speed for three-quarters and tired badly. SINON was always outrun. BIG SWEEP had early speed, but the distance was too great.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:20. Off at 5:20½. Winner, Mrs. R. L. Meripol's ch. f. PRINCESS EDITH began fast from outside, making all her own pace, drew out strongly in stretch after first furlong and won as rider pleased. ROYAL MANAGER closed fast, challenged leader, but was not good enough. FERN F. began well and outlasted AFTERGLOW in the drive. AFTERGLOW could not get into contention, but finished fast. UPSET LAD was nearly knocked down on first turn by WOOD AXTON colliding with latter's hind quarters, showed speed first three-quarters, but was done then. NETTIE BELL had early speed, but quit badly.

3 WASHINGTON GOLFERS IN MARYLAND SEMIFINALS

Hunter, Pitt, Mackenzie Survive

Howell, Young Richmond Star, Gains Other Place.

Hunter Beats Knapp on 20th Hole in Feature Match.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

MARYLAND COUNTRY CLUB, Baltimore, Md., July 18.—The Washington golfers who are competing in the annual invitation tournament of the Maryland Country Club, ten of whom qualified yesterday in the title flight, came through today with flying colors. Of the four survivors who will contest tomorrow morning in the semifinals round of the first sixteen no less than three are from the National Capital.

In the upper bracket J. Monro Hunter, jr. (Indian Spring), is paired against Albert R. Mackenzie (Columbia), while in the lower half Harry G. Pitt (Manor) will play against William R. Howell, the 18-year-old Virginia golfing prodigy, who has been amateur champion of his State and is now the Middle Atlantic amateur champion.

In the forenoon round Alex H. Knapp, of the Baltimore Country Club, and medalist of this tournament with a card of 70, defeated Roger Peacock (Indian Spring), although Peacock was 1 up at the fifteenth tee. When Knapp drove to the fifteenth green, 332 yards, and scored a birdie 3 for a win, and when Peacock three-putted the sixteenth and seventeenth greens, Knapp won the match.

Knapp Beaten By Hunter.

In the afternoon round against young Hunter, who yesterday celebrated his nineteenth birthday and who had defeated Volney Burnett (Beaver Dam) in the morning round, Knapp had an extended struggle, losing on the twentieth hole when he overapproached the green. Mackenzie registered a surprise when, in the morning round, he defeated Donald McPhail (Maryland Country Club), 3 and 2, and in the afternoon he defeated Thomas S. Pitt (Argyle), who, in the morning contest, had defeated Leroy D. Sasscer (Indian Spring). Although he has long since registered a vow that he was through with golf, Mackenzie is still going strong and having won his two matches today, is a semifinalist.

One of the remarkable features of the tournament was the fact that the two Pitt brothers, Harry G. Pitt, Manor, and Thomas S. Pitt, Argyle, defeated the two Sasscer brothers, Leroy D. Sasscer, Indian Spring, and Thomas W. Sasscer, the star player of the Maryland Country Club. The former was eliminated by Tom Pitt, while Tom Sasscer was defeated in the morning round by Harry Pitt. In the afternoon round the latter survived for the semifinals by defeating Austin M. Porter, of the Columbia Club, Washington, and Wilmington, Del., but only achieved his victory by running down a 12-foot putt for a birdie 3 on the nineteenth green. "Billy" Howell had a one-sided match against Harry A. Parr 3d in the morning round, winning 7 up and 5 to play. This was not remarkable in view of the fact that on the first four holes he took four 1-putt greens, and on three of the four holes he chipped out of traps and went down in one putt.

Many Washingtonians Eliminated.

The matches today naturally resulted in the total elimination of a number of Washington players. In the first sixteen Volney Burnett, Beaver Dam, who lost both his morning and afternoon matches; Thomas S. Pitt, Argyle, who won this morning and lost this afternoon; Austin Porter, Columbia, who lost on the nineteenth hole this afternoon; and Lindsay Stott, Beaver Dam, who lost both matches today are out of the first sixteen. In the second sixteen John Holzberg, Columbia, who went into the consolation this morning, still survives, having defeated J. A. Cox, Argyle, this afternoon, and Herbert L. Lacey, Indian Spring, will play in the semifinals round of the second sixteen tomorrow morning. E. L. Bono, Columbia, who won this morning, was defeated this afternoon and is out of the tournament.

In the third sixteen, Ray Farrell, Manor, lost this morning when, although even on the seventeenth, he lost the two last holes by driving out of bounds on the seventeenth, and driving into a henhouse on the eighteenth, but survives in the consolation. He was three down and three to go this afternoon, but halved the match with three birdies in succession and then won on the nineteenth green with another birdie. In the fourth sixteen, both M. E. Oliveri, Argyle, and W. M. Kochenderfer, Columbia, are out of the tournament.

Fowler Among Survivors.

In the fifth sixteen Ralph S. Fowler, Washington Golf and Country Club, survives, having defeated J. F. M. Bowie, Columbia, in the morning round, and winning this afternoon from Dr McCarrier on the twenty-second hole. In the fifth sixteen Joseph T. Sherier, Columbia; William M. Richardson, Manor; J. F. M. Bowie, Columbia, and Hugh McKenzie, Columbia, have been eliminated, J. G. Biggs, jr., Argyle, is still in the consolation.

In the sixth sixteen, where fourteen out of the sixteen players were from Washington, the summary of the matches today were as follows:

FIRST ROUND—Frank G. Butler (Manor) defeated C. H. Gerner (Manor), 5 and 3; H. N. Reid (Country Club of Virginia) defeated A. E. Landvoigt (Manor), by default; Wilbur A. Taylor (Argyle) defeated W. S. Carey (Kenwood), 4 and 3; F. W. Bauernschmidt (Maryland C. C.) defeated Dwight N. Burnham (Manor), 1 up; John P. Hodges (Columbia) defeated Eugene E. Krewson (Columbia), 2 and 1; A. R. Gardiner, jr., (Columbia) defeated C. R. Allen (Congressional), 4 and 2; B. E. English (Indian Spring) defeated W. B. H. Lezt (Chevy Chase), by default; Harry D. Cashman (Washington G. and C. C.) defeated Robert Gormley, 1 up, 19 holes.

SECOND ROUND—Butler defeated Reid, 3 and 1; Bauernschmidt defeated Taylor, 2 and 1; Gardiner defeated Hodges, 1 up, 22 holes; defeated Cashman, 7 and 5.

In the seventh sixteen Ralph Fleharty, Columbia, and Dr. J. T. McClenahan have been eliminated, but C. B. Allen, Indian Spring, survives in the flight with S. A. Gardiner, jr., still in the consolation.

New Haven Club Broke; Six Weeks' Salary Due

New Haven, Conn., July 18 (A.P.).—Organized baseball came to an end in New Haven today when the New Haven Club of the Eastern League closed up shop because of financial difficulties.

George M. Weiss, owner, who informed a meeting of league officials in Allentown last night that he was withdrawing his team, indicated he was unable to pay players their already overdue salaries and would not ask them to finish the series with the Providence Team, which also withdrew from the circuit last night.

The New Haven Team has been playing to small crowds all season.

Some of the players are owned by Baltimore, of the International League, and by Washington, of the American League, and will undoubtedly be protected by those clubs.

IN THE WAKE OF THE GAME

hustled to first instead of standing in the box and watching the play, the Tribe would not have scored in its third round. By the time he decided to do something about it, it was too late and Morgan scored from third on what should have been an easy third out. His failure gave Hodapp a hit on an easy bounder to Shires.

Sewell made a pretty stop and throw to nail Rice ending the fourth.

Hayes did some fancy pivoting while in the middle of the double-play which the Nats negotiated to end the alien fourth session. Bluege started it on Harder's tap after Goldman had coaxed a pass.

Shires almost tore off Morgan's glove with a liner opening the fifth. The first-sacker was unable to hang on to the ball but he made the out, thanks to Harder getting over to cover the sack in time.

Sewell made a fine leaping catch to snare Cronin's high hopper in round 5, following with a throw which was almost as good as the grab.

Jamieson backed up against the wall in deep left for Cronin's drive which ended the Nats' seventh, with Bluege on second at the time.

The wind caught Averill's high looper starting the Tribe's seventh, and Rice, camping under it, had to make a hurried dive to grab the ball as it sailed away from him.

The Nats have the tricky wind to thank for a big contribution to their eighth-inning rally, for it caused Porter to muff Harris' opening looper and let the batter pull up safely at second.

Seeds got away with murder in the Cleveland eighth when, with a sure double play in sight, he wrapped his arms around Hayes and prevented the throw to first. Umpire Hildebrand did not see this and wouldn't ask either of his colleagues' advice.

are making more runs off of them now than they did earlier in the season, and if a couple of their batters stop hitting, they'll hit the skids, too. What I'm trying to do is to get us out of our slump so that, when Philadelphia experiences its let-down, we'll be able to regain the ground we lost during our own slump."

It may be only a coincident, but the Nats stopped playing their consistent winning game on the day that Outfielder Heinie Manush was hurt in Boston. The big fly-chaser was hitting, fielding and running well at the time and undoubtedly was the spark plug of the Washington baseball machine. He is improving fast but his injury is one which only rest will cure. Today, he took batting practice for the first time since he was hurt. He is not expected to get back in the line-up until possibly the fag end of the next series, against the Browns. Johnson, however, hopes to have his men back on their feet before the Marberry Seeking Seventh in Row.

The series here ends with a double-header tomorrow which will see Fred Marberry and Carl Fischer doing the Washington flinging. Marberry will be seeking his seventh straight victory, while Fischer will be making his major league debut. This young southpaw has looked good in his warm-ups since purchased from the Newark Bears and Johnson believes that he has a good chance of turning in a victory, provided his mates give him a little help from the tee. Wesley Ferrell, ace of the Indian staff, and Brown are expected to do the alien pitching.

Outfielder Jake Powell, on option to the New Haven Club, has been ordered to return to Washington and keep himself in condition until President Clark Griffith can make arrangements to option him out somewhere. The young flyhawk was batting .372 at New Haven and was the second highest in the league when the New Haven Club suddenly failed financially and disbanded. Already Jake has shown enough to assure him of a real chance to earn himself a berth with the Nats next season.

Carnera Signs Terms For Stribling Fight

Omaha, July 18 (A.P.).—Leon See, French manager of Primo Carnera, the giant Italian fighter, may intend to pack his charge in moth balls and ship him back to Europe next week, but Bill Duffy, of New York, comanager and American representative of the mammoth Italian, is not in sympathy with the idea.

Duffy, arriving yesterday to attend the Carnera-Bearcat Wright fight last night, announced he has signed a contract calling for the Italian's appearance against W. L. (Young) Stribling in Atlantic City August 30. See announced here two days ago that he and Carnera would sail next week and would not return until his fighter was assured of better treatment in New York.

Pirates Rout Braves As Comorosky Shines

Boston, July 18 (A.P.).—Adam Comorosky led the Pirates in a 12-to-4 victory over the Boston Braves here today which advanced the Pittsburgh Team to fifth place in the league standing and sent the Braves down into sixth. Comorosky got a homer, two doubles and a single. Grantham's homer and single gave the Pirates four of their runs.

Sutter, Wood Reach Finals at Brookline

Brookline, Mass., July 18 (A.P.).—Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, and Sidney B. Wood, jr., of New York, two of the most promising members of American tennis "younger set," today gained the championship round of the historic Longwood Bowl singles tourney by sweeping two rugged Harvard youths off the courts in the semifinal round.

Sutter, the intercollegiate champion, and Wood are making their first try for the famous Longwood trophy. Sutter became a finalist by playing to the weak overhead game of Barry Wood, Harvard all-round athlete, to win by 6—1, 6—1, 5—7, 6—1.

Sidney Wood had a much easier session with the other Harvard semi-finalist, Richard Murphy, of Utica, N. Y. The scores were 6—3, 6—1, 6—1.

Both finalists also played on the doubles team that survived the semi-finals round. Sutter teamed with Maurice Bayon, his home townsman, to defeat the top-seeded team, H. L. Johnson and M. T. Hill, of Boston, in a five-set struggle, 6—3, 2—6, 5—7, 6—1, 6—1. Sid Wood and Harold Blauer, also of New York, eliminated E. W. Peiblemann, New York, and J. B. Fenno, Boston, 6—2, 7—5, 3—6, 6—2.

Umpire Silences Fans When His Pistol Barks

Lyerly, Ga., July 18 (A.P.).—"Ragging" the umpire, a summer sport throughout this broad land, doesn't seem to be so popular here now.

Dick Gilbert, a Negro, who sometimes rules the local baseball diamond as final arbiter, has a way all his own for making the fans behave.

In the course of a game, Dick made a decision that seemed fair to him, but the fans felt differently and broke loose with hisses, hoots and catcalls.

Thereupon, Umpire Gilbert drew from his pocket a pistol and fired point blank at the chief noise-maker.

The bullet went wild and nobody was hurt, but Umpire Gilbert was taken to jail. As he awaits trial on a charge of assault, the games go on with another officiating on the diamond, but a great silence follows anything the umpire has to say.

LANDIS GIVES ANSWER TO SUIT

Milwaukee's Claims to Bennett Violation of Rules.

CHICAGO, July 18 (A.P.).—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of organized baseball, filed his answer in Federal court today to the suit filed by owners of the Milwaukee Club, of the American Association, who seek to block the commissioner's transfer order of Outfielder Fred Bennett.

In his answer the commissioner said that Bennett already had two successive seasons of minor league service with clubs owned by the St. Louis Browns, which own "at least 50 per cent of the Milwaukee Club," and that further service without an outright release would be a violation of the minor-major league agreement.

Commissioner Landis said that in addition to his interest in the Milwaukee Club, Phil Ball, president of the St. Louis Browns, owned controlling interest in Topeka, of the Western League; Wichita Falls, of the Texas League, and Springfield, of the Western Association. Bennett, he said, served two successive seasons with Tulsa (now Topeka) and with Wichita Falls, and therefore could not be released by the Browns to Milwaukee. The only courses left to follow with Bennett, Landis said, were:

1. Retain him as a major league player for a year or more.

2. Transfer him outright to some club not owned or controlled by the St. Louis Browns, or,

3. Releases him unconditionally.

St. Louis requested waivers on Bennett on January 20, 1930, Commissioner Landis added, and the player was claimed by the Yankees and Pittsburgh, whereupon St. Louis withdrew its waiver request and sent Bennett to Milwaukee.

Walter Thrall, coach of the oarsmen here, expects to enforce rigid training rules within the next ten days, so that the Alexandria boys will be in condition to make a bid for top honors. Already the crews are drilling nightly over the Potomac course.

Manager Bill Hammond, of the Colonial Athletic Club, has scheduled the Accotink Outlaws for a game here on Sunday. Hammond's Club hopes to return winner in this contest. "Gunny" Davis is now coach of the Colonials.

Playground Track Meet Won by Johnson-Powell

Schultz Broad Jumps 19 Feet, 2 Inches; Cooke Second.

IN a triangular meet decided with the running of the final event—the half-mile run—the Johnson-Powell Playground Team carried off the honors with 85½ points to 75½ points for Cooke Playground and 19 for Bancroft Playground. Superiority in the field events kept Johnson-Powell in position to win the meet when Admire stepped down ahead of two Cooke runners in the distance race.

Eddie Schultz, Johnson-Powell, proved a sensation in the meet when he turned in a running broad jump of 19 feet 2 inches. Schultz, who is 15 years old and who will enter Central High next year, made his long jump after he had easily beaten the field in both the 115 and unlimited classes. He also won the 115-pound and unlimited high jumps and was second in the unlimited dash.

Admire, who kept Cooke from tying by winning the final event, costarred with Schultz for Johnson-Powell. He won the 60-yard dash from a crack field.

"Artie" Williamson was the outstanding hero for Cooke. He won the 70-pound and 85-pound broad jumps, the 70-pound high jump and the 85-pound dash. He was also a member of the winning 85-pound relay team.

The McHugh brothers did the bulk of the scoring for Bancroft.

Cooke, long supreme in playground track in the Columbia Heights section, stepped out to a 48½-to-28 lead over Johnson-Powell with the conclusion of the running events, taking first place in four of the five dashes.

The meet was one of a series being staged in preparation for the city playground championships to be held on the Plaza next month. More than 500 witnessed the competition on the Cooke Playground.

STOCKS SCORE GAINS IN LAST-HOUR RALLY

AMERICAN TOBACCO UP

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Stock market bears got another dose of bull medicine today. Just when the list seemed about to oblige the prophets of reaction, operators for the advance administered a strong tonic of buying orders, stimulating many pool favorites to the best level of the recovery.

The market seemed to be completely under professional auspices, and it was obvious that holders of the long position wished to keep bullish sentiment simmering, if not boiling, for the week-end. Although some of the recently active issues were dropped, other leaders, particularly U. S. Steel, were quickly forthcoming and advances of 1 to 4 points on the day were numerous. However, the fact that the price index of 90 stocks rose only 1.4 points testified to the selectivity of the trading. Much of the rise was accomplished in the last hour. Up to then, some of the pivotal shares, including American Can and American Telephone, had been reactionary and the bear faction lost some of its caution. The weakness of Johns-Mansville, Vanadium and Worthington Pump, which had been active on the advance, encouraged short selling, but the tendency toward reaction proved to be a costly decoy. The strong support thrown into the market in the late dealing induced covering and the shorts found prices rising rapidly.

Copper stocks rallied in the face of a reduction in the price of the metal to the prewar level of 11 cents. There was apparently some tendency to believe that this represented the bottom, although it was recalled sentiment had followed a similar course on earlier cuts. Anyway, the shorts covered, sending Anaconda, Kennecott, Cerro de Pasco and Calumet & Arizona up 1 to 2 points.

Radio and Westinghouse were strong, rallying more than 2 points each. Buying in a few of the rails brought out large advances. Atlantic Coast Line advanced 8 points, Delaware & Hudson, 6; Chesapeake & Ohio and Missouri Pacific, 2, and Wabash more than 3. The move in the latter was based on the Baltimore & Ohio acceptance of the plan for five Eastern trunk lines, with Wabash heading the fifth system.

Loew's led the amusements, rallying more than 2. General Electric, American Tobacco "B," Consolidated Gas, Houston Oil, Republic Steel, American & Foreign Power, International Telephone and Standard Gas & Electric improved 1 to 2 points. Coca Cola's advance exceeded 4 points. J. I. Case made an extreme rise of 18, closing about 3 below the top.

The tendency to shift pool operations to new stocks resulted in moderate net declines in American Can, Johns-Manville, Worthington Pump, Vanadium and Standard Oil of New Jersey. American Telephone was heavy but recovered its loss, closing unchanged.

Speculative commodities profited by weather news. Wheat rose 3½ cents and corn from 1¼ to 2¼, while cotton closed $1 to $1.50 a bale higher.

Dun's Weekly Business Review said that in the absence of a definite recovery "there is the encouraging aspect of a more hopeful feeling in several directions, and it is believed that the increased disposition to recognize the actual conditions, without minimizing existing problems, will be ultimately helpful." The summary called attention to "the fact that business in steel is better in prospect than in actual achievement."

Bradstreet's reported a slight gain in retail distribution as the result of vacation demand and sales to clean up unsold stocks, and said that seasonal shutdowns or curtailments in industry were "apparently at their limit."

The easing tendencies of foreign currencies were featured by small declines in sterling cables and the French franc. The Canadian dollar extended its premium to about one-seventh of a cent.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, July 18 (A.P.).—Broadening of export demand, together with indications that huge quantities of wheat are being fed to live stock, did much to lift wheat values today. Statements were current that if the rate of wheat feeding to live stock keeps up, the season's total will reach 200,000,000 bushels. Export purchases of North American wheat today was estimated as more than 1,000,000 bushels, making about 8,000,000 bushels so far this week.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong, 1¼@1¾ cents a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1¼ to 1⅞ cents up, oats ½ to 1 cent advanced, and provisions varying from 20 decline to a rise of 15 cents.

Friends of higher prices for wheat laid particular stress today on the fact that the market level was about 50 cent a bushel lower than at this time last year. It was pointed out that as a result, many millions of bushels of wheat had been used instead of corn to provide feed for live stock, especially in Kansas, Oklahoma and Missouri. Tending also to hoist wheat values today were persistent reports of havoc by hot dry weather in spring wheat territory sections of Cnaada in particular.

The most striking adverse crop news today regarding spring wheat came from a Chicago field expert who telegraphed that the Canadian wheat region from Medicine Hat to Calgary was in bad shape, most fields burning brown and ripening prematurely. He added that high winds were blowing dust into drifts, and that rain was urgently needed to halt crop deterioration.

There were also reports that the wheat crop in France was very disappointing, and that imports on a large scale will be requisite. Something of a counterbalance, however, was found in comprehensive reports today telling of heavy yields and of fine quality of United States wheat. Nevertheless, general buying of wheat future deliveries was in progress on the part of commission houses as the day drew to an end.

Absence of rain in the corn belt with temperatures at some places the highest in four years sent corn and oats prices upward with wheat. Advices at hand indicated heavy deterioration of the corn crop in Missouri and in sections of Nebraska and Kansas.

Provisions were responsive to upturns both in cereals and in hog values as well.

INVESTMENT ISSUES HEAD RISE IN BONDS

Government List Declines in Turnover Exceeding $1,200,000.

BEST GRADE RAILS FIRM

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Prime investment issues gave a good account of themselves in today's trading on the New York Stock Exchange. Activity was enlivened by the rally in stock privilege issues which caught the bullish trend of stocks for which they are exchangeable. Despite the constructive trend of high grade investment issues and convertibles, the market closed irregularly higher.

An unexpected reactionary trend of United States Governments caused a flurry of interest among the bond group. In a turnover which surpassed a $1,200,000, both Liberty and Treasury issues suffered from realizing, and losses for the session ranged from more than ¼ to ½ of a point. Country banks and private investors were reported to be heavy sellers; some support appeared but all issues closed at the low level. United States Governments are generally the first to reflect the change in the price of credit. Bond men were inclined to ascribe the reactionary trend to other influences, as the easy credit conditions have been little changed this week.

Treasury Issues Depressed.

Treasury issues were the most sharply depressed, with the 4s, 4¼s, and 3¾s, of 1943-57 down about 1-3 of a point.

Selling of Governments and the increased attention given to convertibles by buyers attracted by the strength of stocks to which this class of bonds is peculiarly sensitive, accounted in the main for the $2,000,000 increase in the volume of trading—the best of the week.

Nearly all of the popular convertible issues reflected the increased interest, although net gains were narrow with three exceptions. These were American Telephone 4½s, International Telephone 4½s and Philadelphia, Reading Coal & Iron 6s which rallied a point or more.

Southern Railway 5s Dip.

The fortunes of the best grade railroad obligations were exchanged by the day's trading, while others were lethargic. Canadian Pacific 4s and Rock Island general 4s reached the year's peak prices. Central of Georgia 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s and 5½s, Pennsylvania gold 5s, Southern Pacific 4½s were active and higher. Cuba Railroad 5s and Chicago Burlington & Quincy 4s (Illinois division), both inactive bonds, were strong, the latter gaining 3 points. Boston & Maine 5s, St. Paul 5s, Southern Railway 5s were among the rails which were easier.

Utilities were firm to strong. Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s up 1 point, Utilities Power & Light 5s and 5½s up 1 and 2¾ points, respectively, established new highs for the year. Good investment demand for several American Telephone issues and other high-grade bonds in the group influenced higher prices.

The sale of Sinclair Co.'s interest in Sinclair Pipe Line to Standard Oil Co. of Indiana was reflected in unusual activity in bonds of Sinclair companies. Sinclair Pipe 5s reached a new high and others were strong.

Foreign issues were generally firm.

WALLER FORESEES NORMALCY RETURN

Bank Head Believes Capital Will Recover Before Other Large Cities Do.

PREDICTS LOWER PRICES

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

"There is every reason to believe that Washington will be the first large center to return to normalcy and we are already feeling the effects of improved local conditions," states President John R. Waller, International Bank, in a message to its shareholders issued in connection with the twenty-second semiannual statement of the corporation showing resources July 15 of $2,377,884.53.

"The capital resources of the Nation," he continues, "are larger and more liquid than ever before, and the dollar has a greater purchasing power than at any time since the World War. Lower prices for raw materials will ultimately increase industrial prosperity and result in a wider distribution of products, although temporarily the buying power has been impaired by poor business conditions. Six months ago the business world was speaking in optimistic terms of the 'Hoover program,' and it is now agreed that an additional period is necessary to make it effective. The real need today is a return of public confidence.

"We are in the midst of world-wide economic disturbances, and the general course of business recently has been toward lower levels. The United States has been unable to escape conditions which for some time have been affecting other countries, and we are now paying the penalty for overexpansion and the speculative excesses of the past few years. Business leaders have been shaken out of their complacent optimism, but are facing the future with confidence. The rank and file are pessimistic, and this mental attitude is prolonging the business readjustment."

Company Honors Manager.

The Shaw-Walker Co. has elected H. A. Hering, of the company's branch sales office at 605 Thirteenth street northwest, to membership in its President's Club, most highly coveted honor among representatives of the company.

In announcing this election, the company states that Mr. Hering has been a leader on the Washington sales force for more than three years, and points particularly to his achievement in recent months. His monthly sales record shows not one bad month in the last 30, in spite of the fact that the eight months since the market crash have been marked by a slowing up in buying in almost all lines.

Though Shaw-Walker sales as a whole showed an increase for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, over those of the preceding fiscal year (previously the best year in the history of the company), only six other men from the company's branches all over the country were added to the President's Club roster.

Fidelity Investment Reports.

An increase of $2,309,464 in total resources during the first six months of 1930, despite the adverse business conditions which prevailed in that period, is shown in the semiannual report of Fidelity Investment Association, made public yesterday by D. A. Burt, president. As of June 30, 1930, resources totaled $22,461,031 compared with $20,151,567 on January 1, 1930. Reserves for the maturity and payment of all contracts outstanding, including surplus to contract holders, amounted to $21,337,103 against $19,007,594 on January 1, a gain of $2,329,509.

During the period of depression, the business of the Washington office of the association has increased for the first six months of 1930, 105 per cent over the first six months of 1929.

F. B. Keech & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, with local offices, announce that Messrs. de Saint-Phalle & Co. have become correspondents for them in Europe.

C. Louis Eckloff, an assistant cashier of the National Metropolitan Bank, will leave next week on a two weeks' vacation.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

Trans-America Corporation.

L. A.—Can you give me some information regarding the Trans-America Corporation, its financial condition, earnings, &c.? To what do you ascribe the sharp fall in the stock's value during the past week? Do you consider it a good investment?

Answer—Company, world's largest bank holding company, reported for year ended December 31, 1929, consolidated net income from investments only of $22,884,034, while profit on underwritings amounted to $11,449,176 and net profit on sale of securities totaled $32,983,100. Taking twice the net asset value of company's investment in its four principal controlled banks, appraising marketable securities at market value, valuing other securities at net asset value without any allowance for good will and adding cash and receivables, made an aggregate of $638,000,000, or more than $28.50 a share on 22,349,358 shares outstanding December 31, 1929. Total assets of $1,167,116,000 on December 31, 1929, consisted predominantly of bank holdings. Cash dividends have been at $1.60 annual rate to and including 40 cents quarterly disbursement payable July 25, 1930, but a cut to 25 cents quarterly is contemplated. This latter undoubtedly explains recent sharp decline in stock. Company paid several stock dividends in 1929 and 1930.

Investors Syndicate.

Answer—Investors Syndicate loans its money on first mortgages on homes. The investment certificates sold by this company have a definite rate of interest and a definite maturity date. The resources of Investors Syndicate have grown progressively from $2,600 in 1894 to $32,206,338 in 1929. Sale of these investment certificates in the United States and Canada in the first quarter this year totaled $27,222,900, a new high record. For every $100 of liabilities of the certificate holders there is a pledge of $110 in cash, first mortgages on city residential property, and other high-grade securities. The certificates appear to be a safe investment for long-term holding.

American Telephone.

B. S. G.—I would like to invest in American Telephone. How is it regarded?

Answer—American Telephone is regarded as a premier issue. Gross for the first six months increased about $14,000,000. Net earnings equaled $5.71 on 14,303,300 average number of outstanding shares, as compared with $5.15 on 13,028,807 shares last year. Income for the June quarter was $2.88, as against $3.03 the same time last year. In the first six months this year the Bell system added 165,000 telephones to its lines. Earnings in 1929 were $12.67, compared with $12.11 in 1928. Profits for 1930 are estimated at $11.60 a share. The yield, at present prices, is about 4 per cent, and the stock is selling for about 19 times indicated earnings for 1930.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.

RESERVE REGIMENT TO PASS IN REVIEW AS TRAINING ENDS

BUTLER IS LAUDATORY IN FAREWELL ADDRESS

Second Battalion Winner of Every Award in Drill Competition.

Returning from its training period at Quantico, Va., the Twentieth Marine Reserve Regiment will be reviewed in front of the District Building at 1 o'clock today by Brig. Gen. B. H. Fuller, acting commandant of the Marine Corps; Col. Julius Turrill, commanding the entire Marine Reserve force; Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, and other District officials.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, in a farewell address to the Twentieth, spoke in glowing terms of the regiment's record of achievement during its two weeks in camp.

"You have been real Marines, and a credit to the uniform you wear by backing up Col. Staley and your officers," he said. "You have done what experts said could not be done, that is, to produce in six months of recruiting an efficient Marine Corps field regiment in full. While the marksmanship scores have not yet been tabulated, unofficial returns are to the effect that an unusually high percentage qualified as marksmen, sharpshooters and expert riflemen."

Second Battalion Wins.

In the drill competitions staged yesterday for various cups and trophies, the Second Battalion, under Capt. Harvey L. Miller, won every award. Company G, under Capt. Robert H. Wynn, won the colonel's cup for close order drill.

A squad from Company I, in charge of Private H. N. Smith, won the honors as the best squad in the regiment. Private Smith also won the "best Marine" medal awarded by the District of Columbia Department Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The regimental surgeon's cup for the company with the best health record was awarded to Company K, Capt. J. W. Luckett commanding, a Capital Heights outfit. The surgeon's cup for the most valuable Marine in the medical detachment was won by Corp. R. W. Reeves. The surgeon's cup for the most valuable man in the regimental band was awarded to Sergt. L. R. Corbin.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, yesterday sent a greeting to the boys from his State who are training at the Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Eustis, Va. His message read:

"I am sending greetings and best wishes from all your friends back home in Maryland. You were all good citizens when you left, and you will, if possible, be better citizens when you come back, because of the lessons you will learn of self discipline, mutual cooperation, respect for authority and effective training in the responsibilities of citizenship."

Candidates Do Firing.

Using subcaliber ammunition, the candidates are doing the actual pointing and firing of the huge guns which are capable of hurling projectiles weighing almost 100 pounds through the air at a velocity exceeding 2,000 feet a second, with a range of more than 10 miles.

At Fort Washington, Md., an exhausted carrier pigeon yesterday sought the protection of the Army and alighted at the foot of the staff from which the United States flag was flying. Lieut. C. H. Marshall, of the Infantry Reserve, and Blue Candidate Oren I. McFarland, of Company K, K. C. M. C., of Newcastle, Pa., rescued the bird and brought it to Maj. Alexander M. Patch, commandant of the post, who placed it in the care of Mrs. Patch to nurse back to health.

Mayor Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, has concluded his visit to Fort Eustis, Va., where he reviewed the 1,900 C. M. T. C. candidates from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia, and after commenting enthusiastically upon the work of the C. M. T. Camps, returned to his home city yesterday by boat.

New Market Deal Reported Finished

Structure to Replace the Doomed Building Will Be in Central Area.

Negotiations for establishment of a new Center Market downtown to replace the old market, which is scheduled to be torn down by next January 1, were completed yesterday by the Downtown Market Co., officers of which are members of a committee of representatives of ten merchants in Center market.

The company plans to purchase a block of land within a radius of five blocks from the intersection of Eleventh and G streets and to erect thereon a building designed and adequate to house the dealers in Center Market, or their successors. A contract has been signed providing financing of the project by George W. Loft and associates, of New York, it is announced by counsel for the Downtown Market Co.

The market company has agreed to procure five-year leases in the new building from at least 75 per cent of the dealers in the present Center Market.

An automobile stolen in Detroit three months ago was found in Washington yesterday, and James Amick, 27 years old, a former policeman at the Third Precinct, was charged with the theft.

The car was found parked on Thirteenth street near Iowa Circle. Amick was arrested by members of the automobile squad as he was in the act of entering the machine. It was reported. Amick told detectives that he lived on Vermont avenue near Iowa Circle. A man giving his name as McClung, 22 years old, of Fayetteville, West Va., was arrested with Amick. He will be released, police said.

NEW HEARING ASKED FOR YORK'S SLAYERS

THREE UNDER SENTENCE

Alleging misconduct on the part of a juror, and errors of judgment in the admission and rejection of evidence, attorneys for the three Negroes convicted last Monday of murdering Prohibition Agent Lamar Watson York, filed motion for new trials yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The three, who face the electric chair as the result of the first degree murder verdict returned against them, are John Logan, John Borum and Milton Guy. Basis for the new trial motions was an affidavit secured by Bertrand Emerson, jr., attorney for Guy, which charges Otto A. Schoeps, a jury member, with discussing the case with a taxi driver named George J. Sanderson.

In his affidavit Sanderson swears that Schoeps expressed himself concerning the case while he was being driven to an address on Owens street several days before the verdict was returned.

Attorneys James A. O'Shea and John H. Burnett, representing Logan, and Attorney P. P. Richardson, counsel for Borum, filed similar motions. In addition Richardson alleged that a member of the grand jury that indicted the defendants had been convicted of violating the national prohibition act. In another case Justice Peyton Gordon ruled that the latter charge represented no moral turpitude.

Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins, who headed the prosecution in the York case, recalled all members of the jury and asked them if they had violated the court's instructions not to speak about the case under trial. After the examination he announced that all jurors had denied speaking to any one about the matter while the trial was in progress.

Infidelity in 1903 Charged by Wife

Alleged Act of Husband 27 Years Ago Made Basis of Divorce Suit.

An act of infidelity alleged to have occurred 27 years ago yesterday was made the basis for a divorce suit filed in District Supreme Court by Mrs. Minnie M. Baggett, who lives on the river shore near the Washington Canoe Club.

The plaintiff was married to John Franklin Baggett, 1019 Twenty-second street northwest, in 1892, but has not lived with her husband since 1899, when he deserted her, according to the complaint. Four years later, the petition says, the husband committed the act of infidelity complained of. They have five children.

The petition was filed through Attorney C. V. Diedel.

Dr. Fowler to Enter Johns Hopkins Today

Dr. William C. Fowler, District health officer, will enter Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, today for diagnosis and treatment of an ailment, which has not incapacitated him, but which has annoyed him for some time.

The trouble is expected to yield to relief treatments without delay, but the diagnosis of the cause may require a little while and Dr. Edward J. Schwartz, assistant health officer, will act as chief of the health department until Dr. Fowler's return.

Change of Venue Is Granted in Raid

Hearing for Seven Set for Next Wednesday in Hyattsville.

The five Washingtonians and the two residents of Mount Rainier, Md., who were charged with disorderly conduct after a raid last Saturday night at the home of Town Bailiff Howard Dove, in Mount Rainier, were granted a change of venue last night when they appeared before Justice of the Peace Robert E. Joyce at the town hall.

The hearing was set for next Wednesday before Police Justice J. Chew Sheriff in the Hyattsville Police Court. The defendants are Catherine Little, John Snow, Kathleen Snow, Edward S. Lucas and William T. Lucas, of Washington, and Amos Norton and George Buckholtz, former Mount Rainier chief of police. They were represented by J. Wilson Ryon.

Dove and Leonard A. Pipkin, his stepfather, who were charged with operating a disorderly house and possession of liquor, respectively, will also be arraigned in police court.

ACADEMY OFFICERS INVESTIGATE PRANK

DELAY FURTHER ACTION

Authorities at the United States Naval Academy, investigating the "smuggling" of two Washington girls into the mess room of Bancroft Hall to dine with members of the new second class of midshipmen at supper last Sunday night, had taken no action in the case last night.

Rear Admiral S. S. Robison, superintendent of the Academy, announced that all midshipmen in the second class are under restriction pending definite information as to exactly which members of the class were responsible for the escapade. The midshipmen under fire are stationed at Annapolis for the summer to study aviation.

The two girls were reported to be Miss Mary Hayden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Hayden, of Twenty-eighth street near Woodley road northwest, and Miss Lorette Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor, of Douglas street near Ninth street northeast.

They wore regulation midshipmen's uniforms. They were detected by their bobbed hair by an executive officer when the meal was well under way. They were politely requested to leave the mess hall, it was learned.

In confirming a report of the Sunday night escapade, Academy officials took occasion to deny reports that a similar prank, in which the daughter of an officer assigned to the station was said to have been involved, took place several weeks ago, and that the matter was "hushed up." In denying this, Commander Donald B. Beary, official aid, speaking for Rear Admiral Robison, said that social prominence would have no bearing in infractions of Naval Academy regulations where midshipmen are concerned.

Woman Jumps Out Window.

After telling her employer that she intended to end her life, Mabel Brown, colored, 20 years old, of New Jersey avenue near Tenth street northwest, jumped from the second-story window of her home yesterday morning. She was taken to Casualty Hospital and later to Gallinger Hospital. Her injuries were reported to be slight.

MEETING REPORTS SLUMP IN BUILDING

Residential Construction in Six Months Drops 47 Per Cent, Group Is Told.

BLAME CREDIT METHODS

The drastic decline of 47 per cent in the volume of residential construction during the first six months of the year, as compared with last year, together with the lack of immediate indications of any effective revival in this class of construction, held the attention of the president's cabinet of the Associated General Contractors of America in session here last night.

A. E. Horst, president of the contractors' organization, pointed out that the residential section of the industry is afflicted with numerous ills and problems that need to be remedied before any considerable revival can be hoped for and activities in that division of the industry enabled to proceed on a sound basis.

Among the ills that have contributed to the present position of residential construction, Mr. Horst said, have been the unregulated activities of speculative builders, lack of proper provision for supplying second mortgage financing on a conservative basis at low cost, the lack of organization of legitimate home builders and other residential contractors, the existence of unsound appraisal practices and what appears to be a growing lack of confidence in this section of the industry on the part of the public.

Mr. Horst explained that the difficulties afflicting this field are of such a nature as to affect the rest of the construction industry along with the entire business life of the Nation and a program looking toward the working out of solutions to these problems is being considered as a prominent activity now demending attention from the contractors' organization.

Woman Driver Injured When Car Crashes Pole

Mrs. Minnie Jane Walsh, 37 years old, of 3038 O street northwest, sustained lacerations to the right hand and right knee, possible internal injuries and shock last night when her car collided with a trolley pole on Wisconsin avenue, near Norton street northwest.

After being given first-aid treatment by Dr. F. M. McChesney, of 3421 Wisconsin avenue, she was removed to Georgetown Hospital. She told Fourteenth Precinct police another car had crowded her off the street.

H. C. Hantze, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the National Costumers' Association at the close of its annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. Other officers named were Adolph Klein, of Peoria, Ill., first vice president; Oscar Bucholz, of Springfield, Mass., second vice president; Jack Goldstein, of Charleston, W. Va., third vice president; Mrs. Minnie E. Mason, Cleveland, fourth vice president; John Hansen, Salt Lake City, secretary-treasurer.

Police Find Still In Full Operation

A 75-gallon still in full operation was found yesterday afternoon on the second floor of a house on Second street between E and D streets northwest, according to Lieut. Oscar Letterman, of the Sixth Precinct. The raid was conducted by Detective E. C. O'Meara, of the Sixth Precinct.

Rocco Pelicano, 34 years old, said by police to have been in charge of the still, was charged with sale, possession, manufacture of liquor and maintaining a nuisance. Pelicano told police that he was a shoemaker. He was being held at the Sixth Precinct station last night.

Aside from the still, police said that the house contained a 10-gallon barrel of liquor, ten 1-gallon jugs and nine ½-gallon jars and 60 pounds of brown sugar as well as a large quantity of mash.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DAILY

LUELLA was having a hard time of it, packing the bags.

"Have you got everything in, everything you want to take along?" I asked.

She straightened up, cast a disguested look my way:

"Say, listen," she said, "if you'll just disappear for a few moments I'll——"

"You want me out-a the way, eh?"

"Out-a the way is right," she said, throwing some handkerchiefs in the top tray.

There was nothing left for me, then, but to beat it—and I did. After awhile, I came back to survey the scene of operations; to see how Luella had got along with her packing.

"How goes the battle, old dear?" I inquired.

* * * *

SHE stood stark still, looked me in the eye: "Don't you 'old dear' me," she said, and I saw from the looks of things that there was something rotten in Denmark.

"Here," she commanded, handing me a shirt, "put this on the table while I see what else has been left out."

It was my turn to gasp: "Have we left something out?"

"Have we what?" she shot.

Luella stood, arms akimbo. "Say," she almost shouted, "how do you get that way? We? When did we do any packing. It's I—I. I've been doing all the packing, and here you come, 'Have we left something out?'"

"Well, have we?" I repeated, and the battle was on full force.

* * * *

ABOUT two hours later we were all ready for the train; all but getting the taxi.

"Hey, Useless," said Luella, "suppose you get on the phone and call one of those cut-rate taxicabs."

"What'd'he mean, cut-rate taxis?"

So I negotiated with a cut-throat, a fellow who rolls his own, over the city streets, and in a little while we were at the Union Station.

"Where are the tickets?" asked Luella, all flushed with the joy of going somewhere.

"By Jove," I remarked, searching my pockets the meanwhile.

"By Jove, what?" she asked.

"By Jove," I said, somewhat meekly, "I left 'em home."

Of this the less said the better.

WOMAN RESCUED FROM GAS-FILLED KITCHEN BY MATE

CALL FOR ASSISTANCE BRINGS RESCUE SQUAD

Physicians Find Condition Not Serious and She Remains at House.

Sitting in the gas-filled kitchen of her home on I street near Eleventh street northwest, Mrs. Mary Alice Davis, 20 years old, was found last night by her husband when he returned from work.

The man called for aid and Mrs. Davis was treated by the Fire Rescue Squad and Emergency Hospital physicians, who said her condition was not serious. After treatment she was allowed to remain at home.

According to other occupants of the house, the two children of the woman were in the room with her. The report made by police of the First Precinct does not mention this, however.

The woman's husband said that she had undergone a major operation some time ago and was suffering from ill health. A crowd of several hundred people, mostly young girls, clustered around the house, brought to the scene by the screaming siren of the rescue squad's car.

Hammer's Noise Leads To Arrest of Intruder

John W. Lloyd, colored, 22 years old, of Kingman Place near Fifteenth street northwest, was held at the First Precinct last night on a charge of housebreaking following his arrest at an early hour yesterday morning at the Arthur Neuman Store, 1422 New York avenue northwest, which, police said, he was attempting to rob.

Lloyd betrayed himself when he hammered on a safe, according to police. The hammering was heard by Henry Hines, night watchman at the Evans building, where the store is located. After Lloyd was arrested, he admitted breaking into the Columbia Photo Supply Co. next door to the Neuman store, police reported. Lloyd was released from Lorton Penitentiary last May after serving a five-year sentence for housebreaking.

Man Freed on Charge Of Stealing Taxicab

Victor Cercio, arrested Sunday on charges of stealing a taxicab from Fred Hopkins, colored, was released by Judge Isaac R. Hitt in Police Court yesterday due to lack of evidence.

During the preliminary hearing, which lasted several days, Cercio introduced a number of witnesses who swore that he was in their presence at the time the cab is said to have been stolen. Hopkins identified the defendant as one of two men who had bound and gagged him before driving off in the cab, but in the face of conflicting testimony for the Government Judge Hitt dismissed the case.

Eldridge Praises Automotive Group

Destruction of Worn-Out Motor Cars by Association Is Commended.

Destruction of worn-out and unsafe motor cars by members of the Washington Automotive Trade Association was commended by M. O. Eldridge, Assistant Director of Traffic, in a letter written yesterday to Whitney Leary, president of the association.

Association members destroyed 766 worn-out motor cars which came into their possession, it was disclosed a few days ago, and Mr. Eldridge declared that "the work which the Automotive Trade Association is doing along this line will be of great assistance to us and to the public to bring about safer driving on our streets.

"During the past few years we have condemned a few cars which have been picked up by the police on account of their unsafe mechanical condition, but your association is in position to go to the bottom of the problem and prevent a lot of these old wrecks from getting into the hands of persons who will continue to operate them on the streets."

More stringent regulation of the use of old and unsafe motor cars is one of the important things which is under study by the new traffic advisory committee and board recently named by Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby to revise the District traffic laws and regulation methods.

Hugh Reilly Co. Group To Hold Annual Outing

Employes of the Hugh Reilly Co., of 1334 New York avenue northwest, will hold their annual outing at Chapel Point today, leaving the store in a chartered bus at 1:30 o'clock.

Games and bathing will make up the program during the afternoon, and in the evening a chicken dinner will be served. Erma Meegan, John L. Gray, Agnes Cady, Robert Kenyon and T. F. Joyce constitute the outing committee.

Woman Dies of Fall Injuries.

Mrs. Susie Price, 47 years old, colored, of 4621 Gault place northeast, died in Emergency Hospital yesterday of injuries received May 12 when she fell from a Washington Railway & Electric Co. street car on H street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets northwest.

Bloody Clothes Are Found; Maryland Woods Combed

Maryland police this morning will continue a search of the woods near Brentwood for the man whose bloody clothes were found in the town near the District line by children last night.

The clothes consisted of a white shirt, a suit of underclothes, shoes and a coat. There were no marks of identification on any of the garments. The coat would fit a man weighing about 160 pounds, it was said.

Immediately after the grisly find was reported Rubin Brown, chief of police of the town, mobilized a posse and scoured the woods in the vicinity of the spot. The search was halted by darkness, but police hope to find either clews or the man himself this morning.

BABY LION RAISED ON BOTTLE

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. William N. Mann, wife of the superintendent of the Washington Zoological Gardens, lavishes a mother's care upon this tiny lion cub, the last of three recently born at the Zoo and which she and Dr. Mann are endeavoring to raise on a bottle like a human child.

GROUP CONSIDERS SITE FOR BUILDING

Structure to House Health Service May Be Built at B and C Streets.

HEATING PLANT NEEDED

Two sites, on opposite sides of the Federal Triangle, are being considered for the new Public Health Service Building, it was brought out at a meeting of the Public Buildings Commission yesterday.

One location suggested is the area bounded by Nineteenth, Twentieth, B and C streets northwest. The other site is the extreme eastern point of the triangle at Four-and-a-half street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

In considering the Nineteenth street address, the commission also took up the necessity for a new heating plant for the Navy and Munitions Building, as the present plant, in a square adjacent to the suggested site of the Public Health Building, is to be given over as an office building for the Pan-American Union.

The recent consolidation of veterans' activities under a new organization known as the veterans' administration led to a discussion of housing the Veterans' Bureau. For the present the Pension Bureau, which has been consolidated with the Veterans' Bureau, will remain in its present quarters in the Interior Department.

The commission approved the plan to house the prohibition enforcement unit of the Department of Justice and the Bureau of Industrial Alcohol of the Treasury Department in the old Southern Railway Building, where they now are located. No action was taken, however, upon the application by the Department of Justice for leased space.

Plans are nearing completion of Waddy B. Wood, local architect, for remodeling the State, War and Navy Building, changing the face of the old building to correspond with the Treasury Department, it was reported. Plans for razing the block of buildings between Fourteenth and Fifteenth street and E street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest were approved.

Woman Knocked Down And Hurt by Automobile

Struck by an automobile at Connecticut and Florida avenues last night, Willa M. Hicks, 40 years old, of 1808 Connecticut avenue, was admitted to Emergency Hospital. Her injuries were diagnosed as shock and bruises of the right side of the forehead. Her condition was not serious.

James L. Hall, of K street, near Eighteenth street northwest, was said by Eighth Precinct police to have been the driver of the car. He was not held.

Boy, 10, Asks $25,000; Hit by Car, Is Claim

Claiming that he was struck by an automobile while standing in a safety zone last July 8, 10-year-old Luther B. Jones, jr., 1135 Sixth street southwest, yesterday filed suit in District Supreme Court for $25,000 damages from Elizabeth W. Downs, 2926 Porter street northwest.

The suit was filed through the boy's father by Attorneys T. Morris Wampler and Joseph C. Turco.

STATES WILL RETAIN NAMES ON STREETS

Federal Building Program Is to Eliminate Several Thoroughfares.

TRANSFERS TO BE MADE

Preliminary steps to preserve State names for streets and avenues in the District when various avenues now named for States are abolished by development of the Government building program were taken yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

It is proposed to transfer the names of such streets as are eliminated to other thoroughfares. Among the roads which thus would be given the names of States are Broad Branch road, Benning road, Foxhall road and others. An exhaustive report on the matter was presented by Charles W. Eliot 2d, director of planning for the commission.

The commission's tentative plans for transforming the Brightwood Reservoir at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets into a stadium and swimming pool were opposed by a delegation of residents representing the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association, who want the site used for a sunken garden.

Preliminary plans for operation of the Cramton bill for the extension of the local park system were discussed and probably will be considered in further detail at another meeting today.

Feeling that the alley housing bills should be revamped, the commission decided to take the question up with the District Commissioners before any action is taken regarding several similar measures dealing with the problems which now are pending.

Police Search for Mate In Wife Poisoning Case

Police are still looking for Paul Browning, living at a hotel on Pennsylvania avenue, near Sixth street northwest, who forced his wife to drink poison early yesterday morning, according to the story she told police. The condition of the woman is improving, it was said at Emergency Hospital, where she was taken.

The wife, Mrs. Nona Browning, 25 years old, said that she and her husband began to quarrel Thursday night and that he finally poured a large dose of the deadly fluid into a glass and made her drink it. The conflict arose over domestic difficulties, it was said. The husband left the hotel immediately after the act.

Open Safety Pin Taken From Stomach of Baby

An open safety pink swallowed yesterday morning by David Carter, 8-month-old child of Dozier Carter, of 128 Carroll street southeast, was extracted late yesterday afternoon by physicians at Children's Hospital. The pin had lodged in the child's stomach.

When the child was taken from the operating room his condition was described as fair. The baby swallowed the pin while his parents were dressing. He was taken first to Casualty Hospital and then to the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital. He was finally taken to Children's Hospital, where the operation was performed by Dr. Joseph Horgan.

SERIOUS MENACE OF WATER FAMINE FACING SUBURBS

Sanitary Commission Acts to Sound Warning to Cut Alleged Waste.

LONG DRY SPELL SAID TO LOWER RESERVE

District Not Yet Affected by Emergency Measures to Save Supply.

Residents of Maryland in the suburban districts adjacent to Washington are faced by an immediate and serious water famine unless they curtail their use of water at once, it was declared yesterday by J. Darby Bowman, secretary of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

The commission now is supplying suburban Maryland with more than 5,750,000 gallons of water daily, as compared with a normal consumption of only about 4,000,000 gallons. At the same time, Mr. Bowman said, because of the prolonged dry spell the stream flow of water into the reservoirs is less than an eighth its normal volume.

Water in the reservoirs is dropping at the rate of a foot a day, and now is lower than at any time during the past 7 years, Mr. Bowman reported, the stream-flow into the reservoirs being only 2,000,000 gallons daily.

Drastic Action Threatened.

"If consumers of this water do not take immediate steps to reduce their use of the fluid to a conservative, reasonable quantity," Mr. Bowman said, "we will have to take drastic action to see that waste of water is stopped."

The dry, hot spell has not raised the necessity for emergency measures so far as the District water supply is concerned, D. W. Holton, superintendent of the water department, said yesterday.

District reservoirs are filled and are able to meet the demands being made on the supply with the only difficulties experienced being due to inadquate mains in certain places. These mains were laid several years ago and were not designed at the time to supply the needs of large numbers of families who have moved into the area supplied by these mains.

Mains are being renewed as rapidly as funds will permit and new mains are being laid with the thought of the continued material expansion of the city in mind, Mr. Holton said. Existing mains are adequate except during the hours of the day when the consumption is at its highest point.

District Aids Supply.

Under authority of a recent law the District has been pumping 1,000,000 gallons of water a day into Maryland for storage in the Burnt Mill reservoir and this pumping will be continued, Mr. Holton said. The law requires a charge of $65 for each 1,000,000 gallons.

A maximum of 3,000,000 gallons a day may be supplied under the law, but at present there is only one connection with the Maryland water system. That is at Rhode Island avenue at the District line and this will carry only 1,000,000 gallons a day.

Work soon is to be started on another connection at the District line in Chevy Chase, but it is thought that this will not be completed in time to aid in the situation due to the dry spell unless the dry weather continues for a much longer period than would be expected.

Three Women Held After Liquor Raid

Edith Bergner, on Probation for Drunken Driving, Is One Taken.

Edith Bergner, alias Sally Davis, previously arrested in the District for driving while drunk, returned to Police Court yesterday on charges of possessing whisky and maintaining a nuisance. She was arrested Thursday night with two other women in an apartment on Columbia road near Fourteenth street northwest, by Sergt. J. R. Leach and his vice squad.

The other two women gave their names as Marie Inwall and Mrs. G. A. Williams, both 28. All three were released on bond when they demanded jury trials.

Miss Bergner was convicted several months ago of driving while drunk and was placed on probation for one year. Police said that she was wearing pajamas when her machine was stopped on Sixteenth street. Floyd A. Truscott, one of the officers figuring in the Thursday night raid, suffered a badly crushed hand when one of the women is said to have slammed a door on it.

Wife, 71, Who Married At 65, Seeks Divorce

A woman who married six years ago at the age of 65 yesterday petitioned the District Supreme Court for a limited divorce and alimony from her husband, who is the same age.

In papers filed through Attorney Raymond Neudecker, Mrs. Laura V. Berger 2128 First street northwest, charges Charles E. Berger, 927 Sixth street southwest, with cruelty and threatened bodily injury. He sent her from his home, the petition says, and once threw her out of bed at 5:30 in the morning.

Woman Held for Possession.

After 48 bottles of alleged beer had been seized in her home, Hattie Hall, 38 years old, of Eleven-and-a-half street near M street southeast, was arrested by Fifth Precinct police. She was charged with sale and possession.
